LEAVE CHINA, AMERICANS ADVISED

Big 3 Support Given Revised Palestine Plan

Calls For Negotiated Armistice And Cites Threat Of Sanctions

PARIS, Nov. 15 (INS)—The United States, Britain and France threw their support tonight to a revised Palestine peace plan calling on Arabs and Jews to negotiate an armistice to replace their oft-broken truce.

The plan, presented to the United Nations Security Council by Canada, requests that the Arabs and Jews carry out troop reductions and withdrawals as in the program outlined by Acting Mediator Ralph Bunche.

Unlike the Bunche plan, however, it cites the threat of sanctions against the Arabs and Jews if they fail to comply with the armistice demand.

The plan was designed to overcome Arab and Jewish objection to previous proposals, but an Irsaeli spokesman expressed dissatifaction with it on the grounds that it sustains the November 4 council resolution calling for withdrawal of Israeli troops from the Negev by Friday.

But because of Big Three support, it appeared the resolution would be approved tomorrow.

The Bunche armistice plan was revised in the Canadian draft to overcome American and British objections.

Gives Arabs, Jews Voice

It gives Arabs and Jews some voice in negotiating final demarcation lines and troop withdrawals in the Holy Land as compared to the rigid Bunche plan.

It provides for direct Arab-Jewish negotiations or the employment of the mediator's good offices.

It was designed to supersede Britain's demand for extension of Bunche's Negev withdrawal and demilitarization order to Northern Palestine. The Jews were strongly opposed to this.

The new resolution will give Israel and the Arab states a broader opportunity to accept armistice demarcation lines more gracefully by calling on both parties to open negotiations directly or through the mediator's office.

Arabs and Jews thereby could escape the ironclad Bunche order to evacuate Palestine's Southern Negev Desert by Friday.

While this order, which Israel has opposed, will continue in force for the present, Arabs and Jews will have an opportunity of negotiating their own armistice provisions under the Canadian resolution.

Jews Reject Bernadotte Plan

Adoption of the Canadian resolution also would thrust into the background the council's November resolution which carried with it the threat of sanctions—that is, unless Arabs and Jews refuse to negotiate and continue hostilities.

It was believed that adoption of the Canadian resolution would permit the United Nations Political Committee to switch its attention to general approval of the Bernadotte peace plan as a basis for an eventual political settlement.

A conciliation committee may be appointed to keep in step with armistice negotiations as a prelude to the peace settlement.

The Bernadotte plan was rejected by Israel today wth a warn-

Maritime Strike Extended To Two Canadian Harbors

Big Liners Cancel Scheduled Sailings

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—The East Coast port paralysis caused by a strike of 65,000 AFL dock workers spread into Canada today. It also caused sailings to be cancelled for the largest liners of the United States and Britain.

AFL longshoremen in Halifax and Montreal were ordered to refuse to handle any ships diverted to harbors there as a consequence of the walkout at most of the major ports along the United States eastern seaboard.

At the same time, sailings of the liner America, the United States' largest passenger vessel, and the Queen Elizabeth, British liner which is the world's largest, were cancelled.

The America had been scheduled to sail from here for Europe tomorrow. The Queen Elizabeth had been due to leave Southampton, England, for New York Wednesday.

ECA May Issue Appeal

In Washington, Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman said Marshall Plan officials may ask the longshoremen to handle European recovery cargoes at strike-bound ports if the strike lasts a long time.

Hoffman said special handling might be asked if the tieup gets to the point of endangering the recovery program.

Its extension to the two Canadian harbors heightened the effect of the six-day walkout on shipping companies. Some shippers had begun to divert their vessels to Halifax as a substitute trans-Atlantic port just after the strike began.

J. J. Campbell, head of the Halifax longshoremen, said the port's 2,000 stevedores henceforth would refuse to work on diverted vessels. The same order went out in Montreal.

"We will not become scabs," Campbell said, adding that the union edict applied only to vessels diverted to Halifax.

"We will have no 'hot' ships here," said a union spokesman in Montreal. "Stevedores in Montreal are not strikebreakers," he added.

Food, Fuel To Be Handled

Meanwhile, New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer received union assurances that the strike would not be allowed to interfere with the delivery of vital food and fuel supplies here.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, assured the Mayor during a conference today that tugboats would continue normal food and fuel delivery operations in New

Most Powerful Cruiser Afloat Joins U. S. Navy

BOSTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The U.S.S. Des Moines, deadliest cruiser afloat, joined the Navy tonight after an all-day builder's trial on Massachusetts Bay disclosed no flaws.

Both the Navy and the builders, the Fore River shipyard of the Bethlehem Steel Company, sidestepped mention of the Des Moines' speed—saying only that she could do something more than 30 knots.

Her main battery of nine automatic 8-inch rifles that make the Des Moines the world's most powerful cruiser were silent today. Navy tests will come later. The Navy says they can fire four times faster than any previous weapons of such calibre.

Linked with the guns is an almost magic fire control system which can bring them to bear accurately on targets outside human vision.

Princess, Infant Son Doing Well

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth and the bonny day-old Prince of Edinburgh were said to be doing well tonight.

Throughout the nation and the far reaches of the commonwealth and empire Britons celebrated the birth of the infant who probably will be their next king. There was cannon firing, bell ringing, toasts and cheers. Trumpets and bands blared.

The Prince, second in line to the throne, weighed seven pounds, six ounces at birth last night. Physicians said that was almost the perfect weight for a male first-born.

Sir John Weir and Sir William Gilliatt, who assisted at the birth, called at Buckingham Palace tonight to see the Princess.

A record of more than 4,000 telegrams of congratulations were received at the palace.

President Truman and Gen. Eisenhower were among those sending messages. In Paris, the Duke of Windsor, great uncle of the child, wished the baby "every possible happiness." In time the child doubtless will be designated Prince of Wales, a title last held by the Duke before his brief reign as Edward VIII.

Mackenzie King Resigns As Canadian Minister

OTTAWA, Nov. 15 (AP)—William Lyon Mackenzie King resigned today as Prime Minister after having headed the Canadian government for more than 21 years. He was succeeded by Louis Stephen St. Laurent, a French Canadian lawyer.

King's resignation marked the end of an era in Canada. He had held office longer than any British Commonwealth prime minister.

Both King and St. Laurent are members of the Liberal Party. King, 73, retired by choice. He has been ill and plans to take life easy. His successor is 66.

St. Laurent was sworn in at 3:45 p. m. EST. Acceptance of King's resignation had been held up about five hours, apparently so there would be no gap in the continuity of government.

Credit Firms To Register

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Most installment credit firms must register with a federal reserve bank by November 19, the Federal Reserve Board said today. Registration statements provide the means by which the board enforces the controls that were re-imposed on installment credit September 20.

Consumer-Paid Social Insurance Backed By Lewis

Federal-Financed Benefits Opposed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—John L. Lewis said today the cost of social insurance covering workers should be part of the selling price of the product they make—not paid for out of federal tax money.

This theory appeared in the interview published today and copyrighted by the "U. S. News and World Report," weekly news magazine.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, said that the notion that the government should pay pension, sickness and health insurance benefits for workers generally is contrary to the free enterprise tradition.

Points To UMW Plan

Instead, Lewis said, workers and employers should negotiate plans like the one his union has bargained out in the coal industry. He said coal prices to consumers have been increased to permit payment of a 20-cent royalty on every ton of coal produced for financing $100 a month pension as well as death, health, disability and other benefits for miners.

"We hold that the proper care of the human element in the mining industry or any other major industry should properly be charged to the cost of production and not assessed against the taxpayers as a whole," Lewis said.

"To the degree, we think it's a step in the direction of free government. It's contrary to the concept that the government should do everything for its citizens.

Social Security "Inadequate"

"The industry should do it, and the commodity should bear the cost of it—whatever that may be. This is a chance for labor and management to take care of these problems and eliminate the necessity for the government to build up huge, inefficient and costly administrative bureaus to try to do the task in a less efficient way."

Lewis was asked specifically whether his plan would replace the present social security plan. One of the campaign pledges of Presi-

"Tip" Expected

Car Dealer Tells Probers Trade-Ins Taken For Least And Sold For Most

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—A Washington automobile dealer testified today that his firm takes in used cars as trade-ins "for as little as we can" and sells them "for as much as we can."

"I think it is good business," Raymond J. Kearney, co-partner in the Kearney Oldsmobile Company, told a House Subcommittee on Trade Practices. The committee is inquiring into new and used car deals in the Washington metropolitan area.

One of the Kearney firm's salesmen, William Manuel, testified that he always expected a "tip" from the buyer when he sold a car and he didn't think $500 was too much.

Kearney was asked by John Reddan, committee counsel, about selling accessories on new cars.

"I sell all that I can," Kearney replied. "We sell them everything that is on the car."

Reddan said that the Kearney company's markup (price set by the dealer over what he pays for a car) on trade-ins was 95.4 per cent.

"That's less than the national average," Kearney retorted.

Reddan said in reply that the District of Columbia average is 43 per cent.

H. F. Banks, Lansing, Mich., assistant general sales manager for Oldsmobile Division of General Motors Corporation, testified that Oldsmobile dealers are not agents of the corporation. He said they are independent contractors operating under a selling agreement or franchise for a certain period.

Banks said that GM ships "extra" (accessories) on cars when ordered by dealers and that the corporation's policies with regard to dealers are "in the form of recommendations."

The committee also questioned Robert Tiger, Kearney sales manager, about his handling of trade-ins, and then checked his testimony with a number of customers and used car dealers who were put on the stand.

The testimony showed that in seven cases Tiger had taken in old cars on trade-ins for new Oldsmobiles and then turned the trade-ins over to used car dealers at profits ranging as high as $600 a car.

Before Manuel took the stand, he

Court Upholds Ban On Claims For Portal Pay

Rules Ford Motors Can Operate Auto Financing Company

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Supreme Court decided in effect today that Congress acted legally when it voided workers' claims for some $6,000,000,000 in retroactive "portal-to-portal" pay.

Portal-to-portal pay means pay for traveling from a factory gate to the actual place of work, for washing up, for sharpening tools, etc. Claims for such pay were sharply restricted by Congress when it passed the portal-to-portal act.

The Supreme Court refused to review the dismissal by the United States District Court at Baltimore of back pay claims filed by 13 employes of B. H. Hubbert and Son, Inc., prior to passage of the act.

The Baltimore court threw out the suit when the company contended that the new law, signed May 14, 1947, retroactively cancelled such claims. Its action was upheld by the United States Circuit Court at Richmond.

The high court dismissed the workers' appeal without comment today. It was the tribunal's first action on the validity of any portion of the portal-to-portal act.

Action On Other Cases Deferred

The court deferred action, however, on several other cases based almost wholly on contentions that the law is unconstitutional.

In general, the act barred existing and future claims for portal-to-portal pay unless they are covered by employer-worker contracts or are valid because of tradition or practice.

In other actions today, the Supreme Court:

1. Rejected a request that it rule on the validity of the injunction issued last July against a threatened nationwide strike by raildoad workers. The government contended that any ruling by the court would be merely "an advisory opinion" since the dispute was settled while an appeal was pending. The high court does not give advisory opinions.

2. Lifted a lower court order under which the Ford Motor Company was forbidden to own an automobile finance company or to try to persuade dealers and car buyers to finance deals through any particular company. The decision was by a 4-3 vote.

Major Part Of Act Upheld

While the portal-to-portal case did not involve constitutionality of the entire act, the court's action did uphold the validity of the major portion of it, that banning retroactive pay claims.

The Maryland workers filed their claim after the Supreme Court issued its famous Mt. Clemens (Michigan) Potter Company ruling.

The court held in that case that the 1938 Fair Labor Standards Act entitled workers to pay for the time they spent getting to and from the actual site of their jobs and in preparing for work, provided the time thus spent was substantial.

A huge volume of back pay claims was filed all over the country in the wake of the decision. Congress then acted to outlaw such suits.

In the railroad strike case, the court rejected a request by three

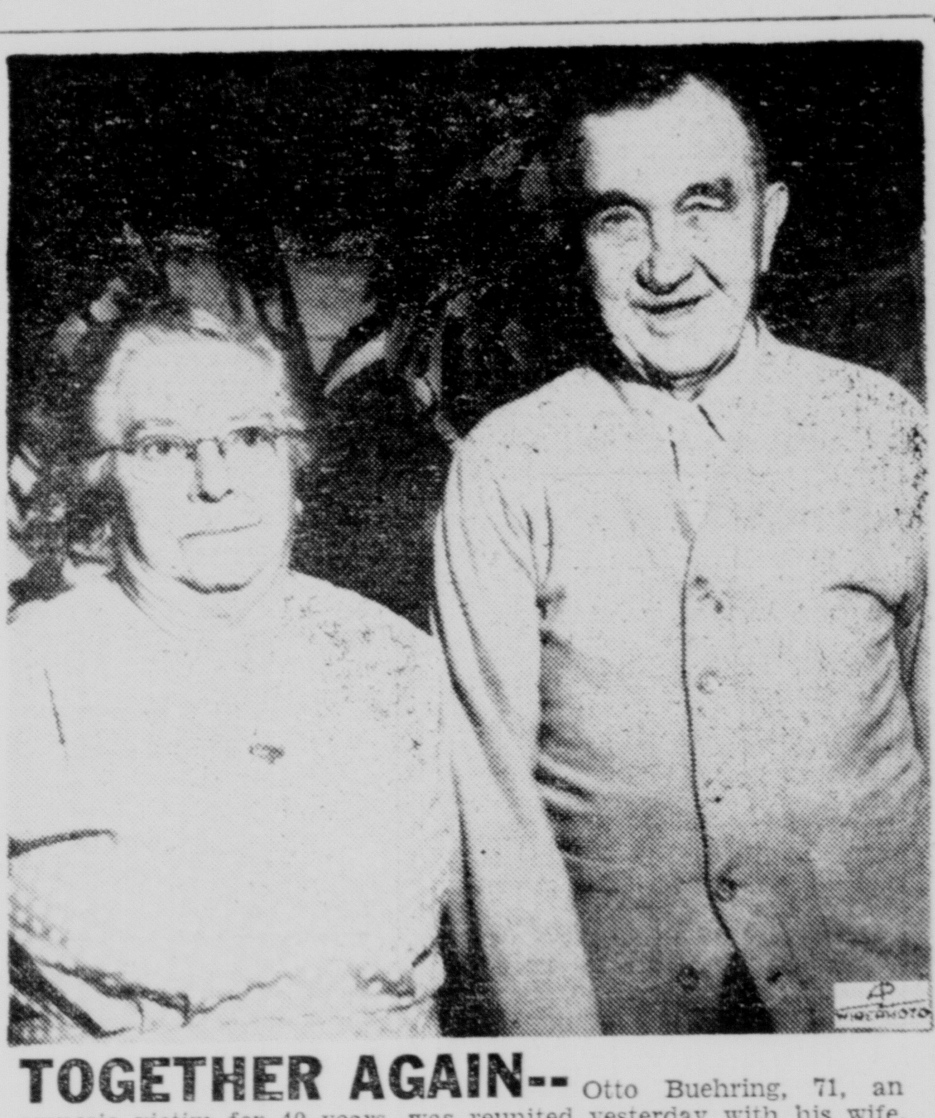
Truman Ends Conferences With Demo Leaders

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 15—(AP)—President Truman concluded conferences today with the Democratic high command without disclosing any plans for the new year.

Nor would he comment on suggestions for another meeting of the foreign ministers of the four big powers to resume negotiations on the Berlin stalemate.



TOGETHER AGAIN-- Otto Buehring, 71, an amnesia victim for 40 years, was reunited yesterday with his wife, Henrietta, at Tampa, Fla. Injured in a Chicago factory accident in 1908, he wandered through the West as a prospector until he recovered his memory recently. He found his wife had married again and become a widow during his absence. (Story at bottom of page)

Neutrals Finish New Compromise Berlin Proposal

Asks Concessions From Both Sides

PARIS, Nov. 15. (AP) — The six "neutral" nations of the United Nations Security Council completed tonight a new compromise proposal on the Berlin crisis calling for concessions from both sides.

A reliable informant who disclosed this said the six nations were prepared to present the proposal if current mediation efforts by top United Nations officials fail.

These efforts came last week in the form of an appeal for direct negotiations on the Berlin question by Trygve Lie, United Nations secretary general, and Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, president of the General Assembly.

Allied Ministers To Meet

The foreign ministers of the three big Western Powers—the United States, Britain and France—were scheduled to meet tomorrow to draft answers to the appeal. Their reply was expected to amount to a rejection of the plea, which called for negotiations between Russia and the Western Powers to end the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

The new compromise proposed by Argentina, Belgium, Canada, China, Colombia and Syria would call on Russia to modify its demand for a simultaneous lifting of the Soviet blockade and a settlement of the currency question. The western nations would be asked to negotiate while the blockade was still partly in effect.

An entirely new factor would be a proposal to have the Security Council name a special committee to supervise lifting the blockade.

This new approach to the problem reportedly was drafted late today at a meeting between Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Atilio Bramuglia, November president of the council, and representatives of the other five neutral council members. It was expected to be presented in a few days to Russia, Britain, France and the United States.

New Compromise Plan

The new compromise plan specifically calls for:

1—Lifting of all travel restrictions on motor roads in Berlin—but not on the railways or canals—within 48 hours after receipt of the communications to the governments involved.

2—Lifting of the railway and canal restrictions by stages along with negotiations on the currency issue which are to begin as soon as the highway blockade is lifted .

3—Travel restrictions are to be lifted entirely and the currency problem is to be settled simultaneously on December 20.

Judy Canova Proves Big Hit Without Band

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15 (AP)—The band walked out on Judy Canova tonight, but the comedy star of stage, screen and radio brought down the house anyway.

An audience of about 8,000 Future Farmers of America and their friends yelled their approval of the comedienne's didoes and called her back for a half dozen encores.

A jurisdictional dispute between the American Federation of Musicians and the American Guild of Variety Artists forced Miss Canova to perform without supporting music. Union musicians are under orders not to play for AGVA acts.

The band played an opening number but walked off when Miss Canova appeared on the stage.

B-17 Reported Missing

MANILA, Tuesday, Nov. 16—(AP)—An American B-17 flying from Port Moresby, New Guinea, to Clark Field with 12 persons aboard was overdue and reported missing somewhere east of Luzon Island today by the United States 13th Air Force.

"Uneducated" Burglars Weld Safe Door Shut

BALTIMORE, Nov. 15 (AP)—Safe burglars went to work with an acetylene torch in the office of a Baltimore theater.

The torch blazed and blazed but the safe wouldn't come open. They gave up in disgust and left their equipment behind, police reported today.

Instead of a cutting torch they had used a welding torch.

They left the safe door closed tighter than they had found it.

Vigorous Labor Dept. Tobin Aim

CINCINNATI, Nov. 15 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin promised the American Federation of Labor today to help build a vigorous, expanded Labor Department. That, he said, would undo work of what he called "the whiffenpoof 80th Congress."

Tobin told the AFL's 67th annual convention the November 2 elections went against a Congress "that believed it could fly backwards in order to keep the winds of progress out of its eyes."

He said welfare of the nation's wage earners required a strong Labor Department. Appropriation slashes by the last Congress reduced the department's size and scope.

Tobin promised to get back the United States Employment Service, which he said was "kidnaped from the Labor Department," and return the United States Conciliation Service to the department. It had operated there for 34 years before the Taft-Hartley Act made it an independent agency in 1947.

The Secretary of Labor told 650 delegates to the convention that "we're not going to be drunk with power as were the leaders of the 80th Congress."

But he said he would work to carry out pledges of the Democratic Party and of President Truman when the 81st Congress convenes.

AFL President William Green, striking the keynote for the 10-day convention, said organized labor which had sought defeat of Taft-Hartley Act supporters in past elections, now should concentrate on turning out members of Congress "who refuse to vote for repeal" of that act.

The AFL's policy-making Executive Council has voted for immediate repeal of the law and restoration of the old Wagner Labor Relations Act, from which to build a new statute.

Embassy Gives Warning; Reds Claim Suhsien

Communists Report Suchow, Gateway To Nanking, Isolated

NANKING, Tuesday, Nov. 16 (AP)—The United States Embassy today advised Americans to leave the war-torn country as the battle for Central China thundered closer to the capital at Nanking.

The warning to some 7,000 non-military personnel came on the heels of a Communist radio claim that Red troops had captured Suhsien, 50 miles south of Suchow.

Suchow, main defense point for Nanking, 200 miles southeast, has been "completely isolated," the Communist broadcast asserted.

Government spokesmen and official newspapers announced on the other hand that the Communists were withdrawing from the northern front of the big Suchow battle.

There are an estimated 7,000 American civilians in China. The figure does not include personnel of the embassy, Economic Cooperation Administration, Army and Navy.

The United States consulates at Tientsin and Peiping have been urging American nationals—business and missionairies, mostly—to leave North China before it is too late to arrange transportation. Communist troops are expected to occupy North China shortly.

The situation has deteriorated rapidly since the government's recent defeats in Manchuria. The warning from the American Embassy was the first addressed to United States civilians throughout China.

Warning Emphasizes Dangers

The embassy and the United States consulate in Shanghai issued similar notices:

"In view of the deteriorating situation and the likelihood that means of exit from China may later be unavailable, all Americans in the Nanking (or Shanghai) consular district who are not prepared to remain under hazardous conditions in areas where they now reside should plan at once to move to places of safety."

The notices said emergency facilities will be available only for a short time.

The warning emphasized the dangers as hostilities reach across the Yangtze. There was no confirmation by government sources that Suchow had fallen. The last reports from pro-government channels declared the Communists had reached 75 miles south of Suchow, which is only 200 miles northwest of Nanking.

Red Claim No Surprise

There was no indication from President Chiang Kai-Shek he was prepared to abandon his Nanking capital. Speculation has been widespread that the government would be moved to Canton or some other city in the south.

The Communist claim of Suchow's capture came as no surprise. It was known here the Suchow garrison had been isolated, with superior Red forces on all sides.

Informed observers expressed doubt the government's forces at Pengpu, midway between Suchow and Nanking, would make more than token resistance because of general demoralization.

Hollington Tong, government spokesman, denied officially Nationalist forces had lost Suchow. He claimed instead "the Communists, in fact, are retreating in a northeastern direction from the Suchow area."

Pilot Killed In Crash Of "Oyster Navy" Plane

RIVA, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—The pilot of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission's patrol plane died today when the amphibian crashed in a marshy South River inlet.

Charles Henry Masters, 27-year old ex-Navy pilot who had taken the fisheries commission job just one week ago, bled to death in the half-submerged cockpit of the "spotter" plane.

Amnesia Victim And Wife Reunited After 40 Years

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 15 (AP) — A 71-year-old man, who was hurt in a factory accident and spent 40 years prospecting for gold before remembering he had a wife and son, was reunited with them today.

Otto Buehring found that his wife, Henrietta, 73, had married again. The second husband, Thomas Johannsen, is dead. The son, Charles, now 42, has taken the name Johannsen and is married himself.

Mrs. Johannsen said she and Buehring were married in the Catholic Church and she considers she is still married to him. She continues to call herself Mrs. Johannsen, however.

Buehring said he liked Florida and thought he would "stop roaming and spend a long time here." For the time being he is staying with his son.

They all had a lot to tell since they were last together, Otto, Henrietta and two-year-old Charles, a happy family in Chicago, back in 1908.

Henrietta and Charles visited her relatives in Holland that year. Otto was to come for them, but he didn't.

Henrietta returned to Chicago with her son and learned Otto had been in an accident at the factory where he was an engineer.

None of his friends knew where he was. All her efforts to find him were vain.

After he had been gone for eight years, Henrietta married Johannsen, who operated a blacksmith shop in Hammond, Ind. In 1918 they came to Tampa. Johannsen later opened a trailer court here which Henrietta still operates.

Otto said he had hunted for gold

Thomas Pleads Innocent To Pay Padding Charge

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas pleaded innocent today to charges of conspiracy growing out of alleged padding of his office payrolls.

Thomas, the retiring chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, was released on $1,000 bond after being fingerprinted at the United States Marshal's office.

The Congressman, re-elected Nov. 2, was indicted a week ago today on charges of fraud and conspiracy involving accusations of salary "kickbacks" from office employes.

Thomas' co-defendant and former secretary, Helen Campbell, will be arraigned tomorrow.

Judge Keech scheduled the trial for January 10.

More Meat, Lower Costs At Grocers Seen In '49

CHICAGO, Nov. 15 (AP)—Housewives! Drool over these forecasts: Cheaper pork chops, more meat at the butcher shops, and lower costs at the grocers.

The pleasant predictions all came out of the annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association today. Experts were making the forecasts.

About those pork chops, there'll be more of them and cheaper, too, said L. H. Simerl. He is associate professor of the Department of Agricultural Economics at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Pork will be cheaper because of the record grain crop forecast, Simerl told the Illinois Farm Bureau Serum Association, meeting in conjunction with the IAA.

The bumper grain crop will bring a larger 1949 spring pig crop—hence cheaper pork prices next fall, Simerl said.

On the other meats, there'll be lots more produced, according to Manager Cecil F. Musser, of the serum association. He said farmers are making plans to market several billion pounds more meat during the next two years than in 1948. Hogs will account for the biggest increase, Musser said.

On other items in the market basket, Manager J. L. Pidcock, of the Illinois Cooperative Locker Association, predicted cheaper food prices through the frozen food locker industry.

Pidcock said locker plants are giving farmers a chance to market nearer their homes, thus cutting the wide spread in price between consumer and producer.

Maritime Strike Extended To Two Canadian Harbors

Big Liners Cancel Scheduled Sailings

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—The East Coast port paralysis caused by a strike of 65,000 AFL dock workers spread into Canada today. It also caused sailings to be cancelled for the largest liners of the United States and Britain.

AFL longshoremen in Halifax and Montreal were ordered to refuse to handle any ships diverted to harbors there as a consequence of the walkout at most of the major ports along the United States eastern seaboard.

At the same time, sailings of the liner America, the United States' largest passenger vessel, and the Queen Elizabeth, British liner which is the world's largest, were cancelled.

The America had been scheduled to sail from here for Europe tomorrow. The Queen Elizabeth had been due to leave Southampton, England, for New York Wednesday.

ECA May Issue Appeal

In Washington, Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman said Marshall Plan officials may ask the longshoremen to handle European recovery cargoes at strike-bound ports if the strike lasts a long time.

Hoffman said special handling might be asked if the tieup gets to the point of endangering the recovery program.

Its extension to the two Canadian harbors heightened the effect of the six-day walkout on shipping companies. Some shippers had begun to divert their vessels to Halifax as a substitute trans-Atlantic port just after the strike began.

J. J. Campbell, head of the Halifax longshoremen, said the port's 2,000 stevedores henceforth would refuse to work on diverted vessels. The same order went out in Montreal.

"We will not become scabs," Campbell said, adding that the union edict applied only to vessels diverted to Halifax.

"We will have no 'hot' ships here," said a union spokesman in Montreal. "Stevedores in Montreal are not strikebreakers," he added.

Food, Fuel To Be Handled

Meanwhile, New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer received union assurances that the strike would not be allowed to interfere with the delivery of vital food and fuel supplies here.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, assured the Mayor during a conference today that tugboats would continue normal food and fuel delivery operations in New

Most Powerful Cruiser Afloat Joins U. S. Navy

BOSTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The U.S.S. Des Moines, deadliest cruiser afloat, joined the Navy tonight after an all-day builder's trial on Massachusetts Bay disclosed no flaws.

Both the Navy and the builders, the Fore River shipyard of the Bethlehem Steel Company, sidestepped mention of the Des Moines' speed—saying only that she could do something more than 30 knots.

Her main battery of nine automatic 8-inch rifles that make the Des Moines the world's most powerful cruiser were silent today. Navy tests will come later. The Navy says they can fire four times faster than any previous weapons of such calibre.

Linked with the guns is an almost magic fire control system which can bring them to bear accurately on targets outside human vision.

Princess, Infant Son Doing Well

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth and the bonny day-old Prince of Edinburgh were said to be doing well tonight.

Throughout the nation and the far reaches of the commonwealth and empire Britons celebrated the birth of the infant who probably will be their next king. There was cannon firing, bell ringing, toasts and cheers. Trumpets and bands blared.

The Prince, second in line to the throne, weighed seven pounds, six ounces at birth last night. Physicians said that was almost the perfect weight for a male first-born.

Sir John Weir and Sir William Gilliatt, who assisted at the birth, called at Buckingham Palace tonight to see the Princess.

A record of more than 4,000 telegrams of congratulations were received at the palace.

President Truman and Gen. Eisenhower were among those sending messages. In Paris, the Duke of Windsor, great uncle of the child, wished the baby "every possible happiness." In time the child doubtless will be designated Prince of Wales, a title last held by the Duke before his brief reign as Edward VIII.

Mackenzie King Resigns As Canadian Minister

OTTAWA, Nov. 15 (AP)—William Lyon Mackenzie King resigned today as Prime Minister after having headed the Canadian government for more than 21 years. He was succeeded by Louis Stephen St. Laurent, a French Canadian lawyer.

King's resignation marked the end of an era in Canada. He had held office longer than any British Commonwealth prime minister.

Both King and St. Laurent are members of the Liberal Party. King, 73, retired by choice. He has been ill and plans to take life easy. His successor is 66.

St. Laurent was sworn in at 3:45 p. m. EST. Acceptance of King's resignation had been held up about five hours, apparently so there would be no gap in the continuity of government.

Credit Firms To Register

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Most installment credit firms must register with a federal reserve bank by November 19, the Federal Reserve Board said today. Registration statements provide the means by which the board enforces the controls that were re-imposed on installment credit September 20.

Consumer-Paid Social Insurance Backed By Lewis

Federal-Financed Benefits Opposed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—John L. Lewis said today the cost of social insurance covering workers should be part of the selling price of the product they make—not paid for out of federal tax money.

This theory appeared in the interview published today and copyrighted by the "U. S. News and World Report," weekly news magazine.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, said that the notion that the government should pay pension, sickness and health insurance benefits for workers generally is contrary to the free enterprise tradition.

Points To UMW Plan

Instead, Lewis said, workers and employers should negotiate plans like the one his union has bargained out in the coal industry. He said coal prices to consumers have been increased to permit payment of a 20-cent royalty on every ton of coal produced for financing $100 a month pension as well as death, health, disability and other benefits for miners.

"We hold that the proper care of the human element in the mining industry or any other major industry should properly be charged to the cost of production and not assessed against the taxpayers as a whole," Lewis said.

"To the degree, we think it's a step in the direction of free government. It's contrary to the concept that the government should do everything for its citizens.

Social Security "Inadequate"

"The industry should do it, and the commodity should bear the cost of it—whatever that may be. This is a chance for labor and management to take care of these problems and eliminate the necessity for the government to build up huge, inefficient and costly administrative bureaus to try to do the task in a less efficient way."

Lewis was asked specifically whether his plan would replace the present social security plan. One of the campaign pledges of Presi-

"Tip" Expected

Car Dealer Tells Probers Trade-Ins Taken For Least And Sold For Most

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—A Washington automobile dealer testified today that his firm takes in used cars as trade-ins "for as little as we can" and sells them "for as much as we can."

"I think it is good business," Raymond J. Kearney, co-partner in the Kearney Oldsmobile Company, told a House Subcommittee on Trade Practices. The committee is inquiring into new and used car deals in the Washington metropolitan area.

One of the Kearney firm's salesmen, William Manuel, testified that he always expected a "tip" from the buyer when he sold a car and he didn't think $500 was too much.

Kearney was asked by John Reddan, committee counsel, about selling accessories on new cars.

"I sell all that I can," Kearney replied. "We sell them everything that is on the car."

Reddan said that the Kearney company's markup (price set by the dealer over what he pays for a car) on trade-ins was 95.4 per cent.

"That's less than the national average," Kearney retorted.

Reddan said in reply that the District of Columbia average is 43 per cent.

H. F. Banks, Lansing, Mich., assistant general sales manager for Oldsmobile Division of General Motors Corporation, testified that Oldsmobile dealers are not agents of the corporation. He said they are independent contractors operating under a selling agreement or franchise for a certain period.

Banks said that GM ships "extra" (accessories) on cars when ordered by dealers and that the corporation's policies with regard to dealers are "in the form of recommendations."

The committee also questioned Robert Tiger, Kearney sales manager, about his handling of trade-ins, and then checked his testimony with a number of customers and used car dealers who were put on the stand.

The testimony showed that in seven cases Tiger had taken in old cars on trade-ins for new Oldsmobiles and then turned the trade-ins over to used car dealers at profits ranging as high as $600 a car.

Before Manuel took the stand, he

Court Upholds Ban On Claims For Portal Pay

Rules Ford Motors Can Operate Auto Financing Company

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Supreme Court decided in effect today that Congress acted legally when it voided workers' claims for some $6,000,000,000 in retroactive "portal-to-portal" pay.

Portal-to-portal pay means pay for traveling from a factory gate to the actual place of work, for washing up, for sharpening tools, etc. Claims for such pay were sharply restricted by Congress when it passed the portal-to-portal act.

The Supreme Court refused to review the dismissal by the United States District Court at Baltimore of back pay claims filed by 13 employes of B. H. Hubbert and Son, Inc., prior to passage of the act.

The Baltimore court threw out the suit when the company contended that the new law, signed May 14, 1947, retroactively cancelled such claims. Its action was upheld by the United States Circuit Court at Richmond.

The high court dismissed the workers' appeal without comment today. It was the tribunal's first action on the validity of any portion of the portal-to-portal act.

Action On Other Cases Deferred

The court deferred action, however, on several other cases based almost wholly on contentions that the law is unconstitutional.

In general, the act barred existing and future claims for portal-to-portal pay unless they are covered by employer-worker contracts or are valid because of tradition or practice.

In other actions today, the Supreme Court:

1. Rejected a request that it rule on the validity of the injunction issued last July against a threatened nationwide strike by raildoad workers. The government contended that any ruling by the court would be merely "an advisory opinion" since the dispute was settled while an appeal was pending. The high court does not give advisory opinions.

2. Lifted a lower court order under which the Ford Motor Company was forbidden to own an automobile finance company or to try to persuade dealers and car buyers to finance deals through any particular company. The decision was by a 4-3 vote.

Major Part Of Act Upheld

While the portal-to-portal case did not involve constitutionality of the entire act, the court's action did uphold the validity of the major portion of it, that banning retroactive pay claims.

The Maryland workers filed their claim after the Supreme Court issued its famous Mt. Clemens (Michigan) Potter Company ruling.

The court held in that case that the 1938 Fair Labor Standards Act entitled workers to pay for the time they spent getting to and from the actual site of their jobs and in preparing for work, provided the time thus spent was substantial.

A huge volume of back pay claims was filed all over the country in the wake of the decision. Congress then acted to outlaw such suits.

Truman Ends Conferences With Demo Leaders

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 15—(AP)—President Truman concluded conferences today with the Democratic high command without disclosing any plans for the new year.

Nor would he comment on suggestions for another meeting of the foreign ministers of the four big powers to resume negotiations on the Berlin stalemate.

TOGETHER AGAIN-- Otto Buehring, 71, an amnesia victim for 40 years, was reunited yesterday with his wife, Henrietta, at Tampa, Fla. Injured in a Chicago factory accident in 1908, he wandered through the West as a prospector until he recovered his memory recently. He found his wife had married again and become a widow during his absence. (Story at bottom of page)

Neutrals Finish New Compromise Berlin Proposal

Asks Concessions From Both Sides

PARIS, Nov. 15, (AP) — The six "neutral" nations of the United Nations Security Council completed tonight a new compromise proposal on the Berlin crisis calling for concessions from both sides.

A reliable informant who disclosed this said the six nations were prepared to present the proposal if current mediation efforts by top United Nations officials fail.

These efforts came last week in the form of an appeal for direct negotiations on the Berlin question by Trygve Lie, United Nations secretary general, and Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, president of the General Assembly.

Allied Ministers To Meet

The foreign ministers of the three big Western Powers — the United States, Britain and France—were scheduled to meet tomorrow to draft answers to the appeal. Their reply was expected to amount to a rejection of the plea, which called for negotiations between Russia and the Western Powers to end the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

The new compromise proposed by Argentina, Belgium, Canada, China, Colombia and Syria would call on Russia to modify its demand for a simultaneous lifting of the Soviet blockade and a settlement of the currency question. The western nations would be asked to negotiate while the blockade was still partly in effect.

An entirely new factor would be a proposal to have the Security Council name a special committee to supervise lifting the blockade.

This new approach to the problem reportedly was drafted late today at a meeting between Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Atilio Bramuglia, November president of the council, and representatives of the other five neutral council members. It was expected to be presented in a few days to Russia, Britain, France and the United States.

New Compromise Plan

The new compromise plan specifically calls for:

1—Lifting of all travel restrictions on motor roads in Berlin—but not on the railways or canals—within 48 hours after receipt of the communications to the governments involved.

2—Lifting of the railway and canal restrictions by stages along with negotiations on the currency issue which are to begin as soon as the highway blockade is lifted .

3—Travel restrictions are to be lifted entirely and the currency problem is to be settled simultaneously on December 20.

Judy Canova Proves Big Hit Without Band

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15 (AP)—The band walked out on Judy Canova tonight, but the comedy star of stage, screen and radio brought down the house anyway.

An audience of about 8,000 Future Farmers of America and their friends yelled their approval of the comedienne's didoes and called her back for a half dozen encores.

A jurisdictional dispute between the American Federation of Musicians and the American Guild of Variety Artists forced Miss Canova to perform without supporting music. Union musicians are under orders not to play for AGVA acts.

The band played an opening number but walked off when Miss Canova appeared on the stage.

B-17 Reported Missing

MANILA, Tuesday, Nov. 16—(AP)—An American B-17 flying from Port Moresby, New Guinea, to Clark Field with 12 persons aboard was overdue and reported missing somewhere east of Luzon Island today by the United States 13th Air Force.

"Uneducated" Burglars Weld Safe Door Shut

BALTIMORE, Nov. 15 (AP)—Safe burglars went to work with an acetylene torch in the office of a Baltimore theater.

The torch blazed and blazed but the safe wouldn't come open. They gave up in disgust and left their equipment behind, police reported today.

Instead of a cutting torch they had used a welding torch.

They left the safe door closed tighter than they had found it.

Vigorous Labor Dept. Tobin Aim

CINCINNATI, Nov. 15 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin promised the American Federation of Labor today to help build a vigorous, expanded Labor Department. That, he said, would undo work of what he called "the whiffenpoof 80th Congress."

Tobin told the AFL's 67th annual convention the November 2 elections went against a Congress "that believed it could fly backwards in order to keep the winds of progress out of its eyes."

He said welfare of the nation's wage earners required a strong Labor Department. Appropriation slashes by the last Congress reduced the department's size and scope.

Tobin promised to get back the United States Employment Service, which he said was "kidnaped from the Labor Department," and return the United States Conciliation Service to the department. It had operated there for 34 years before the Taft-Hartley Act made it an independent agency in 1947.

The Secretary of Labor told 650 delegates to the convention that "we're not going to be drunk with power as were the leaders of the 80th Congress."

But he said he would work to carry out pledges of the Democratic Party and of President Truman when the 81st Congress convenes.

AFL President William Green, striking the keynote for the 10-day convention, said organized labor which had sought defeat of Taft-Hartley Act supporters in past elections, now should concentrate on turning out members of Congress "who refuse to vote for repeal" of that act.

The AFL's policy-making Executive Council has voted for immediate repeal of the law and restoration of the old Wagner Labor Relations Act, from which to build a new statute.

Embassy Gives Warning; Reds Claim Suhsien

Communists Report Suchow, Gateway To Nanking, Isolated

NANKING, Tuesday, Nov. 16 (AP)—The United States Embassy today advised Americans to leave the war-torn country as the battle for Central China thundered closer to the capital at Nanking.

The warning to some 7,000 non-military personnel came on the heels of a Communist radio claim that Red troops had captured Suhsien, 50 miles south of Suchow.

Suchow, main defense point for Nanking, 200 miles southeast, has been "completely isolated," the Communist broadcast asserted.

Government spokesmen and official newspapers announced on the other hand that the Communists were withdrawing from the northern front of the big Suchow battle.

There are an estimated 7,000 American civilians in China. The figure does not include personnel of the embassy, Economic Cooperation Administration, Army and Navy.

The United States consulates at Tientsin and Peiping have been urging American nationals—business and missionairies, mostly—to leave North China before it is too late to arrange transportation. Communist troops are expected to occupy North China shortly.

The situation has deteriorated rapidly since the government's recent defeats in Manchuria. The warning from the American Embassy was the first addressed to United States civilians throughout China.

Warning Emphasizes Dangers

The embassy and the United States consulate in Shanghai issued similar notices:

"In view of the deteriorating situation and the likelihood that means of exit from China may later be unavailable, all Americans in the Nanking (or Shanghai) consular district who are not prepared to remain under hazardous conditions in areas where they now reside should plan at once to move to places of safety."

The notices said emergency facilities will be available only for a short time.

The warning emphasized the dangers as hostilities reach across the Yangtze. There was no confirmation by government sources that Suchow had fallen. The last reports from pro-government channels declared the Communists had reached 75 miles south of Suchow, which is only 200 miles northwest of Nanking.

Red Claim No Surprise

There was no indication from President Chiang Kai-Shek he was prepared to abandon his Nanking capital. Speculation has been widespread that the government would be moved to Canton or some other city in the south.

The Communist claim of Suchow's capture came as no surprise. It was known here the Suchow garrison had been isolated, with superior Red forces on all sides.

Informed observers expressed doubt the government's forces at Pengpu, midway between Suchow and Nanking, would make more than token resistance because of general demoralization.

Hollington Tong, government spokesman, denied officially Nationalist forces had lost Suchow. He claimed instead "the Communists, in fact, are retreating in a northeastern direction from the Suchow area."

Pilot Killed In Crash Of "Oyster Navy" Plane

RIVA, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—The pilot of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission's patrol plane died today when the amphibian crashed in a marshy South River inlet.

Charles Henry Masters, 27-year old ex-Navy pilot who had taken the fisheries commission job just one week ago, bled to death in the half-submerged cockpit of the "spotter" plane.

Amnesia Victim And Wife Reunited After 40 Years

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 15 (AP) — A 71-year-old man, who was hurt in a factory accident and spent 40 years prospecting for gold before remembering he had a wife and son, was reunited with them today.

Otto Buehring found that his wife, Henrietta, 73, had married again. The second husband, Thomas Johnannsen, is dead. The son, Charles, now 42, has taken the name Johnannsen and is married himself.

Mrs. Johannsen said she and Buehring were married in the Catholic Church and she considers she is still married to him. She continues to call herself Mrs. Johannsen, however.

Buehring said he liked Florida and thought he would "stop roaming and spend a long time here." For the time being he is staying with his son.

They all had a lot to tell since they were last together, Otto, Henrietta and two-year-old Charles, a happy family in Chicago, back in 1908.

Henrietta and Charles visited her relatives in Holland that year. Otto was to come for them, but he didn't.

Henrietta returned to Chicago with her son and learned Otto had been in an accident at the factory where he was an engineer.

None of his friends knew where he was. All her efforts to find him were vain.

After he had been gone for eight years, Henrietta married Johannsen, who operated a blacksmith shop in Hammond, Ind. In 1918 they came to Tampa. Johannsen later opened a trailer court here which Henrietta still operates.

Otto said he had hunted for gold

Court Spares Rod In Draft Cases

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15. (AP)—Overruling a government attorney who claimed the defendants were trying to be martyrs, United States District Judge J. Cullen Ganey spared the rod today in dealing with two youths who refused to register for the peacetime draft.

He gave one youth a week to decide wether to "do something substantial toward the country's draft effort" or go to the jail. The other youth he released in custody of the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers) to work in China.

J. Newton Garver, 20, Buffalo, N. Y., was given the week of decision; James S. Lovett, 23, Falsington, Pa., was released in custody of the Quakers. Garver is a student at Swarthmore College.

Protesting the decisions, United States Attorney Edward A. Kallick told Judge Ganey: "We cannot be too lenient when thousands—perhaps millions—of prospective draft registrants are watching the disposition of this case closely."

Garver, who pleaded no defense to the charge, was asked by Judge Ganey why he didn't register for the draft and then ask for classification as a conscientious objector.

"I would prefer to stay at home with my wife," replied Garver, "and live in the ivy halls of Swarthmore."

"That would be nice for you," said the judge, "while two or three million boys, some of whom may never come back, go out and defend the country for you."

"Very Interesting," Lewis Says Of Research Plant

LIBRARY, Pa., Nov. 15. (AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, came to this little Pennsylvania community today to attend the official opening of a research plant which may open the way to new markets to the bituminous coal industry.

"Very interesting, very interesting," was Lewis' comment as he and come of the nation's top industrial executives were escorted through the $500,000 coal gasification and carbonization pilot plant of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company. The coal company and the Standard Oil Development Company will conduct research allied to the synthetic production of gasoline and liquid fuels.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok told the Political Committee that in addition to incorporation of the Israeli-held half of the Holy City into the new Jewish state, Israel insists on administration of Haifa and Lydda.

He said these are Israel' "irreducible" territorial demand.

U. Of Md. Wants FAO Home At College Park

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, asked today that the permanent home of the United Nations' agricultural organization be located on the university's campus at nearby College Park.

In a letter to the Undersecretary of Agriculture, which was given to the delegates attending the FAO's fourth annual conference here, Dr. Byrd said:

"Recently there came to the attention of the University of Maryland the fact that the Food and Agriculural Organization of the United Nations is seeking permanent headquarters.

"Because of its interest in the field of agriculture and because of the unique position that it occupies as a state university, laying emphasis on teaching, research, extension marketing and home demonstration work in the field of agriculture, and because of its close relation to various departments of the federal government, the University of Maryland is interested in having the proposed headquarters located at College Park x x x."

Manuel said he thought the practice of "tipping" car salesmen was general over the country.

Ryan also said that shipments of Army cargoes would not be affected but he repeated the union refusal to handle Marshall Plan shipments abroad.

An indication that the federal government might take a major hand in the dispute came from O'Dwyer who said he had talked by telephone with Cyrus S. Ching, director of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Ching, the Mayor said, agreed the stoppage now constituted a matter for the government to settle. There was no indication, however, what course would be taken.

The no-strike order was issued by the Federal District Court here, over union objections that the Taft-Hartley Act and the Railway Labor Act bar such injunctions.

About four years ago, he said, his memory began to return, but not until recent months did he recover full recollection. Then he wrote relatives and obtained Henrietta's address.

Next he wrote her to see if she would welcome a visit from him after all these years.

Henrietta said "yes," and now, with their preliminary three score years and ten out of the way, they are ready to start life together all over again.

The Chinese Communists, having overrun Manchuria and struck at the big Nationalist base of Suchow in Central China, have entered Chengteh, capital of Jehol Province and pushed southward toward the Great Wall.

Chengteh, 110 miles northeast of Peiping, is a natural base for a major drive on this big city—formerly China's capital. Pro-government reports said the Reds already had reached Kupeikou, only 70 miles northeast of Peiping.

The Communists were described as "making good progress."

Other pro-government sources acknowledged the Reds had also broken into Paoting, capital of Hopeh Province 90 miles southwest of here. It was not clear whether the walled city was completely in Communist hands.

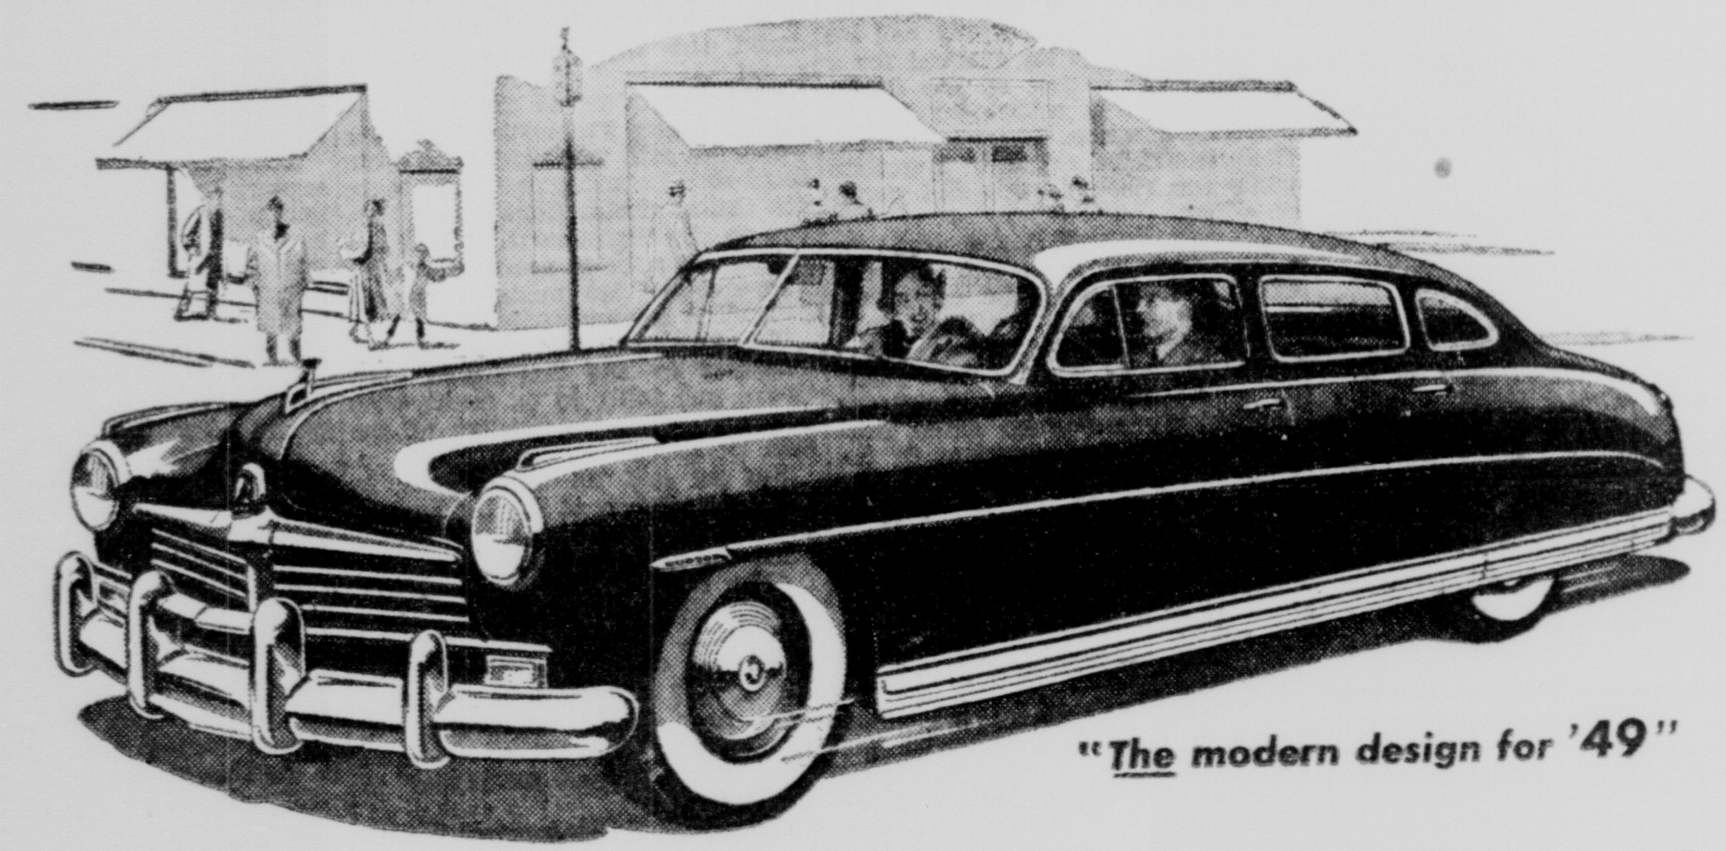
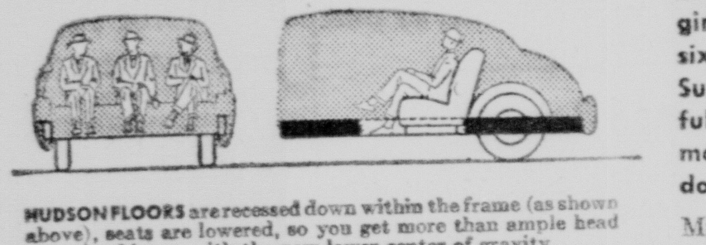
You're invited to drive the New Hudson—the car that's nimble and rugged beyond anything you've known before!



"The modern design for '49"



HUDSON FLOORS are recessed down within the frame (as shown above), seats are lowered, so you get more than ample head room in this car with the new lower center of gravity.

YOU RIDE DOWN within a base frame (as shown above), and rear seats are positioned ahead of the rear wheels so that full body width becomes available for wonderfully roomy seats. Box-section steel girders completely encircle and protect the passenger compartment.

• • •

TRY AUTOMATIC GEAR SHIFTING in forward speeds as provided by Hudson's Drive-Master transmission—by far the easiest of all ways to drive. You can accelerate as long and as fast as you like in pick-up gear, then lift your toe momentarily, and you're in high. The shift into high comes only when you are ready! Button control on the instrument panel provides instant change to conventional driving if ever desired. Drive-Master transmission is optional on all New Hudsons at small extra cost.

Come in, try Hudson with the all-new, high-compression Super-Six engine (the most powerful American six built today) or the masterful Super-Eight. Both provide wonderfully alert power for a new type of motor car with an exclusive "step-down" design.

Millions say the New Hudson is the reigning beauty in the automobile parade—but you can't really know this great car until you drive it—and you're invited to do just that—now!

Hudson, with the new, 121 h.p., high-compression Super-Six engine or the masterful Super-Eight, takes you away with new zip, and outstrips the field with staying power.

But amazingly alive engines aren't the whole story of this star performer for '49. Hudson has a new hug-the-road way of going in cross-winds and on every conceivable kind of highway.

This all happens because—as is widely known—the lower to the ground a car can be built, the more stability it will have. Hudson has the lowest center of gravity in any American stock car!

This remarkable car has floors recessed down within a base frame (Hudson is the only car you step down into), enabling Hudson to build the lowest car on the highway, only five feet from ground to top—while maintaining more than adequate head room!

You sense a delightful conformity to the road the minute you begin to ride, and this gives you a grand feeling of safe well-being! This feeling is further enhanced by the ease with which this car is operated, and by the quiet with which Hudson glides along.

Come in, let us show you why Hudson's great engines and fabulous "step-down" design principle put this car so far ahead it is a protected investment in motor car value!

Court Spares Rod In Draft Cases

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15. (AP)—Overruling a government attorney who claimed the defendants were trying to be martyrs, United States District Judge J. Cullen Ganey spared the rod today in dealing with two youths who refused to register for the peacetime draft.

He gave one youth a week to decide wether to "do something substantial toward the country's draft effort" or go to the jail. The other youth he released in custody of the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers) to work in China.

J. Newton Garver, 20, Buffalo, N. Y., was given the week of decision: James S. Lovett, 23, Falsington, Pa., was released in custody of the Quakers. Garver is a student at Swarthmore College.

Protesting the decisions, United States Attorney Edward A. Kallick told Judge Ganey: "We cannot be too lenient when thousands—perhaps millions—of prospective draft registrants are watching the disposition of this case closely."

Garver, who pleaded no defense to the charge, was asked by Judge Ganey why he didn't register for the draft and then ask for classification as a conscientious objector.

"I would prefer to stay at home with my wife," replied Garver, "and live in the ivy halls of Swarthmore."

"That would be nice for you," said the judge, "while two or three million boys, some of whom may never come back, go out and defend the country for you."

"Very Interesting," Lewis Says Of Research Plant

LIBRARY, Pa., Nov. 15. (AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, came to this little Pennsylvania community today to attend the official opening of a research plant which may open the way to new markets to the bituminous coal industry.

"Very interesting, very interesting," was Lewis' comment as he and come of the nation's top industrial executives were escorted through the $500,000 coal gasification and carbonization pilot plant of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company. The coal company and the Standard Oil Development Company will conduct research allied to the synthetic production of gasoline and liquid fuels.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok told the Political Committee that in addition to incorporation of the Israeli-held half of the Holy City into the new Jewish state, Israel insists on administration of Haifa and Lydda.

He said these are Israel' "irreducible" territorial demand.

U. Of Md. Wants FAO Home At College Park

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, asked today that the permanent home of the United Nations' agricultural organization be located on the university's campus at nearby College Park.

In a letter to the Undersecretary of Agriculture, which was given to the delegates attending the FAO's fourth annual conference here, Dr. Byrd said:

"Recently there came to the attention of the University of Maryland the fact that the Food and Agriculural Organization of the United Nations is seeking permanent headquarters.

"Because of its interest in the field of agriculture and because of the unique position that it occupies as a state university, laying emphasis on teaching, research, extension marketing and home demonstration work in the field of agriculture, and because of its close relation to various departments of the federal government, the University of Maryland is interested in having the proposed headquarters located at College Park x x x."

Manuel testified that (a) he had never asked a customer for a tip, but took "what ever they gave me"; (b) that he used "different tactics of different customers" to encourage tips; (c) that he kept the tips himself, and (d) that his employers did not know about the practice or they would have "fired me."

Manuel said he thought the practice of "tipping" car salesmen was general over the country.

Ryan also said that shipments of Army cargoes would not be affected but he repeated the union refusal to handle Marshall Plan shipments abroad.

An indication that the federal government might take a major hand in the dispute came from O'Dwyer who said he had talked by telephone with Cyrus S. Ching, director of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Ching, the Mayor said, agreed the stoppage now constituted a matter for the government to settle. There was no indication, however, what course would be taken.

The no-strike order was issued by the Federal District Court here, over union objections that the Taft-Hartley Act and the Railway Labor Act bar such injunctions.

The dispute was settled while an appeal was pending and the government asked that the injunction be dissolved. But the Court of Appeals stayed all proceedings pending Supreme Court action.

About four years ago, he said, his memory began to return, but not until recent months did he recover full recollection. Then he wrote relatives and obtained Henrietta's address.

Next he wrote her to see if she would welcome a visit from him after all these years.

Henrietta said "yes," and now, with their preliminary three score years and ten out of the way, they are ready to start life together all over again.

The Chinese Communists, having overrun Manchuria and struck at the big Nationalist base of Suchow in Central China, have entered Chengteh, capital of Jehol Province and pushed southward toward the Great Wall.

Chengteh, 110 miles northeast of Peiping, is a natural base for a major drive on this big city—formerly China's capital. Pro-government reports said the Reds already had reached Kupeikou, only 70 miles northeast of Peiping.

The Communists were described as "making good progress."

Other pro-government sources acknowledged the Reds had also broken into Paoting, capital of Hopeh Province 90 miles southwest of here. It was not clear whether the walled city was completely in Communist hands.

MEET THE

Star Performer for '49!

You're invited to drive the New Hudson—the car that's nimble and rugged beyond anything you've known before!

"The modern design for '49"

HUDSON FLOORS are recessed down within the frame (as shown above), seats are lowered, so you get more than ample head room in this car with the new lower center of gravity.

YOU RIDE DOWN within a base frame (as shown above), and rear seats are positioned ahead of the rear wheels so that full body width becomes available for wonderfully roomy seats. Box-section steel girders completely encircle and protect the passenger compartment.

• • •

TRY AUTOMATIC GEAR SHIFTING in forward speeds as provided by Hudson's Drive-Master transmission—by far the easiest of all ways to drive. You can accelerate as long and as fast as you like in pick-up gear, then lift your toe momentarily, and you're in high. The shift into high comes only when you are ready! Button control on the instrument panel provides instant change to conventional driving if ever desired. Drive-Master transmission is optional on all New Hudsons at small extra cost.

Come in, try Hudson with the all-new, high-compression Super-Six engine (the most powerful American six built today) or the masterful Super-Eight. Both provide wonderfully alert power for a new type of motor car with an exclusive "step-down" design.

Millions say the New Hudson is the reigning beauty in the automobile parade—but you can't really know this great car until you drive it—and you're invited to do just that—now!

Hudson, with the new, 121 h.p., high-compression Super-Six engine or the masterful Super-Eight, takes you away with new zip, and outstrips the field with staying power.

But amazingly alive engines aren't the whole story of this star performer for '49. Hudson has a new hug-the-road way of going in cross-winds and on every conceivable kind of highway.

This all happens because—as is widely known—the lower to the ground a car can be built, the more stability it will have. Hudson has the lowest center of gravity in any American stock car!

This remarkable car has floors recessed down within a base frame (Hudson is the only car you step down into), enabling Hudson to build the lowest car on the highway, only five feet from ground to top—while maintaining more than adequate head room!

You sense a delightful conformity to the road the minute you begin to ride, and this gives you a grand feeling of safe well-being! This feeling is further enhanced by the ease with which this car is operated, and by the quiet with which Hudson glides along.

Come in, let us show you why Hudson's great engines and fabulous "step-down" design principle put this car so far ahead it is a protected investment in motor car value!

The many important advantages in Hudson's new "step-down" design are explained in a booklet available at the nearest Hudson dealer's.

Just Between Us

If You Stood Her Up She Has Every Right To Be Angry

By NANCY MOTTRAM

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I have been going steady with a girl for almost a year. Recently, we broke up because I stood her up to go to a movie with a friend from out of town, and she made an issue of it. I still care a lot for her, but she won't listen to any explanation. When we meet, she turns away and refuses to speak. What can I do to get her back?"

Nancy Mottram

(A) No matter how hard you hunt, the excuses for standing up someone are very, very few. And, frankly, yours isn't good enough to rate forgetting and forgiving right away. But if it's the first time it's happened in the year you've been dating her, she should be willing to give you another chance. Your best bet is to see her and insist on talking it out—not calling up and having her hang up in the middle of your first sentence. Go over to her house some evening and explain. If there's any chance for a reconciliation, it won't be improved if you wait and bide your time.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: Recently, I noticed a certain girl whom I'd like to ask for a date. I don't know her, but a friend of mine told me her name. She doesn't know me either, but I'd like to get acquainted. How should I go about it?

(A) The easiest way would be to find a mutual friend and have him introduce you. Once that's taken care of, wait a few days and then call her for a date. It shouldn't be hard to locate someone who will arrange it, and from then on, it's up to you.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I broke up with a boy not long ago because I didn't think I cared for him any more. I've thought it over since, and now I'm convinced I was wrong. I haven't heard from him since that day, and now and then I meet him at a party, but he's always with another girl. I'd like to make up with him, but although he always speaks, he doesn't act as though he's still interested. I'd like to date him again, but what can I do?"

(A) When you told him you were through, he took you at your word, and isn't spending his time brooding about your break-up. You can't very well go to him, tell him that it was all a mistake, and say that you wish you two could start over again. The only thing you can do is to get into conversations with him whenever you do see him, and after a while, he may ask you for a date. But don't sit home and wait by the phone, it may never happen. Go out with other fellows and wait and see.

Miss Mottram wants to help with your problems. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Health Of Mind

There can be no genuine health of body without health of mind. Yet an endless number of people are concerned about the health of their bodies, while neglecting the health of their minds.

Often is quoted the famous proverb from the Old Testament, "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he." Our thoughts control us. They give us both health and illness, according to how we shape them. Happy, constructive thinking can save many a Doctor's bill. Often the Doctor can tell you nothing more than to think straight and clean! But his pills can't do this.

I once attended the performance of a popular play. I regretted it afterward because of its sordid parts. Upon leaving the theatre I caught the remarks of two men who sat next to me. One said: "Such a play leaves a bad taste in my mind." That is the way I felt. On the other hand, I have come from plays and pictures that have uplifted and stimulated me in both mind and body after the experience.

It is far more important to keep the mind in health than the body, for if the mind is healthy the chances are that the body cannot help but be the same. I like the Y.M.C.A. emblem of Body, Mind and Spirit. But the key to all is the mind—a healthy mind.

You get a healthy mind by giving it the right food and nourishment. Books and contact with interesting and instructive people help to keep the mind in a healthy condition. Segregating oneself, self-pitying, and becoming a habitual complainer are like feeding the mind poison. Actually it is just that. But what a powerful antidote to ill health of body is that simple and universal remedy—cheerfulness!

Every message or impact of beauty, of good or ill report leaves its influence upon the mind. If we are thrilled and made happy in mind, the body reacts in the same manner. The physician can do much to relieve an ailing body, but God and yourself together hold the secret remedy to happiness and health of mind.

Civil Rights Issue Is Being Complicated

One certain result of the presidential election will be a struggle between President Truman and the Southern Democrats—regulars as well as Dixiecrats —over civil rights. Many Southerners who oppose poll taxes, deplore racial segregation and abhor lynching will fight any attempt to use Federal power to enforce civil rights in the South.

These Southerners will be lucky if the problem is not complicated by United Nations intervention in the United States. That is a likely prospect under the so-called "International Bill of Rights," now being worked out by a UN commission in Paris.

The aim of this declaration is to "guarantee" the basic human rights of all individuals, everywhere. The document will include 28 articles, of which 12 have already been approved. If the General Assembly endorses it, the "bill of rights" will be submitted to the United States, and if Congress approves, the document will become the law of this land. The commission now talks only of "moral enforcement," but many delegates hope to write a treaty of enforcement next year which would apply sanctions against any country violating the declaration.

Much of the time at Paris has been used up by Russian delegate Pavlov, in violent attacks on racial discrimination in the United States and the British commonwealth. Nevertheless, he has approved most of the clauses adopted so far. This is regarded as an encouraging sign in some quarters.

Why should it be? Russia is now violating most of the 12 basic human rights already approved. Nobody can suppose that the Kremlin will ever grant all Russians "freedom before the law," or protection against "arbitrary interference with privacy, home and family," or "freedom of movement" inside and outside the state. In fact, the whole idea of a bill of rights within the shadow of the Iron Curtain is an absurdity.

Why, then, does Russia approve this document? Obviously, because it gives her a propaganda weapon against sections of the United States and an instrument for endless trouble-making. Russia could ask nothing better than an international treaty that would force the Federal Government of the United States to intervene in local affairs wherever Communist agents cared to make charges.

The United States assuredly has a problem of civil rights, which it must solve in its own way. We cannot imagine an American Senate ratifying a treaty that would empower any international body to interfer in American domestic affairs. Incidentally, the UN commission now writing the "international bill of rights," a difficult legal task if there ever was one, includes just three representatives of the English-speaking nations—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, chairman, an Australian military man and a British trades union official.

The Palestine Issue And The Security Council

While the United Nations Security Council still anxiously debates the Palestine problem, the war in the Holy Land is actually being won by Israel, thanks to military force.

The American chief of staff to the American acting mediator is said to have advised the Arab states to make peace now, since Israel controls the situation. Whether or not Brig. Gen. Riley actually made that statement, he might well have done so. There are reports of peace talks in the offing between Israel and one or more of the Arab states.

In view of these hard facts, all the talk in the Council about turning the broken truce into a formal armistice has an air of unreality. Under the UN Charter, it is obligated to keep the peace. But it has no power to enforce peace. In a case like Palestine, with its attendant political conflicts, the Council lacks an effective will for peace. Some of its members believe that the cause of Jewish independence is just hence, they do not vigorously oppose the use of force to make good that cause.

The great power conflicts over the Palestine problem are deep and far-reaching. These have led to bitterness, not between Russia and the Western democracies but within the Western camp. For reasons largely of foreign policy, Britain has favored UN truce orders and even collective sanctions to stop a war which Israel has been winning. For reasons largely of domestic politics, the United States has winked at truce violations by either side and opposed sanctions against anybody. Our policy has been complicated by conflicts behind the scenes between President Truman and his Secretary of State. But in the main, Britain supports the Arabs and the United States favors the Jews.

What happened to the UN Security Council in this diplomatic free-for-all? The Council loses prestige and is handicapped in dealing with any future conflict. It is now in the embarrassing position of being forced to recognize a result won by military force, while continuing to denounce the use of force in international disputes.

The situation is one to make the gods laugh out loud, but for ordinary human beings it is not funny.

One Tax Remains For Which Reason Has Passed

One tax remains for which reason has passed. This is the war tax of 15 per cent on railroad passenger fares. The railroad ticket agents collect it at company expense and hand it on to the Government. It was not imposed to increase national revenue but—as President Metzman of the New York Central notes—to discourage travel at a time when the nation's transportation was overburdened. In effect it said to Americans, "Better stay at home, or maybe use the highways."

With their new equipment and improved operating efficiencies the railroads are endeavoring to attract more passenger travel. What's the sense in continuing a tax the object of which is to shunt travel away from them? What's the sense, also, of continuing a similar tax upon any of our other means of transportation?

Word from Washington is that U. S. airplanes and submarines are superior to those of Russia. At whatever level the Reds choose to fight the advantage is ours.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Prevent Rheumatic Fever

Rheumatic fever is one of the principle causes of leakage of the heart. For this reason, the malady is considered serious even though the victim is not always left with cardiac trouble. The majority of sufferers are children but during the last war the disease was prevalent among our service men and women.

Rheumatic fever is usually preceded by a streptococcal infection of the throat and tonsils, occurring from 10 to 15 days before the joints become inflamed, swollen, and painful. The individual feels tired, loses appetite, and occasionally becomes conscious of a pulse irregularity. Not every one who develops a strep throat develops the disease; only those who are susceptible become victims. Heredity enters the picture and many authorities believe that sensitivity to the illness is passed from one generation to another. Climate and meteorological factors also play a part because the ailment is more prevalent in certain seasons and localities.

At the present time, most of the research in rheumatic fever has been aimed toward prevention of the disease. This is important not only to the potential candidate but to persons previously afflicted. One of the bad features of the malady is that it tends to recur from time to time, and with each bout, the pumping organ may receive additional damage.

Recurrences are less likely to be noted among individuals receiving an adequate diet, especially foods high in vitamins and proteins. On the other hand, the disease attacks rich and poor including those who eat sensibly. Preventive vaccines have also been tried but in general have not proved successful. One of the latest (NY5) appears to be more helpful but more time is needed for proper evaluation of the product. Another plan is to prescribe salicylates whenever a streptococcal infection attacks an individual who has had rheumatic fever. The drug is administered as soon as the throat becomes sore and is continued daily for three weeks.

A better method is to try to avoid strep infections entirely by steering clear of victims of respiratory disturbances and staying away from crowded places particularly during the seasons when colds abound. Ultraviolet lights and germicidal vapors have been utilized in barracks and hospital wards to reduce the incidence of airborne infections. In addition, oil has been applied to blankets and floors to hold down bacteria laden dust.

The prophylactic use of penicillin and the sulfa compounds has been found useful. Small amounts of these preparations are given after the patient recovers from rheumatic fever and the regimen is continued indefinitely to ward off future attacks. In one series in which sulfa was employed, recurrences were observed in only 2.3 per cent as compared with 13.9 per cent in those who did not receive the drug. Should all these precautions fail, it is advisable to move to an area where the disease is less prevalent.

KNOBBY FINGERS

F. G. writes: Four of my fingers are affected with Heberden's nodes, which I developed about six months ago. Two of the fingers are badly swollen. Would you advise injections to reduce swelling and prevent spread to other fingers?

Reply

Injections will not prevent the lesions from attacking other fingers. Now and then, fluid accumulates in these knobs, causing them to become as large as grapes. When this occurs, operation or "needling" may be needed.

FAT AND THE ARTERIES

C. H. writes: Is diet important in hardening of the arteries?

Reply

There is no proof that diet affects the arteries of human beings. But sclerosis can be induced in chickens, rabbits, and other laboratory animals by the administration of large amounts of cholesterol, a chemical found in such foods as brains, egg yolk, fish roe, kidney, liver, and sweetbreads. Lesser amounts are contained in butter, fish, lard, meats and poultry, oysters, and suet.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

What a reception President Truman received in Washington. From every window people were throwing confetti . . . streamers . . . Republicans.

But those Republicans were really confident they'd win. When Truman got to the White House the next day, he found the GOP elephant in the parlor. President Truman said, "You will have to get out of here." And the elephant said, "No sir, I laid this egg and I'm gonna stay here until I hatch it."

A lot of Dewey backers were terribly upset about the outcome. John L. Lewis was so disappointed, he is now wearing his eyebrows at half mast.

And as soon as Dewey knew he'd lost, he went back to his farm and started milking his cows. One of them turned around and said, "What are you doing here? Early this morning we sent the stuff to Washington."

Republican leaders are now afraid that President Truman and the Democratic Congress will try to repeal some of the Republican legislation. As a matter of fact, right after the election Senator Taft was seen crossing the Mexican border with Hartley in a suitcase.

Truman Considering Justice Douglas As Secretary Of State; Utah's Sen. Thomas Puts Fair Labor Standards Act First On His List

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Truman is doing some real soul-searching about the man who is to be his new secretary of state. White House intimates say he has two things in mind:

1. The most important issue facing the entire country is peace, and Truman has got to find the No. 1 man in the country to solve it.

2. He doesn't want to make the mistake Franklin Roosevelt did of not building up new blood for the presidency. Therefore, if the man he picks as secretary of state is able to iron out the tangled state of the world, he would be Truman's logical successor in 1952.

The man tops on Truman's list—if he were not Chief Justice of the United States—is his old friend Fred Vinson. Once before, Vinson was asked to step down from an important judicial post—the Court of Appeals—to take over the thankless job of Economic Stabilizer. And unquestionably, if Truman asked him to he would step down again.

However, rather than ask Vinson to make this sacrifice, the President is considering Justice William O. Douglas, 48 years old, with a great record on the Securities and Exchange Commission, and a man whom FDR himself recommended side-by-side with Truman as presidential timber.

So keep an eye on Bill Douglas as the next secretary of state.

T-H Law Comes Second

The Fair Labor Standards Act—not the Taft-Hartley Law—will get first attention from the new Democratic Congress, according to Sen. Elbert Thomas of Utah who will succeed Sen. Robert Taft as Chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

The scholarly Mormon ex-missionary points out that the 80th Congress not only passed the Taft-Hartley Law but crippled the Fair Labor Standards Act, which affects 20,000,000 unorganized workers. He believes these 20,000,000 need legislative help ahead of the 15,000,000 organized workers who oppose the Taft-Hartley Law.

Thomas is determined, however, that there will be no undue delay in tackling the Taft-Hartley Law. But noting reports that Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin is preparing to rewrite the labor laws, Thomas emphasized that his committee, not the Labor department, will do the rewriting.

Note—Senator Thomas has a consistent, pro-labor voting record in the Senate.

Senator Jenner Cools Off

Humbled by Democratic victory, GOP Senators, once hell-bent on probing senatorial elections from Tennessee to Texas, pulled in their horns last week and spoke loftily of "nonpartisan investigations."

A few days earlier, fire-breathing GOP Chairman Bill Jenner of Indiana was screaming fraud against certain Democratic candidates, and his investigators, one of them the law partner of Ku Klux Klansman Bob Lyons, had gone on a rampage in Oklahoma and Texas.

It was a much subdued Senator Jenner, however, who reviewed these same cases at a closed-door session of the Elections Subcommittee. It wouldn't be necessary to hold hearings after all, said the gentleman from Indiana, but would turn complete reports over to the Democrats who inherit the Committee.

Sen. Francis Myers of Pennsylvania, only Democrat present, asked why the Democrats hadn't been consulted before the Oklahoma and Texas investigations were launched. Jenner ducked the question but sputtered back that "no political motives whatsoever" had influenced the decision.

"Then why," asked Myers, "were reports released to the press just before the election?"

"Oh," fumbled Jenner, "the newspapers were piling up on us."

Myers also demanded an explanation from the Committee's chief counsel, Nelson Deranian, who had been quoted in the press that same day as planning to rush the investigations in order to finish before the Democrats came into control.

Deranian had no adequate explanation for the newspaper stories, but he did give the Committee a verbal report on each case. From the Oklahoma file, Deranian pulled out affidavits charging that Senator-elect Bob Kerr had spent more than the legal limit in his campaign.

Myers asked whether the Committee had inquired into the law or consulted the Attorney-General for an opinion. He pointed out that Kerr might not be responsible for expenditures which he knew nothing about.

Deranian admitted the committee had not explored the law.

From Texas, the Committee also had affidavits charging election irregularities against Senator-elect Lyndon Johnson, but similar complaints had been received against Johnson's opponents. Elsewhere, the Committee had not even received formal affidavits to back up the complaints against Senators-elect Clinton Anderson in New Mexico and Estes Kefauver in Tennessee.

The file was also opened on Sen. Harley Kilgore of West Virginia, whose election has been under investigation for two long years. It showed irregularities on both side in the backwoods districts of West Virginia.

Note—What Republicans are worried about is that the Democrats will really dig into the Michigan election returns of their colleague Sen. Homer Ferguson.

Truman Troubles

Although the Democratic election sweep may stop the GOP-led Senate Expenditures Committee from skeleton hunting in the administration's closets, President Truman won't be able to breathe easily long.

For the Senate Expenditures Committee will be inherited by Democratic Senators never friendly to Truman. In order of seniority, they are:

Senators John McClellan of Arkansas, James Eastland of Mississippi, an out-and-out Dixiecrat, Clyde Hoey of North Carolina, who has voted against most key Truman policies, Glen Taylor of Idaho, Henry Wallace's vice-presidential running-mate, A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, a member of the anti-Truman Byrd machine, and Herbert O'Conor of Maryland, a Republicrat.

There are the Democrats who will now be charged with keeping an eye on the executive departments.

Truman Is Different Man In Role Of Political Strategist

By MARK SULLIVAN

The outpouring of "who-done-it" post-mortem of the election tends to put responsibility on the loser, saying that the cause consisted mainly of policies followed, and others not followed, by Mr. Dewey and the Republicans, their actions and their inactions. To blame the loser is human nature, and in this case is largely justified.

But a survey of the campaign President Truman followed tends to show that it was the winner who was mainly responsible for the outcome. Much of what has been said about Mr. Truman's ineptness as President is well justified. But Mr. Truman as politician—or, to use a more elevated term, political strategist—seems to be a different person. Indeed it would be difficult to find in American political history a Presidential candidate who began his campaign under detriments as adverse as Mr. Truman's, who conducted his campaign with such shrewd adaptation to the conditions confronting him, and who won.

Outline Given In Advance

A remarkable fact, giving high rank to Mr. Truman's performance judged as political strategy, is that the outlines of his campaign were laid down in advance, whether consciously or instinctively. Whichever it was, what can now be recognized as a blueprint of the main lines of Mr. Truman's campaign can be found in the speech he made when accepting nomination from the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia last July, and steps taken by him about that time.

That convention had been reluctant to nominate Mr. Truman, and, after nominating him did not expect he would win. Much of the left wing of the party had gone off into a new one, the Wallace Progressive Party. Much of the right wing was in process of going off as the new States' Rights Party. In this condition Mr. Truman, in his acceptance speech, was telling the convention, prophetically as it turned out why their reluctance to nominate him had been unnecesary, why their expectation of defeat in November was not justified. And in telling them he laid down what turned out to be the main lines of strategy by which he might hope to win and which he successfully followed.

He specified the principal groups whose votes he might expect: "Never in the world were farmers of any republic as prosperous as the farmers of the United States. And if they don't do their duty to the Democratic Party, they're the most ungrateful people in the world . . . And I'll say to labor just what I've said about the farmers—they are the most ungrateful people in the world if they do not support the Democratic Party."

As class appeal, that was atrociously crass. But as voter appeal it was successful. Mr. Truman got the support of labor and the farmers. And, of the two, the group that had the largest share in electing him was the one on whom he laid the most emphasis, the farmers.

As the principal issue of the campaign, Mr. Truman adopted what had been written into the party platform: "The Republican 80th Congress is directly responsible for the existing and ever-increasing high cost of living." x

Was Easy To Refute

As an assertion of fact, that was easy to refute. But as campaign strategy, in the stress Mr. Truman put upon it, it was extremely potent. Mr. Truman put sensational emphasis on this issue, by announcing, in his acceptance speech, that he would call a special session of the Republican Congress he was denouncing. In calling the session he demanded from it legislation to check rising cost of living, well knowing, undoubtedly, that the Congress, its members busy with their own campaigns, would not have time to act on all the legislation he asked, and would not want to pass much of it even if there was time.

In making the record of the Republican 80th Congress his principal issue, Mr. Truman may have sensed potential advantage in the fact that the Republicans in nominating their own Presidential candidate, had passed over Senator Taft, who had been the principal leader in making the record of that Congress. The Republicans seemed to assume that the issue was not their record but that of Mr. Truman, and of the Democrats during 16 years in power; they seemed to assume that the campaign was one to turn the "ins" out. This assumption Mr. Truman negatived by his political shrewdness and his aggressiveness.

Called Turn On Presidential Election Outcome During 1947

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—Right last year, wrong this year—Why? A. L. Sayre of Newark, N. J., sends in a clipping of a dispatch written by this correspondent on Nov. 7, 1947, predicting that President Truman would be elected in 1948 no matter whom the Republicans nominated and that the Democratic Party would win control of both Houses of Congress in the same election. On November 1 last this writer made an opposite prediction.

Curiously enough some of the same economic factors outlined in the 1947 dispatch have been cited during the last two weeks by many persons in both parties to explain the outcome of the recent election. Inasmuch as these very economic trends have a vital bearing on what lies ahead in national politics, it is interesting to examine the text of that dispatch written immediately after November, 1947, election in several states where governorship and mayorality contests showed a trend to the Democratic Party. It reads as follows:

"Irrespective of the outcome of last Tuesday's elections, there is no secret about the way many neutral observers feel about the chances of a Republican victory in the 1948 presidential election.

"This writer happens to be a registered Democrat, voting in the state of Virginia, but believes himself nevertheless to be one of these neutral observers when it comes to making appraisals of the national scene.

Saw Republicans Outmaneuvered

"The chances are less than even that the Republicans will win in 1948 no matter who the Republicans select as their candidate. This is because they have allowed themselves to be completely outmaneuvered by the Democrats since Januery, 1947, when the Republicans assumed control of Congress.

"Although the Republicans do not have control of the executive branch of the government or any of the executive boards or agencies, the impression has been skillfully spread by the Democrats that when the Republicans got control of Congress they became responsible for national policies.

"Also the Republicans have made a flop of the investigating process which the Democrats used so shrewdly and effectively when they were a minority party and later when, in 1933, they became the majority party.

"The main reason, however, why the Republicans have lost ground is related to the rise in the cost of living. Although the Republicans fought for the removal of OPA controls, Mr. Truman by his first veto and the hullabaloo created thereafter managed to win the debate. Later when he took action removing all controls—much of it coming immediately after the elections—he put the Republicans on the defensive.

"The Republicans will be beaten by the cost-of-living issue primarily. They may, of course, in the coming session succeed in impressing the country that the Administration is largely to blame, but they haven't done so yet.

"If Mr. Truman wins the eleceion, it seems that both Houses of Congress will go Democratic, too, and the period of Republican control of the legislative branch will thus be brought to an early end.

"The Republicans lack leadership of the aggressive kind that wins elections. Too many of the Republicans are engaged, directly or indirectly, in presidential politics. When men are seeking to further their own ambitions, they are not too much concerned with the welfare of their party. They come to believe that after the nomination is disposed of, there is plenty of time to campaign.

"Experience in recent years, however, indicates that campaigns are won or lost many months before a national convention. Impressions become deep-seated long before election day. In many instances the impressions thus created are not erased by the argument of campaign debate.

Economic Condition A Factor

"There is another factor of prime importance—the economic condition of the voters at election time. With the inflation boom now in progress likely to continue with the aid of the Marshall Plan billions, the voters will be receiving high pay all through 1948 and employment will be at high levels. This may be phony prosperity in a sober, economic sense, but it will be accepted by many voters as satisfactory. They will look upon a change in administration with misgivings. Usually the desire for change comes when there is discontent and unemployment.

"The question of what constitutes discontent mey well bring differences of opinion. The middle class particularly is feeling the pinch of inflation and naturally a protest will be expressed at the polls. But, as matters stand today, the protest will be leveled at the Republicans rather than the Democrats.

"It will be asked whether the contest might turn out differently if the Republicans nominate Eisenhower or MacArthur. The debate on whether a man trained in military life can make a success in political life would begin the day after the nominating convention. Many Republican voters will prefer another term for Mr. Truman rather than any military man. So would most people who understand the American political system.

"The theory that a military man's popularity and reputation is enough to defeat an incumbent President at the height of a wave of prosperity is not politically sound. All the indicators of the past are that, no matter who the candidate is, it is difficult to dislodge a candidate for the presidency if his party has been in power when economic conditions are favorable."

The above view as to the decisive factors involved was held by this correspondent throughout the 1948 campaign, but at its conclusion this writer was convinced that the "protest" vote in the cities against the cost of living would be cast against the Administration. The vote in many pivotal cities did show a decline in Democratic strength as compared with the Roosevelt vote in 1944. But the Republican vote usually predominate in the farm areas showed, on the other hand, a surprising decline.

Surface appearances such as the privately expressed views of political managers on both sides and the trend of public-opinion polls—accurate in the past—caused a mistaken and regretable deviation by this writer from the lessons of political logic expressed in previous analyses. Failure to appraise correctly the farm vote and its fear of a change in administration was the principal cause of error.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Character of a People

A EUROPEAN, from behind the Iron Curtain, tells this one:

A transcontinental airplane, flying in the South Pacific, was wrecked on a cannibal island. Aboard the plane was a mixed company of many nationalities, each man displaying his natural and national characteristics under the stress of disaster. The Frenchman, for instance, began methodically to explore the island for food; the German became absorbed by the flora and fauna; the Russian fumed and cursed. The American moved about restlessly, angry, swearing, losing motion—and, according to my informant, chewing gum, which was his most precious possession.

Finally, the cannibals corralled these refugees from the wrecked airplane and looked them over. In fact, they touched and felt the "long pork" for fatness, texture, and general edibility. For about ten days, they fed their human cattle well on fish, breadfruit, dates and sugar-cane to fatten them. They held prolonged festivities of expectancy and gratitude to the miracle that had sent them this delectable manna so obviously from the sky.

On the tenth day, a mighty fire was built and a huge cauldron placed upon it, and the womenfolk sat about chanting while the menfolk danced in glee in anticipation. The Europeans and one American were horrified at their fate.

The chief of the cannibals then addressed his captives in pidgin English, a language which he had mastered in his youth when a missionary, whom he eventually gobbled up, had attempted to lure him from his gastronomical habits. He said to his guests-to-be-consumed:

"Come time every man go home to father, come soon, come late. Who care? For you, come soon; for my, come late. No can savee how fashion. You makee war — bang! Bang! Lots go their father. We makee chow chow. Some man eatee; some man getee eatee. How fashion? Today, one man get eatee. Who man? Tall, juicy man. He go by-by; my eatee he. O. K.

"My number one chief no do bad things. So givee every sucker one break. My askee number one sucker he speak, what thing he wanchee before he go pot. Maybe, he wanchee beautiful girl; maybe he wanchee eat plenty; maybe he wanchee do joss-pidgin. What he wanchee do, I let he do. He finish do this, we stick him in pot. He got number one pot because he number one sucker."

With that he claps his hands and his brave cannibals seize the American and bring him before the cannibal chief. It was a tall, handsome American, well-built by exercise in the sun and prolonged ministrations of rich milk and breakfast foods, orange juice and sirloin steaks, according to the custom of his country. He stood erect and proud before the cannibal chief and said that he had but one request to make before he was thrown into the cauldron of boiling water. He said:

"My only request, your merciful highness, is that you give me one big, swift kick in the pants."

The chief gazed at him in astonishment. A murmur rose among the Europeans. "Cochon!" shrieked the Frenchman. "Durak!" shouted the Russian.

The chief, however, said haughtily: "You speak: my do!"

So the American bent over. The chief raised his majestic right foot and with fierce and excited force kicked the American in the you-know-where.

Thereupon, the American fell flat upon his face. His body trembled with pain. His nose was cut upon a rock. His head ached. He rose. In his hand was a revolver, which he quickly used, killing the chief and as many cannibals as he could, giving each one piece of lead. He then took over, declaring himself boss of the cannibal island.

The Frenchman, master of logic, could not help asking the American: "As you had this gun all the time, why did you wait ten days until it was nearly too late to use it?"

"We Americans," our hero replied, "are like that. We never do anything until we have been given a good, swift kick in the pants."

Civil Rights Issue Is Being Complicated

One certain result of the presidential election will be a struggle between President Truman and the Southern Democrats—regulars as well as Dixiecrats—over civil rights. Many Southerners who oppose poll taxes, deplore racial segregation and abhor lynching will fight any attempt to use Federal power to enforce civil rights in the South.

These Southerners will be lucky if the problem is not complicated by United Nations intervention in the United States. That is a likely prospect under the so-called "International Bill of Rights," now being worked out by a UN commission in Paris.

The aim of this declaration is to "guarantee" the basic human rights of all individuals, everywhere. The document will include 28 articles, of which 12 have already been approved. If the General Assembly endorses it, the "bill of rights" will be submitted to the United States, and if Congress approves, the document will become the law of this land. The commission now talks only of "moral enforcement," but many delegates hope to write a treaty of enforcement next year which would apply sanctions against any country violating the declaration.

Much of the time at Paris has been used up by Russian delegate Pavlov, in violent attacks on racial discrimination in the United States and the British commonwealth. Nevertheless, he has approved most of the clauses adopted so far. This is regarded as an encouraging sign in some quarters.

Why should it be? Russia is now violating most of the 12 basic human rights already approved. Nobody can suppose that the Kremlin will ever grant all Russians "freedom before the law," or protection against "arbitrary interference with privacy, home and family," or "freedom of movement" inside and outside the state. In fact, the whole idea of a bill of rights within the shadow of the Iron Curtain is an absurdity.

Why, then, does Russia approve this document? Obviously, because it gives her a propaganda weapon against sections of the United States and an instrument for endless trouble-making. Russia could ask nothing better than an international treaty that would force the Federal Government of the United States to intervene in local affairs wherever Communist agents cared to make charges.

The United States assuredly has a problem of civil rights, which it must solve in its own way. We cannot imagine an American Senate ratifying a treaty that would empower any international body to interfer in American domestic affairs. Incidentally, the UN commission now writing the "international bill of rights," a difficult legal task if there ever was one, includes just three representatives of the English-speaking nations—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, chairman, an Australian military man and a British trades union official.

The Palestine Issue And The Security Council

While the United Nations Security Council still anxiously debates the Palestine problem, the war in the Holy Land is actually being won by Israel, thanks to military force.

The American chief of staff to the American acting mediator is said to have advised the Arab states to make peace now, since Israel controls the situation. Whether or not Brig. Gen. Riley actually made that statement, he might well have done so. There are reports of peace talks in the offing between Israel and one or more of the Arab states.

In view of these hard facts, all the talk in the Council about turning the broken truce into a formal armistice has an air of unreality. Under the UN Charter, it is obligated to keep the peace. But it has no power to enforce peace. In a case like Palestine, with its attendant political conflicts, the Council lacks an effective will for peace. Some of its members believe that the cause of Jewish independence is just hence, they do not vigorously oppose the use of force to make good that cause.

The great power conflicts over the Palestine problem are deep and far-reaching. These have led to bitterness, not between Russia and the Western democracies but within the Western camp. For reasons largely of foreign policy, Britain has favored UN truce orders and even collective sanctions to stop a war which Israel has been winning. For reasons largely of domestic politics, the United States has winked at truce violations by either side and opposed sanctions against anybody. Our policy has been complicated by conflicts behind the scenes between President Truman and his Secretary of State. But in the main, Britain supports the Arabs and the United States favors the Jews.

What happened to the UN Security Council in this diplomatic free-for-all? The Council loses prestige and is handicapped in dealing with any future conflict. It is now in the embarrassing position of being forced to recognize a result won by military force, while continuing to denounce the use of force in international disputes.

The situation is one to make the gods laugh out loud, but for ordinary human beings it is not funny.

One Tax Remains For Which Reason Has Passed

One tax remains for which reason has passed. This is the war tax of 15 per cent on railroad passenger fares. The railroad ticket agents collect it at company expense and hand it on to the Government. It was not imposed to increase national revenue but—as President Metzman of the New York Central notes—to discourage travel at a time when the nation's transportation was overburdened. In effect it said to Americans, "Better stay at home, or maybe use the highways."

With their new equipment and improved operating efficiencies the railroads are endeavoring to attract more passenger travel. What's the sense in continuing a tax the object of which is to shunt travel away from them? What's the sense, also, of continuing a similar tax upon any of our other means of transportation?

Word from Washington is that U. S. airplanes and submarines are superior to those of Russia. At whatever level the Reds choose to fight the advantage is ours.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Prevent Rheumatic Fever

Rheumatic fever is one of the principle causes of leakage of the heart. For this reason, the malady is considered serious even though the victim is not always left with cardiac trouble. The majority of sufferers are children but during the last war the disease was prevalent among our service men and women.

Rheumatic fever is usually preceded by a streptococcal infection of the throat and tonsils, occurring from 10 to 15 days before the joints become inflamed, swollen, and painful. The individual feels tired, loses appetite, and occasionally becomes conscious of a pulse irregularity. Not every one who develops a strep throat develops the disease; only those who are susceptible become victims. Heredity enters the picture and many authorities believe that sensitivity to the illness is passed from one generation to another. Climate and meteorological factors also play a part because the ailment is more prevalent in certain seasons and localities.

At the present time, most of the research in rheumatic fever has been aimed toward prevention of the disease. This is important not only to the potential candidate but to persons previously afflicted. One of the bad features of the malady is that it tends to recur from time to time, and with each bout, the pumping organ may receive additional damage.

Recurrences are less likely to be noted among individuals receiving an adequate diet, especially foods high in vitamins and proteins. On the other hand, the disease attacks rich and poor including those who eat sensibly. Preventive vaccines have also been tried but in general have not proved successful. One of the latest (NY5) appears to be more helpful but more time is needed for proper evaluation of the product. Another plan is to prescribe salicylates whenever a streptococcal infection attacks an individual who has had rheumatic fever. The drug is administered as soon as the throat becomes sore and is continued daily for three weeks.

A better method is to try to avoid strep infections entirely by steering clear of victims of respiratory disturbances and staying away from crowded places particularly during the seasons when colds abound. Ultraviolet lights and germicidal vapors have been utilized in barracks and hospital wards to reduce the incidence of airborne infections. In addition, oil has been applied to blankets and floors to hold down bacteria laden dust.

The prophylactic use of penicillin and the sulfa compounds has been found useful. Small amounts of these preparations are given after the patient recovers from rheumatic fever and the regimen is continued indefinitely to ward off future attacks. In one series in which sulfa was employed, recurrences were observed in only 2.3 per cent as compared with 13.9 per cent in those who did not receive the drug. Should all these precautions fail, it is advisable to move to an area where the disease is less prevalent.

KNOBBY FINGERS

F. G. writes: Four of my fingers are affected with Heberden's nodes, which I developed about six months ago. Two of the fingers are badly swollen. Would you advise injections to reduce swelling and prevent spread to other fingers?

Reply

Injections will not prevent the lesions from attacking other fingers. Now and then, fluid accumulates in these knobs, causing them to become as large as grapes. When this occurs, operation or "needling" may be needed.

FAT AND THE ARTERIES

C. H. writes: Is diet important in hardening of the arteries?

Reply

There is no proof that diet affects the arteries of human beings. But sclerosis can be induced in chickens, rabbits, and other laboratory animals by the administration of large amounts of cholesterol, a chemical found in such foods as brains, egg yolk, fish roe, kidney, liver, and sweetbreads. Lesser amounts are contained in butter, fish, lard, meats and poultry, oysters, and suet.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

What a reception President Truman received in Washington. From every window people were throwing confetti . . . streamers . . . Republicans.

But those Republicans were really confident they'd win. When Truman got to the White House the next day, he found the GOP elephant in the parlor. President Truman said, "You will have to get out of here." And the elephant said, "No sir, I laid this egg and I'm gonna stay here until I hatch it."

A lot of Dewey backers were terribly upset about the outcome. John L. Lewis was so disappointed, he is now wearing his eyebrows at half mast.

And as soon as Dewey knew he'd lost, he went back to his farm and started milking his cows. One of them turned around and said, "What are you doing here? Early this morning we sent the stuff to Washington."

Republican leaders are now afraid that President Truman and the Democratic Congress will try to repeal some of the Republican legislation. As a matter of fact, right after the election Senator Taft was seen crossing the Mexican border with Hartley in a suitcase.

Truman Considering Justice Douglas As Secretary Of State; Utah's Sen. Thomas Puts Fair Labor Standards Act First On His List

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Truman is doing some real soul-searching about the man who is to be his new secretary of state. White House intimates say he has two things in mind:

1. The most important issue facing the entire country is peace, and Truman has got to find the No. 1 man in the country to solve it.

2. He doesn't want to make the mistake Franklin Roosevelt did of not building up new blood for the presidency. Therefore, if the man he picks as secretary of state is able to iron out the tangled state of the world, he would be Truman's logical successor in 1952.

The man tops on Truman's list—if he were not Chief Justice of the United States—is his old friend Fred Vinson. Once before, Vinson was asked to step down from an important judicial post—the Court of Appeals—to take over the thankless job of Economic Stabilizer. And unquestionably, if Truman asked him to he would step down again.

However, rather than ask Vinson to make this sacrifice, the President is considering Justice William O. Douglas, 48 years old, with a great record on the Securities and Exchange Commission, and a man whom FDR himself recommended side-by-side with Truman as presidential timber.

So keep an eye on Bill Douglas as the next secretary of state.

T-H Law Comes Second

The Fair Labor Standards Act—not the Taft-Hartley Law—will get first attention from the new Democratic Congress, according to Sen. Elbert Thomas of Utah who will succeed Sen. Robert Taft as Chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

The scholarly Mormon ex-missionary points out that the 80th Congress not only passed the Taft-Hartley Law but crippled the Fair Labor Standards Act, which affects 20,000,000 unorganized workers. He believes these 20,000,000 need legislative help ahead of the 15,000,000 organized workers who oppose the Taft-Hartley Law.

Thomas is determined, however, that there will be no undue delay in tackling the Taft-Hartley Law. But noting reports that Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin is preparing to rewrite the labor laws, Thomas emphasized that his committee, not the Labor department, will do the rewriting.

Note—Senator Thomas has a consistent, pro-labor voting record in the Senate.

Senator Jenner Cools Off

Humbled by Democratic victory, GOP Senators, once hell-bent on probing senatorial elections from Tennessee to Texas, pulled in their horns last week and spoke loftily of "nonpartisan investigations."

A few days earlier, fire-breathing GOP Chairman Bill Jenner of Indiana was screaming fraud against certain Democratic candidates, and his investigators, one of them the law partner of Ku Klux Klansman Bob Lyons, had gone on a rampage in Oklahoma and Texas.

It was a much subdued Senator Jenner, however, who reviewed these same cases at a closed-door session of the Elections Subcommittee. It wouldn't be necessary to hold hearings after all, said the gentleman from Indiana, but would turn complete reports over to the Democrats who inherit the Committee.

Sen. Francis Myers of Pennsylvania, only Democrat present, asked why the Democrats hadn't been consulted before the Oklahoma and Texas investigations were launched. Jenner ducked the question but sputtered back that "no political motives whatsoever" had influenced the decision.

"Then why," asked Myers, "were reports released to the press just before the election?"

"Oh," fumbled Jenner, "the newspapers were piling up on us."

Myers also demanded an explanation from the Committee's chief counsel, Nelson Deranian, who had been quoted in the press that same day as planning to rush the investigations in order to finish before the Democrats came into control.

Deranian had no adequate explanation for the newspaper stories, but he did give the Committee a verbal report on each case. From the Oklahoma file, Deranian pulled out affidavits charging that Senator-elect Bob Kerr had spent more than the legal limit in his campaign.

Myers asked whether the Committee had inquired into the law or consulted the Attorney-General for an opinion. He pointed out that Kerr might not be responsible for expenditures which he knew nothing about.

Deranian admitted the committee had not explored the law.

From Texas, the Committee also had affidavits charging election irregularities against Senator-elect Lyndon Johnson, but similar complaints had been received against Johnson's opponents. Elsewhere, the Committee had not even received formal affidavits to back up the complaints against Senators-elect Clinton Anderson in New Mexico and Estes Kefauver in Tennessee.

The file was also opened on Sen. Harley Kilgore of West Virginia, whose election has been under investigation for two long years. It showed irregularities on both side in the backwoods districts of West Virginia.

Note—What Republicans are worried about is that the Democrats will really dig into the Michigan election returns of their colleague Sen. Homer Ferguson.

Truman Troubles

Although the Democratic election sweep may stop the GOP-led Senate Expenditures Committee from skeleton hunting in the administration's closets, President Truman won't be able to breathe easily long.

For the Senate Expenditures Committee will be inherited by Democratic Senators never friendly to Truman. In order of seniority, they are:

Senators John McClellan of Arkansas, James Eastland of Mississippi, an out-and-out Dixiecrat, Clyde Hoey of North Carolina, who has voted against most key Truman policies, Glen Taylor of Idaho, Henry Wallace's vice-presidential running-mate, A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, a member of the anti-Truman Byrd machine, and Herbert O'Conor of Maryland, a Republicrat.

There are the Democrats who will now be charged with keeping an eye on the executive departments.

Truman Is Different Man In Role Of Political Strategist

By MARK SULLIVAN

The outpouring of "who-done-it" post-mortem of the election tends to put responsibility on the loser, saying that the cause consisted mainly of policies followed, and others not followed, by Mr. Dewey and the Republicans, their actions and their inactions. To blame the loser is human nature, and in this case is largely justified.

But a survey of the campaign President Truman followed tends to show that it was the winner who was mainly responsible for the outcome. Much of what has been said about Mr. Truman's ineptness as President is well justified. But Mr. Truman as politician—or, to use a more elevated term, political strategist—seems to be a different person. Indeed it would be difficult to find in American political history a Presidential candidate who began his campaign under detriments as adverse as Mr. Truman's, who conducted his campaign with such shrewd adaptation to the conditions confronting him, and who won.

Outline Given In Advance

A remarkable fact, giving high rank to Mr. Truman's performance judged as political strategy, is that the outlines of his campaign were laid down in advance, whether consciously or instinctively. Whichever it was, what can now be recognized as a blueprint of the main lines of Mr. Truman's campaign can be found in the speech he made when accepting nomination from the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia last July, and steps taken by him about that time.

That convention had been reluctant to nominate Mr. Truman, and, after nominating him did not expect he would win. Much of the left wing of the party had gone off into a new one, the Wallace Progressive Party. Much of the right wing was in process of going off as the new States' Rights Party. In this condition Mr. Truman, in his acceptance speech, was telling the convention, prophetically as it turned out why their reluctance to nominate him had been unnecessary, why their expectation of defeat in November was not justified. And in telling them he laid down what turned out to be the main lines of strategy by which he might hope to win and which he successfully followed.

He specified the principal groups whose votes he might expect: "Never in the world were farmers of any republic as prosperous as the farmers of the United States. And if they don't do their duty to the Democratic Party, they're the most ungrateful people in the world . . . And I'll say to labor just what I've said about the farmers—they are the most ungrateful people in the world if they do not support the Democratic Party."

As class appeal, that was atrociously crass. But as voter appeal it was successful, Mr. Truman got the support of labor and the farmers. And, of the two, the group that had the largest share in electing him was the one on whom he laid the most emphasis, the farmers.

As the principal issue of the campaign, Mr. Truman adopted what had been written into the party platform: "The Republican 80th Congress is directly responsible for the existing and ever-increasing high cost of living."

Was Easy To Refute

As an assertion of fact, that was easy to refute. But as campaign strategy, in the stress Mr. Truman put upon it, it was extremely potent. Mr. Truman put sensational emphasis on this issue, by announcing, in his acceptance speech, that he would call a special session of the Republican Congress he was denouncing. In calling the session he demanded from it legislation to check rising cost of living, well knowing, undoubtedly, that the Congress, its members busy with their own campaigns, would not have time to act on all the legislation he asked, and would not want to pass much of it even if there was time.

In making the record of the Republican 80th Congress his principal issue, Mr. Truman may have sensed potential advantage in the fact that the Republicans in nominating their own Presidential candidate, had passed over Senator Taft, who had been the principal leader in making the record of that Congress. The Republicans seemed to assume that the issue was not their record but that of Mr. Truman, and of the Democrats during 16 years in power; they seemed to assume that the campaign was one to turn the "ins" out. This assumption Mr. Truman negatived by his political shrewdness and his aggressiveness.

Called Turn On Presidential Election Outcome During 1947

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—Right last year, wrong this year—Why? A. L. Sayre of Newark, N. J., sends in a clipping of a dispatch written by this correspondent on Nov. 7, 1947, predicting that President Truman would be elected in 1948 no matter whom the Republicans nominated and that the Democratic Party would win control of both Houses of Congress in the same election. On November 1 last this writer made an opposite prediction.

Curiously enough some of the same economic factors outlined in the 1947 dispatch have been cited during the last two weeks by many persons in both parties to explain the outcome of the recent election. Inasmuch as these very economic trends have a vital bearing on what lies ahead in national politics, it is interesting to examine the text of that dispatch written immediately after November, 1947, election in several states where governorship and mayorality contests showed a trend to the Democratic Party. It reads as follows:

"Irrespective of the outcome of last Tuesday's elections, there is no secret about the way many neutral observers feel about the chances of a Republican victory in the 1948 presidential election.

"This writer happens to be a registered Democrat, voting in the state of Virginia, but believes himself nevertheless to be one of these neutral observers when it comes to making appraisals of the national scene.

Saw Republicans Outmaneuvered

"The chances are less than even that the Republicans will win in 1948 no matter who the Republicans select as their candidate. This is because they have allowed themselves to be completely outmaneuvered by the Democrats since Januery, 1947, when the Republicans assumed control of Congress.

"Although the Republicans do not have control of the executive branch of the government or any of the executive boards or agencies, the impression has been skillfully spread by the Democrats that when the Republicans got control of Congress they became responsible for national policies.

"Also the Republicans have made a flop of the investigating process which the Democrats used so shrewdly and effectively when they were a minority party and later when, in 1933, they became the majority party.

"The main reason, however, why the Republicans have lost ground is related to the rise in the cost of living. Although the Republicans fought for the removal of OPA controls, Mr. Truman by his first veto and the hullabaloo created thereafter managed to win the debate. Later when he took action removing all controls—much of it coming immediately after the elections—he put the Republicans on the defensive.

"The Republicans will be beaten by the cost-of-living issue primarily. They may, of course, in the coming session succeed in impressing the country that the Administration is largely to blame, but they haven't done so yet.

"If Mr. Truman wins the elecion, it seems that both Houses of Congress will go Democratic, too, and the period of Republican control of the legislative branch will thus be brought to an early end.

"The Republicans lack leadership of the aggressive kind that wins elections. Too many of the Republicans are engaged, directly or indirectly, in presidential politics. When men are seeking to further their own ambitions, they are not too much concerned with the welfare of their party. They come to believe that after the nomination is disposed of, there is plenty of time to campaign.

"Experience in recent years, however, indicates that campaigns are won or lost many months before a national convention. Impressions become deep-seated long before election day. In many instances the impressions thus created are not erased by the argument of campaign debate.

Economic Condition A Factor

"There is another factor of prime importance—the economic condition of the voters at election time. With the inflation boom now in progress likely to continue with the aid of the Marshall Plan billions, the voters will be receiving high pay all through 1948 and employment will be at high levels. This may be phony prosperity in a sober, economic sense, but it will be accepted by many voters as satisfactory. They will look upon a change in administration with misgivings. Usually the desire for change comes when there is discontent and unemployment.

"The question of what constitutes discontent mey well bring differences of opinion. The middle class particularly is feeling the pinch of inflation and naturally a protest will be expressed at the polls. But, as matters stand today, the protest will be leveled at the Republicans rather than the Democrats.

"It will be asked whether the contest might turn out differently if the Republicans nominate Eisenhower or MacArthur. The debate on whether a man trained in military life can make a success in political life would begin the day after the nominating convention. Many Republican voters will prefer another term for Mr. Truman rather than any military man. So would most people who understand the American political system.

"The theory that a military man's popularity and reputation is enough to defeat an incumbent President at the height of a wave of prosperity is not politically sound. All the indicators of the past are that, no matter who the candidate is, it is difficult to dislodge a candidate for the presidency if his party has been in power when economic conditions are favorable."

The above view as to the decisive factors involved was held by this correspondent throughout the 1948 campaign, but at its conclusion this writer was convinced that the "protest" vote in the cities against the cost of living would be cast against the Administration. The vote in many pivotal cities did show a decline in Democratic strength as compared with the Roosevelt vote in 1944. But the Republican vote usually predominate in the farm areas showed, on the other hand, a surprising decline.

Surface appearances such as the privately expressed views of political managers on both sides and the trend of public-opinion polls—accurate in the past—caused a mistaken and regretable deviation by this writer from the lessons of political logic expressed in previous analyses. Failure to appraise correctly the farm vote and its fear of a change in administration was the principal cause of error.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Character of a People

A EUROPEAN, from behind the Iron Curtain, tells this one:

A transcontinental airplane, flying in the South Pacific, was wrecked on a cannibal island. Aboard the plane was a mixed company of many nationalities, each man displaying his natural and national characteristics under the stress of disaster. The Frenchman, for instance, began methodically to explore the island for food; the German became absorbed by the flora and fauna; the Russian fumed and cursed. The American moved about restlessly, angry, swearing, losing motion—and, according to my informant, chewing gum, which was his most precious possession.

Finally, the cannibals corralled these refugees from the wrecked airplane and looked them over. In fact, they touched and felt the "long pork" for fatness, texture, and general edibility. For about ten days, they fed their human cattle well on fish, breadfruit, dates and sugar-cane to fatten them. They held prolonged festivities of expectancy and gratitude to the miracle that had sent them this delectable manna so obviously from the sky.

On the tenth day, a mighty fire was built and a huge cauldron placed upon it, and the womenfolk sat about chanting while the menfolk danced in glee in anticipation. The Europeans and one American were horrified at their fate.

The chief of the cannibals then addressed his captives in pidgin English, a language which he had mastered in his youth when a missionary, whom he eventually gobbled up, had attempted to lure him from his gastronomical habits. He said to his guests-to-be-consumed:

"Come time every man go home to father, come soon, come late. Who care? For you, come soon; for my, come late. No can savee how fashion. You makee war — bang! Bang! Lots go their father. We makee chow chow. Some man eatee; some man getee eatee. How fashion? Today, one man get eatee. Who man? Tall, juicy man. He go by-by; my eatee he. O. K.

"My number one chief no do bad things. So givee every sucker one break. My askee number one sucker he speak, what thing he wanchee before he go pot. Maybe, he wanchee beautiful girl; maybe he wanchee eat plenty; maybe he wanchee do joss-pidgin. What he wanchee do, I let he do. He finish do this, we stick him in pot. He got number one pot because he number one sucker."

With that he claps his hands and his brave cannibals seize the American and bring him before the cannibal chief. It was a tall, handsome American, well-built by exercise in the sun and prolonged ministrations of rich milk and breakfast foods, orange juice and sirloin steaks, according to the custom of his country. He stood erect and proud before the cannibal chief and said that he had but one request to make before he was thrown into the cauldron of boiling water. He said:

"My only request, your merciful highness, is that you give me one big, swift kick in the pants."

The chief gazed at him in astonishment. A murmur rose among the Europeans. "Cochon!" shrieked the Frenchman. "Durak!" shouted the Russian.

The chief, however, said haughtily: "You speak: my do!"

So the American bent over. The chief raised his majestic right foot and with fierce and excited force kicked the American in the you-know-where.

Thereupon, the American fell flat upon his face. His body trembled with pain. His nose was cut upon a rock. His head ached. He rose. In his hand was a revolver, which he quickly used, killing the chief and as many cannibals as he could, giving each one piece of lead. He then took over, declaring himself boss of the cannibal island.

The Frenchman, master of logic, could not help asking the American: "As you had this gun all the time, why did you wait ten days until it was nearly too late to use it?"

"We Americans," our hero replied, "are like that. We never do anything until we have been given a good, swift kick in the pants."

MIRROR Of Your MIND

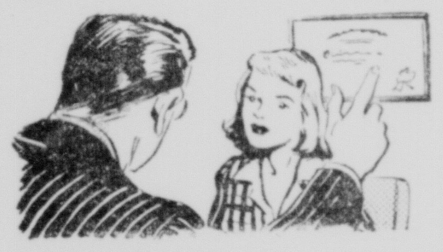
By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Should a girl who doesn't like men marry?

Answer: Not if her dislike is real and deep-seated—she will only make herself and her husband miserable. It's time girls were warned against the idea that their only hope of happiness — or of winning social recognition—is to marry, and that "getting a man" is their main business in life. A girl who has had a healthy bringing-up will like as well as love the man she marries, but for all the disadvantages of spinsterhood, a girl who has been conditioned to fear and distrust the male sex will be happier single.

Does "chronic indigestion" hint emotional disturbance?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Lester M. Morrison in California Medicine. Clinical experience supports the saying that the gastro-intestinal tract is "the sounding-board of the emotions." A majority of sufferers from irritations of the colon proved to have neurotic symptoms, even though most of them had not realized it. If your stomach is continually getting upset or if you have intestinal difficulties, a wise doctor will want to know what is on your mind as well as what you eat, or whether something is organically wrong.



Do psychiatrists give advice to their patients?

Answer: That depends upon what type of treatment they are using—and different types of treatment are best for different cases. In psychoanalysis the analyst gives no advice whatever; he merely "interprets" what the patient says, and shows him "out of his own mouth" the hidden causes of his troubles. The whole trend in psychological counseling is also toward the type which is called "non-directive," based on the belief that if you understand your problems, you can decide better what to do about them than anyone else can.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Should a girl who doesn't like men marry?

Answer: Not if her dislike is real and deep-seated—she will only make herself and her husband miserable. It's time girls were warned against the idea that their only hope of happiness — or of winning social recognition—is to marry, and that "getting a man" is their main business in life. A girl who has had a healthy bringing-up will like as well as love the man she marries, but for all the disadvantages of spinsterhood, a girl who has been conditioned to fear and distrust the male sex will be happier single.

Does "chronic indigestion" hint emotional disturbance?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Lester M. Morrison in California Medicine. Clinical experience supports the saying that the gastro-intestinal tract is "the sounding-board of the emotions." A majority of sufferers from irritations of the colon proved to have neurotic symptoms, even though most of them had not realized it. If your stomach is continually getting upset or if you have intestinal difficulties, a wise doctor will want to know what is on your mind as well as what you eat, or whether something is organically wrong.

Do psychiatrists give advice to their patients?

Answer: That depends upon what type of treatment they are using—and different types of treatment are best for different cases. In psychoanalysis the analyst gives no advice whatever; he merely "interprets" what the patient says, and shows him "out of his own mouth" the hidden causes of his troubles. The whole trend in psychological counseling is also toward the type which is called "non-directive," based on the belief that if you understand your problems, you can decide better what to do about them than anyone else can.

City Picketing Law Rescinded

The city's anti-picketing Ordinance No. 1558, regulating picketing of business and industrial places in the event of labor disputes, was rescinded yesterday at a meeting of the Mayor and Council.

The repealed law was passed August 16, 1937.

Council voted last week to repeal the ordinance after an appeal from the county's labor leaders. At the same time, machinery was set in motion to rewrite some sections of the ordinance governing the passing of handbills and use of sound equipment. Labor groups suggested that changes be made.

Earlier, the Progressive Party had demanded repeal of the handbill and picketing ordinances and had promised court action if the city failed to take such action. Council, however, by-passed the Progressives' demands, and acted on the appeal of labor.

Another sewering ordinance was passed today. The act provides for the sewering or otherwise improving of the easterly side of Holland Street, 50 feet south of Roeth Avenue to its intersection with Sunbury Avenue. The area affected is two blocks and cost will be assessed against property owners.

Tabled was a request by Attorney James Alfred Avirett to exempt the Cumberland Ice and Cold Storage Company from 1947 city taxes on its locker plant facilities. Action is expected next week.

Avirett, appearing for James L. Messick, president, pointed out in a letter that the business was new and asked the exemption on machinery and equipment of the locker plant as an encouragement to the new business.

More than 15,000 envelopes for the annual Christmas Seal sale of the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association are being "stuffed" with the aid of local Girl Scout troops. The seal sale starts November 22.

Mrs. Teresa Longwell, executive secretary, is supervising the work at her home, 203 Greene Street, which is the temporary association office.

Mrs. Longwell said the county's goal is approximately $10,500 of the Maryland quota of $300,000. This is the forty-second annual seal campaign, she added.

The first detail of Scouts aided with the envelopes last Saturday, Mrs. Longwell said, and others will work this week.

They were: Troop 16—Dorothy Athey, Nancy Minke, Frances Blake, Janis Twigg, Sylvia Buser, Vivian Harmon, Iris Brant, Carol Jean Lannon and Janice Layman.

Troop 5—Donna Rae Harvey and Evelyn Deter.

Troop 23—Nancy Jones and Eleanor Herath.

Troop 9—Delores Connor and Nellie Wilson.

Philip M. Wagner, editor of the Sun, discussed "Why Public Libraries?" at a luncheon meeting.

John Mackenzie Cory, executive secretary of the American Library Association, spoke in the afternoon. A discussion of his address was led by C. Keating Bowie, Jr., a trustee of the Pratt Library.

Allen Broadwater filed suit against Lewis William Smith for $2,000. In his declaration the plaintiff charged that on October 31 his truck was parked on Henderson Avenue and was struck by a machine owned by Smith. Damage was listed as a badly bent frame which made the truck a total wreck.

The truck was valued at $1,000 and was worth only $85 as salvage, Broadwater claimed. He claims it was impossible to repair the damage. Glenn Davis filed suit for $800 against Allen Floyd Broadwater as a result of a collision October 5 near Frostburg.

City Picketing Law Rescinded

The city's anti-picketing Ordinance No. 1558, regulating picketing of business and industrial places in the event of labor disputes, was rescinded yesterday at a meeting of the Mayor and Council.

The repealed law was passed August 16, 1937.

Council voted last week to repeal the ordinance after an appeal from the county's labor leaders. At the same time, machinery was set in motion to rewrite some sections of the ordinance governing the passing of handbills and use of sound equipment. Labor groups suggested that changes be made.

Earlier, the Progressive Party had demanded repeal of the handbill and picketing ordinances and had promised court action if the city failed to take such action. Council, however, by-passed the Progressives' demands, and acted on the appeal of labor.

Another sewering ordinance was passed today. The act provides for the sewering or otherwise improving of the easterly side of Holland Street, 50 feet south of Roeth Avenue to its intersection with Sunbury Avenue. The area affected is two blocks and cost will be assessed against property owners.

Tabled was a request by Attorney James Alfred Avirett to exempt the Cumberland Ice and Cold Storage Company from 1947 city taxes on its locker plant facilities. Action is expected next week.

Avirett, appearing for James L. Messick, president, pointed out in a letter that the business was new and asked the exemption on machinery and equipment of the locker plant as an encouragement to the new business.

Water consumption last week was reported at 83,861,000 gallons as compared to 85,623,000 gallons last year. The daily average was 11,981,000. The water level at Lake Gordon is two feet below the surface of the spillway and at Lake Koon 12 feet below.

Girl Scouts Aid In TB Seal Sale

More than 15,000 envelopes for the annual Christmas Seal sale of the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association are being "stuffed" with the aid of local Girl Scout troops. The seal sale starts November 22.

Mrs. Teresa Longwell, executive secretary, is supervising the work at her home, 203 Greene Street, which is the temporary association office.

Mrs. Longwell said the county's goal is approximately $10,500 of the Maryland quota of $300,000. This is the forty-second annual seal campaign, she added.

The first detail of Scouts aided with the envelopes last Saturday, Mrs. Longwell said, and others will work this week.

They were: Troop 16—Dorothy Athey, Nancy Minke, Frances Blake, Janis Twigg, Sylvia Buser, Vivian Harmon, Iris Brant, Carol Jean Lannon and Janice Layman.

Troop 5—Donna Rae Harvey and Evelyn Deter.

Troop 23—Nancy Jones and Eleanor Herath.

Troop 9—Delores Connor and Nellie Wilson.

Troop 2—Marjorie Hutchinson and Patsy Minke.

Mrs. Longwell said that 90,000 residents of Maryland counties received free x-ray examinations during the past year in campaigns sponsored by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association.

In the state, 80,000,000 Christmas seals will be sent out, she added.

Local Women Attend State Library Meet

Among local people attending the state library conference in Baltimore yesterday were Miss Mary G. Walsh, chief librarian of the Cumberland Free Public Library, and Mrs. Stanley Buckley, former president of the Allegany County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations. Mrs. Buckley has been advocating the formation of a county library.

The theme of the conference is "Does Maryland Want Good Libraries?"

Miss Helen M. Clar, director of the division of library extension for the department, addressed the morning session. This was followed by a general discussion led by Emerson Greenaway, director of the Enoch Pratt Free Library and chairman of legislation for the Maryland Library Association.

Philip M. Wagner, editor of the Sun, discussed "Why Public Libraries?" at a luncheon meeting.

John Mackenzie Cory, executive secretary of the American Library Association, spoke in the afternoon. A discussion of his address was led by C. Keating Bowie, Jr., a trustee of the Pratt Library.

Wesleyan, winner of 22 games in a row, closes against Rochester at Rochester, N. Y., on Saturday.

Palmer Smashes Record As Terp Harriers Score

Marylanders Retain Cross Country Title

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—Bob Palmer, Maryland's sophomore sensation, broke his own four-mile course record today to lead the Old Liners in successful defense of their Southern Conference cross country championship.

In winning his second straight conference title, Palmer finished in 19 minutes, 40 seconds, 13 seconds better than the course mark he set last year against Georgetown.

Palmer beat Curtis Shelton of VPI to the finish line by 42 seconds. F. A. Liddell of VMI was third by a scant two seconds.

Coach Jim Kehoe's team, undefeated in a dual competition the past two seasons, retained its championship easily by placing seven among the first 15. Maryland compiled 27 points to second place VPI's 73, the low score winning.

The other team scores were: North Carolina 118, William & Mary 135, North Carolina State 140, Duke 164, Davidson 166, VMI 170, and Richmond 180.

The order of finish of the first 15 among the 76 starters was:

Palmer, Maryland; Shelton, VPI; Liddell, VMI; Umbarger, Maryland; Middleton, VPI; White, Maryland; Kehoe, Maryland; Magill, North Carolina; Greer, Maryland; Baker, William & Mary; Grimaldi, Maryland; Umberger, Maryland; Gray, Davidson; Sease, Richmond; Griffith, Duke.

SPARKS FROSH—Jim Danter, 175 pound all-state guard from Stonewall Jackson High, Charleston, is regarded as one of the sparkplugs of the West Virginia University Freshmen eleven which faces the University of Maryland Freshmen Thursday night at 8 o'clock in Fort Hill Stadium. Danter's line play has been outstanding. The game is being sponsored by Cumberland Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Wesleyan Turns Down Tangerine Bowl Bid

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 15 (AP)—Wesleyan's athletic department today turned down a bid to play in the New Year's night Tangerine Bowl football game at Orlando, Fla.

Athletic Director J. Frederick Martin said "we can't accept. Our policy is not to play any post-season games, and it would be very tragic to break it now. All of us feel we've had an excellent season and we want to end it on that note."

Wesleyan, winner of 22 games in a row, closes against Rochester at Rochester, N. Y., on Saturday.

Marylanders Retain Cross Country Title

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—Bob Palmer, Maryland's sophomore sensation, broke his own four-mile course record today to lead the Old Liners in successful defense of their Southern Conference cross country championship.

In winning his second straight conference title, Palmer finished in 19 minutes, 40 seconds, 13 seconds better than the course mark he set last year against Georgetown.

Palmer beat Curtis Shelton of VPI to the finish line by 42 seconds. F. A. Liddell of VMI was third by a scant two seconds.

Coach Jim Kehoe's team, undefeated in a dual competition the past two seasons, retained its championship easily by placing seven among the first 15. Maryland compiled 27 points to second place VPI's 73, the low score winning.

The other team scores were: North Carolina 118, William & Mary 135, North Carolina State 140, Duke 164, Davidson 166, VMI 170, and Richmond 180.

The order of finish of the first 15 among the 76 starters was:

Palmer, Maryland; Shelton, VPI; Liddell, VMI; Umbarger, Maryland; Middleton, VPI; White, Maryland; Kehoe, Maryland; Magill, North Carolina; Greer, Maryland; Baker, William & Mary; Grimaldi, Maryland; Umberger, Maryland; Gray, Davidson; Sease, Richmond; Griffith, Duke.

SPARKS FROSH—Jim Danter, 175 pound all-state guard from Stonewall Jackson High, Charleston, is regarded as one of the sparkplugs of the West Virginia University Freshmen eleven which faces the University of Maryland Freshmen Thursday night at 8 o'clock in Fort Hill Stadium. National Loop May Have 12 Clubs In '49

Prepared To Accept Browns, Forty-Niners

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15—(INS)—Club-owners of the National Professional Football League held a secret meeting today and reportedly discussed plans for a 12-team circuit next season on the assumption that the rival All-American Conference will fold.

A reliable source said that the National League is prepared to accept the Cleveland and San Francisco teams of the All-America Conference as members.

It also was reported that plans were discussed for moving the National League's Boston Yanks to Yankee Stadium, New York, in the event the All-America folds.

Officials denied that the meeting occupied itself with the new league.

Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National League said:

"We did have a meeting, but it was about playoff dates and had nothing to do with what may happen to the All-America Conference."

Bert Bell, National League commissioner, and club representatives attended the session, which was not publicized in advance. The club-owners slipped into Pittsburgh and out again before they could be contacted.

One source said that the increase of the National League from 10 to 12 teams had been definitely decided upon previously and details were worked out today.

Reports have been current for several weeks that the All-America is on the verge of tossing in the sponge in the war with the National.

Dan Topping, owner of the New York Yankees, denied today that he knew anything about the Boston Yankees being moved into his Yankee Stadium.

The All-America Conference club-wner said over the phone when old of the reported plans for a new National League setup:

"This is the first I've heard about t. We are not going to cut the hroats of our partners by any such eal as this.

"We are anxious for peace and e will go a long way for it, but e don't know anything about this nd we should know if the Boston Yankees or anybody else is taking ver Yankee Stadium."

Burke has kicked 34 points after touchdown this season, bettering the former city record of 32 held by Jimmie Mangus, also of Fort Hill. 'Rip' Engle, Brown Coach, Flays Substitution Rule

Mentors Of Smaller Colleges Ask Change

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP) — Coaches of the smaller college squads protested today against the controversial free substitution rule that permits two-platoon play in football.

Rip Engle

Coaches from several eastern institutions where material runs thin complained that the rule favored the bigger teams and eliminated the test of endurance from the sport.

Others, speaking at the weekly meeting of New York football writers, said the regulation militated against development of the well-rounded player.

A majority urged a modification which would permit three or four men to enter the game at a time.

Under the present no-limit system, players may be alternated in wholesale lots. This has popularized the two-platoon plan—a team for offense and a team for defense—among schools with enough material. Army is a leading proponent.

May Need Two Coaches

"The rule definitely favors the schools with big squads," said Charles "rip" Engle of Brown. "It works to the disadvantage of those who don't have enough men to shove in eleven at a time.

"Pretty soon it'll get to a point that we have two sets of coaches for each team—one for offense and one for defense."

Ted Rosequist of Brooklyn College, who said his squad numbered 21 men, declared the rule robbed football of one of the main features of competitive sports—the test of endurance.

"I'd hate to see the day come when we wouldn't have any 60-minute players and when a man would have to do just one thing well to be a regular."

The Rutgers coach, Harvey Harman, said "I'm just old-fashioned enough to want a football player to be a football player, one who can run, tackle and block and who can last."

Agreeing with Harman were Ed Danowski of Fordham and Hook Mylin of New York University.

Little Queries Mentors

Lou Little, Columbia coach who heads the football coaches rules committee, said he was querying coaches this week on possible rules changes. Little, himself, favors free substitution.

The coaches don't change the rules but make recommendations to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Charles Kayoes Hafer In 7th At Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Nov. 15 (AP)—Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati's heavyweight championship hope, wheeled his big guns into action in the seventh round here tonight to knock out Walter Hafer of Maysville, Ky., in what had been scheduled as a 10-rount bout.

Charles weighed 178 pounds and Hafer 200.

A crowd of 4,843 paid $20,577.40 to watch Charles in his last bout before meeting Joe Baksi in New York's Madison Square Garden. That bout may produce a future opponent for heavyweight champ Joe Louis.

FREE SUBSTITUTION RULE IS APPROVED BY GETTYSBURG MENTOR

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15 (AP)—"Let's keep this substitution rule," Coach Hen Bream of Gettysburg College said today. "It gives more kids the chance to play football."

Bream, who has been coaching football and basketball teams at Gettysburg for 23 years, spoke at the weekly Maxwell Club luncheon and went on record strongly in favor of the much discussed free substitution rule.

"We started this season with a squad of 43 men. We still have 40," said Bream. "The three others are out with injuries.

"And the fact that we haven't lost any players is a direct result of the rule on substitutions."

Bream explained it is his belief that football should be made a part of the lives of as many collegians as possible.

"Why, some kids will come out for a team and go to practice every day just in hopes of getting in for one play. That's something they'll be able to tell their children about," Bream went on, adding:

"And any rule that adds to their chances of getting in a game is a good rule."

Oregon Accuses Bears Of Dodging Playoff

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 15 (AP) — Oregon accused California today of dodging a post-season playoff for the right to enter the Rose Bowl.

Leo A. Harris, Oregon athletic director, said California rejected a private challenge last week, but added he had not given up hope.

Harris said he was re-issuing the challenge publicly because "everyone interested in intercollegiate football and the Rose Bowl would prefer to have the selection of the conference representative in the 1949 Rose Bowl game depend on the result of a game between the two schools."

Harris added if either team loses its remaining game on schedule, the playoff proposal would be dropped.

Record Turkey Is Killed By George Knott

Celanese Worker Gets First Big Gobbler

George Knott, 12 Pennsylvania Avenue, a Celanese employee, killed a wild turkey gobbler weighing 18 pounds, 14 ounces yesterday on top of Town Hill, near the beacon light there. It is a record size bird and the first one Knott has killed. He said he has been hunting several seasons, but this is the first turkey he has shot.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, said 15 pounds is considered a big bird in this area, and the one killed by Knott may be a record for the season. The bird has a 10-inch beard and was described by Minke as "a really nice big gobbler."

Kenneth Windemuth, Mt. Savage, also came home with a big gobbler. His bird weighs 17 pounds and was killed in the Green Ridge area.

Other hunters reporting turkey kills included Washington County Commissoner Joseph Hoffman of Williamsport, a 10-pound gobbler; Washington County Engineer Lester Swain, Williamsport, a 10-pound gobbler in the Green Ridge section; Charles Reeves, Hyattsville, a 12 pound gobbler; Philip Lank, Hancock, a 14-pound gobbler; and Paul Miller, Barton, a 14-pound hen.

Minke said he ran into a number of hunters with rabbit and grouse. He saw four hunters with a bag of 13 rabbits between them and a number of hunters with a pair or so.

Three foxes were shot by hunters, one near the city and two in the Green Ridge area. A county bounty of $3 and a state bounty of $2 is paid for each fox kill, Minke said. Otherwise the animals, considered highly destructive to other game, are more or less valuless if shot, since the shot damages the pelt.

Minke said there were numerous out of state hunters in the county including some from Pennsylvania, Ohio, and many from West Virginia.

The kill the first day was heavy, Minke declared, and a good season is indicated.

Amvets Will Play In YMCA Cage Loop

First Practice Set For Tonight At "Y"

The Amvets will be represented in the Central YMCA Men's Senior Basketball League during the 1948-49 season and will hold their first practice tonight at 8:30 on the "Y" court, Coach Robert "Ace" Baker announced last night.

Holdovers of last season's squad and others desiring tryouts are requested to be present for tonight's drill.

The "Y" circuit will be composed of eight or nine teams and the set-up of the league will be known when the teams meet Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the "Y".

Ridgeley American Legion, defending champions, Cumberland Legion, Mapleside Merchants, B. & O. Backshops, Lapp's Plumbers, B.P.O. Elks, Amvets and Marine Reserves will be definite starters.

The league will play a split season schedule. Ridgeley won both halves last season.

Bill Alexander Given Touchdown Club Award

ATLANTA, Nov. 15 (AP)—William A. Alexander, Georgia Tech athletic director, winner of the National Touchdown Club award this year, was the first coach to put teams in the four major post-season bowl games.

The award, announced today, is given to the person voted as having done more for football over a long period of time.

In 1942 Alexander was named "Coach of the Year" in a poll conducted by the New York World Telegram.

Alexander's football teams won 133 games, lost 95 and tied eight. He put teams in the Rose Bowl in 1929, the Orange Bowl in 1940, the Cotton Bowl of 1943 and the Sugar Bowl of 1944.

Irish Coach Says

Murakowski Signed Death Warrant For Wildcats When He Stole Pass

Theft Inspired Team Crimmins Declares

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Nov. 15 (AP)—It seems Fullback Art Murakowski signed Northwestern's death warrant when he ran that stolen Notre Dame pass 91 yards for a touchdown at South Bend, Ind., last Saturday.

Assistant Coach Bernie Crimmins of Notre Dame told the Herald-American quarterback meeting today that the Irish became inspired instead of deflated when Murakowski put Northwestern ahead, 7-6, with Frank Tripucka's filched toss in the third period.

"Other players threw their arms comfortingly around Tripucka after that play and promised him they would get that touchdown back any time he wanted to march," said Crimmins.

"On the sidelines, Coach Frank Leahy laughed off the play, 'Frank,' he told Tripucka, 'you've thrown a lot of Notre Dame touchdown passes, forget about that Northwestern score you just threw. Let's get rolling again.'

"I could see right then," continued Crimmins, "that Tripucka regained his confidence completely and that 63-yard last quarter drive for our 12-7 win was no surprise."

But Murakowski, Crimmins admitted in later narrating movies of the game, was "a big thorn in our side all afternoon."

Crimmins, without disclosing dates, revealed that Notre Dame's 1949 football schedule will include Indiana, Purdue, Iowa, Navy, Michigan State, Southern California, Washington, Tulane and one team still under negotiation, presumably Southern Methodist.

Tulane and the still undetermined opponent will replace Pittsburgh and Northwestern, the only teams not carrying over from the 1948 slate.

Meet Brother F. Patrick
He Galloped With Gaels

Oldtimers Hear McGuire
Boxng Attendance "Up"

By C. V. BURNS

A soft-spoken man who has spent 35 years in the teaching profession in Christian Brother high schools and colleges of Maryland, Pennsylvania and California is now assistant director of athletics at La-Salle High School.

We had the pleasure of talking with Brother Felix Patrick the other day and the conversation lasted so long we believe he missed his supper. Next time we hope to catch him after supper so we can talk him to sleep.

Brother Patrick's life story is similar to that of the "Man Who Came To Dinner" because in 1928 he volunteered to go to California for a three years' stay and remained there for 15 years, teaching in Catholic high schools at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento and last but not least at St. Mary's College in the Moraga Valley whose Galloping Gaels of football fame have been in the national spotlight for many years. The name Gael means one of the Celtic inhabitants of Ireland, Scotland and the Isle of Man or any member of the Gaelic-speaking branch of the Celts.

For nine years Brother Patrick served on St. Mary's College faculty—1930 to 1939—and two of the three years he was a member of the board of athletic control he was chairman of that body. It was during this period that Edward "Slip" Madigan, one-time Notre Dame star, was turning out powerful football teams.

Brother Patrick pointed out that Santa Clara which stopped Nevada's winning streak recently is a Jesuit school and became a big power in football when "Buck" Shaw was coach there. Shaw is now coach of the San Francisco Forty-Niners, one of the top pro teams in the All-America Conference.

Santa Clara spilled the powerful Nevada team 14-0 but the Broncs had a hard time edging the Gaels on Sunday 10-7.

San Francisco University is also a Jesuit school and Portland University is in charge of the same order of priests that run Notre Dame University at South Bend.

Portland was formerly known as Columbia College but Brother Patrick says the students don't like the letters—P. U.

Brother Patrick is no stranger to Cumberland as he taught at LaSalle when the local school was located on Fayette Street in 1918-19. And he still gets quite a kick out of the story which appeared in local papers at that time to the effect that a burglar had broken into the Christian Brothers' Home.

"I'll wager that fellow received the biggest surprise of his life," the LaSalle instructor chuckled.

A native of Philadelphia, Brother Patrick began teaching at Calvert Hall, Baltimore, 35 years ago. From there he went to LaSalle College, Philadelphia, thence to St. Thomas College, Schanton, Pa. He was a member of the first faculty when Central Catholic High School was opened in 1927 at Pittsburgh and from there he returned to LaSalle in Philly.

During his stay on the coast he taught at Sacred Heart High School, San Francisco, the alma mater of three nationally famous athletes—Joe Cronin and Dolph Camilli, major league ballplayers, and Jim Corbett, one-time world's heavyweight boxing champion.

After coming back east in 1944 to LaSalle College, Philadelphia, he served as director of athletics for three years.

Brother Patrick is mathematics teacher at the North Centre Street school and the boys at LaSalle think he's a great fellow. He should be of invaluable assistance to Brother Gregory who is in there pitching again as director of athletics.

James F. "Jimmie" McGuire, who holds the distinction of kicking and breaking up more water buckets than any manager in the history of minor league baseball, was among the guests at the third annual banquet of the Johnstown (Pa.) Oldtimers' Baseball Association last week.

The little Irishman who helped keep baseball alive in Cumberland from 1922 through 1928, and was one of the organizers of the Middle Atlantic League in 1925, related several humorous experiences encountered in getting the league on sound footing.

McGuire first headed the Cumberland Colts in 1922 when they played independent ball at South End Park (now Taylor Field) and teamed up with Irving "Babe" Millenson and the late James K. Ford as officials of the Mid City Athletic Association which built Mid City Park (now Community Park or what is left of it) in 1923. He served as president of the Colts in the M.A. in 1925, 1927 and 1928 and in 1926 he headed the Uniontown (Pa.) Club in the same circuit.

Johnny Byrnes, the Eckhart grocer, who was McGuire's regular first sacker from 1922 through 1929 and manager of the club in 1928 and 1929, was also among the 546 persons at the Johnstown affair.

Others present included Cy Young, major league pitching star of yesteryear; Frankie Gustine, Pittsburgh Pirates' third baseman; Jim Murray, chief scout of the Brooklyn Dodgers; Stan Keck, former All-America football player, Dr. George W. McLaren, recreation director of the Glenn L. Martin Company, and Elmer Daily, Middle Atlantic League president.

The illness of Herman Taylor, Philadelphia's veteran fight promoter, brings back memories of the days when Taylor and Bob Gunnis staged shows featuring as many as four champions in one night at the Phillies' ball park. There were no decision fights in Pennsylvania in those days and four round bouts were all the rage. Fans could see a flock of topnotchers perform on the same card at a most reasonable admission price.

Attendance at local amateur fistic shows is up over last year. A total of 3,034 have paid to see the first five shows of the current season here compared to 2,327 for the same number of shows at the start of last season. This is an average of 506 to 465 per show

Rolfe, Detroit's New Pilot, Hopes To Add Strength

Former Yankee Named O'Neill's Successor

DETROIT, Nov. 15. (AP)—Robert A. (Red) Rolfe, former New York Yankee third base star, came back to the major leagues today as the new manager of the Detroit Tigers.

Robert A. Rolfe

He never before has managed a professional baseball team.

In a surprise move, he was promoted from the Detroit farm system in an effort to boost the faltering Tigers back into baseball's limelight. He has headed the farm system for the past year.

Rolfe has been out of the big time for six years, except for a tour of duty in 1946 as Yankee coach.

He succeeds Steve O'Neill, who was fired Nov. 6 after his 1948 Tigers floundered all season in the second division and ended up in fifth place.

Faces Sizeable Task

Rolfe, whose salary was not disclosed, faces a sizeable task in bringing the Tigers back into contention in the American League.

"This club has its weaknesses," he admitted to newsmen, "but it is not a bad ball club. If we can strengthen two or three spots, we will be up there in the pennant fight."

He specifically mentioned catching, second base and pitching.

"Our outifeld is adequate," Rolfe said.

He added that he expects Johnny Groth, the Buffalo Bison star, to gain a regular spot in the Detroit outfield next season.

"Naturally, I'm very happy," Rolfe grinned. "This is a big opportunity. It is somewhat of a surprise, because I've never had any experience as a manager. But I'm thrilled that Genreal Manager Billy Evans, owner Walter O. Briggs, and his son, Spike Briggs, have this faith in me."

Tigers Land Catcher

Detroit recently acquired the 32-year-old Aaron Robinson as a catcher from the Chicago White Sox. He may strengthen the Tigers behind the plate at least until a younger prospect develops.

At second base, where the hard-working but aging Eddie Mayo has been filling in, there appeared no immediate prospect of improvement except through a trade of some sort.

The Tiger pitching staff was one of the great disappointments of 1948. Only Hal Newhouser, who won 21 games while losing 12, lived up to advance billing.

Freddie Hutchinson and Virgil Trucks pitched slightly better than .500 ball. Paul (Dizzy) Trout, losing 14 and winning 10, was a disappointment. So was young Art Houtteman, who won two while losing 16.

There have been reports, not confirmed, that all but Newhouser might be placed on the trading block if the Tigers find themselves in a position to better the team.

Gets One Year Contract

Rolfe is the 13th manager of the Tigers in the modern baseball era. He joins a roster that at various times included such brilliant baseball figures as Hughie Jennings, Ty Cobb, Stanley (Bucky) Harris and Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane.

The Tigers never disclose the salary of their manager. By custom he receives a one-year contract which comes up for renewal at the close of the season.

Finances Stymie Those Promoting Baseball League

Spokesmen Of Four Cities At Meeting

WINCHESTER, Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—Efforts to organize a professional Class C or D baseball league in this area made slow progress tonight at the second meeting held within the past several weeks.

Out of a dozen or more cities and towns in a three-state area invited to send representatives to tonight's meeting, only four responded. They were Cumberland, Md., Harrisonburg, Woodstock and Winchester. The third state of the area, West Virginia, was not represented.

A spokesman for the four communities represented said they were interested but were unwilling to commit themselves to pledging financial assistance.

The meeting was in charge of Ray Ryan, of Hamilton, Ohio, who operates the Lakeland, Fla., club in the Florida International League. Ryan said he thought at least six cities in this area would express a readiness to set up the initial organization.

A spokesman said another meeting to consider a league organization may be held within two or three weeks.

Wally Moses Released By Boston Red Sox

BOSTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox today released Wally Moses, 37-year-old outfielder.

Manager Joe McCarthy said he wanted to make room for three young outfielders — Tom Wright, who was with the Sox at the tail end of last season, and Tom O'Brien and George Wilson coming up from Birmingham.

Moses, who had a lifetime batting average of close to .300, broke into the major leagues with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1935.

Manager McCarthy said he was giving Moses his outright release so the veteran outfielder could shop around for another place.

BRAVES GET HIM — Don Thompson, outfielder for the Columbus (Ohio) Redbirds, has been drafted by the Boston Braves. Thompson, a former pitcher, hit .235 in 1948.

130 Top Place Ballots Given To Wolverines

208 Writers Vote, Notre Dame Trails

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Michigan's mighty Wolverines continued to lead the nation's football teams in the weekly Associated Press Poll of sports writers today, bettering their first place margin of last week considerably.

Whereas they trailed Notre Dame by three first place ballots in the previous poll, the Big Nine champions gobbled up 130 of the 208 top spots. The other 78 No. 1 picks were divided among nine teams with Notre Dame on 27 first place ballots.

In point scoring, the determining factor, Michigan received 1,952 to 1,721 for the Fighting Irish. No doubt, last Saturday's results influenced a lot of voters. The Wolverines trampled Indiana under a 54-0 score while Notre Dame barely squeezed out a 12-7 triumph over Northwestern.

Notre Dame previously had beaten Indiana 42-6 and Michigan had swept past Northwestern 28-0.

Although they received only three first place votes to 16 for California, Army's Cadets took third place over the Golden Bears, 1,426 points to 1,288. That was the way the two teams stood a week ago.

Tar Heels Move Up

North Carolina, by virtue of its 49-20 romp over Maryland, moved up a peg into fifth place with 1,034 points as 11 voters tabbed the Tar Heels as their No. 1 team. Despite its 47-0 massacre of Temple, Penn State dropped down a notch to sixth place with 883 points and three first place ballots.

Northwestern, on its great showing against Notre Dame, moved up a notch into seventh place by a comfortable margin over Oklahoma's Sooners who also advanced a peg from ninth to eighth place. The Sooners pulled five first place votes.

Clemson, one of the five major unbeaten elevens, climbed into ninth place on the strength of its 21-14 victory over Wake Forest.

South Carolina attracted nine top berths, and missed beating out Oklahoma for eighth by a mere five points. Southern Methodist, a last second, 14-12 winner over Arkansas last Saturday, dropped three places but managed to finish in the top ten.

Only two other teams received first place mention. They were Georgia and Michigan State who finished 11th and 12th respectively. Each gained two No. 1 votes.

Tulane Makes Big Gain

The biggest gains were made by Tulane, which moved up from 22nd to 14th, and Mississippi, which advanced from 23rd to 17th. The biggest drops were experienced by Georgia Tech, which skidded from 11th to 20th, and Tennessee which slipped from 18th to 20th.

The point standings on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes in parentheses):

1. Michigan (130)	1,952
2. Notre Dame (27)	1,721
3. Army (1)	1,426
4. California (16)	1,288
5. North Carolina (11)	1,034
6. Penn State (3)	883
7. Northwestern	652
8. Oklahoma (5)	471
9. Clemson (9)	466
10. Southern Methodist	440

11. Georgia (2) 292; 12. Michigan State (2) 189; 13. Oregon 187; 14. Tulane 172; 15. Minnesota 69; 16. Pennsylvania 60; 17. Mississippi 50; 18. Ohio State 25; 19. Cornell 20; 20. Georgia Tech 16.

Others receiving points were: Duke and William and Mary 11 each; Vanderbilt 9; Kansas, Missouri and Appalachian State 7 each; Nevada 6; Wake Forest and Tennessee 3 each; North Carolina State, Canisius and Utah 2 each; and Texas, Princeton, Santa Clara, Oregon State and South Carolina 1 each.

Prepared To Accept Browns, Forty-Niners

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15—(INS)—Club-owners of the National Professional Football League held a secret meeting today and reportedly discussed plans for a 12-team circuit next season on the assumption that the rival All-American Conference will fold.

A reliable source said that the National League is prepared to accept the Cleveland and San Francisco teams of the All-America Conference as members.

It also was reported that plans were discussed for moving the National League's Boston Yanks to Yankee Stadium, New York, in the event the All-America folds.

Officials denied that the meeting occupied itself with the new league.

Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National League said:

"We did have a meeting, but it was about playoff dates and had nothing to do with what may happen to the All-America Conference."

Bert Bell, National League commissioner, and club representatives attended the session, which was not publicized in advance. The club-owners slipped into Pittsburgh and out again before they could be contacted.

One source said that the increase of the National League from 10 to 12 teams had been definitely decided upon previously and details were worked out today.

Reports have been current for several weeks that the All-America is on the verge of tossing in the sponge in the war with the National.

Dan Topping, owner of the New York Yankees, denied today that he knew anything about the Boston Yankees being moved into his Yankee Stadium.

The All-America Conference club-owner said over the phone when told of the reported plans for a new National League setup:

"This is the first I've heard about it. We are not going to cut the throats of our partners by any such deal as this.

"We are anxious for peace and we will go a long way for it, but we don't know anything about this and we should know if the Boston Yankees or anybody else is taking over Yankee Stadium."

SUGAR ROBINSON WINS OVER LEE, BILLY CONN STOPS O'DOWD IN 9TH

DIMAGGIO UNDERGOES OPERATION ON HEEL

BALTIMORE, Nov. 15—(INS)—New York Yankee star outfielder Joe DiMaggio underwent an operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore today for removal of a small bone spur from his right heel.

Hospital authorities said success of the operation can be determined only when the bandages are removed in about ten days.

The operation was performed by Dr. George E. Bennett, who removed a similar growth from DiMaggio's left heel 18 months ago.

The ballplayer's physical condition was said to be "excellent" after the operation. He was in the operating room for 40 minutes under a general anesthetic while the surgery was performed.

CHAMP GETS TROPHY—Glen Burke, place-kicking champion of Fort Hill High School's undefeated and untied football team, is shown holding the trophy presented to him last night at the Maryland Theater. The trophy was offered by G. Ray Light, theater manager, and was presented by Sammy Cozad. Burke has kicked 34 points after touchdown this season, bettering the former city record of 32 held by Jimmie Mangus, also of Fort Hill. Miniature gold footballs were presented by Carl Ballard to high school gridders named thus far in the K. of C. Player-of-the-Week poll at last night's exercises.

'Rip' Engle, Brown Coach, Flays Substitution Rule

Mentors Of Smaller Colleges Ask Change

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Coaches of the smaller college squads protested today against the controversial free substitution rule that permits two-platoon play in football.

Rip Engle

Coaches from several eastern institutions where material runs thin complained that the rule favored the bigger teams and eliminated the test of endurance from the sport.

Others, speaking at the weekly meeting of New York football writers, said the regulation militated against development of the well-rounded player.

A majority urged a modification which would permit three or four men to enter the game at a time.

Under the present no-limit system, players may be alternated in wholesale lots. This has popularized the two-platoon plan—a team for offense and a team for defense—among schools with enough material. Army is a leading proponent.

May Need Two Coaches

"The rule definitely favors the schools with big squads," said Charles "rip" Engle of Brown. "It works to the disadvantage of those who don't have enough men to shove in eleven at a time.

"Pretty soon it'll get to a point that we have two sets of coaches for each team—one for offense and one for defense."

Ted Rosequist of Brooklyn College, who said his squad numbered 21 men, declared the rule robbed football of one of the main features of competitive sports—the test of endurance.

"I'd hate to see the day come when we wouldn't have any 60-minute players and when a man would have to do just one thing well to be a regular."

The Rutgers coach, Harvey Harman, said ,"I'm just old-fashioned enough to want a football player to be a football player, one who can run, tackle and block and who can last."

Agreeing with Harman were Ed Danowski of Fordham and Hook Mylin of New York University.

Little Queries Mentors

Lou Little, Columbia coach who heads the football coaches rules committee, said he was querying coaches this week on possible rules changes. Little, himself, favors free substitution.

The coaches don't change the rules but make recommendations to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Charles Kayoes Hafer In 7th At Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Nov. 15 (AP)—Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati's heavyweight championship hope, wheeled his big guns into action in the seventh round here tonight to knock out Walter Hafer of Maysville, Ky., in what had been scheduled as a 10-rount bout.

Charles weighed 178 pounds and Hafer 200.

A crowd of 4,843 paid $20,577.40 to watch Charles in his last bout before meeting Joe Baksi in New York's Madison Square Garden. That bout may produce a future opponent for heavyweight champ Joe Louis.

FREE SUBSTITUTION RULE IS APPROVED BY GETTYSBURG MENTOR

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15 (AP)—"Let's keep this substitution rule," Coach Hen Bream of Gettysburg College said today. "It gives more kids the chance to play football."

Bream, who has been coaching football and basketball teams at Gettysburg for 23 years, spoke at the weekly Maxwell Club luncheon and went on record strongly in favor of the much discussed free substitution rule.

"We started this season with a squad of 43 men. We still have 40," said Bream. "The three others are out with injuries.

"And the fact that we haven't lost any players is a direct result of the rule on substitutions."

Bream explained it is his belief that football should be made a part of the lives of as many collegians as possible.

"Why, some kids will come out for a team and go to practice every day just in hopes of getting in for one play. That's something they'll be able to tell their children about," Bream went on, adding:

"And any rule that adds to their chances of getting in a game is a good rule."

Oregon Accuses Bears Of Dodging Playoff

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 15 (AP)—Oregon accused California today of dodging a post-season playoff for the right to enter the Rose Bowl.

Leo A. Harris, Oregon athletic director, said California rejected a private challenge last week, but added he had not given up hope.

Harris said he was re-issuing the challenge publicly because "everyone interested in intercollegiate football and the Rose Bowl would prefer to have the selection of the conference representative in the 1949 Rose Bowl game depend on the result of a game between the two schools."

Harris added if either team loses its remaining game on schedule, the playoff proposal would be dropped.

Record Turkey Is Killed By George Knott

Celanese Worker Gets First Big Gobbler

George Knott, 12 Pennsylvania Avenue, a Celanese employee, killed a wild turkey gobbler weighing 18 pounds, 14 ounces yesterday on top of Town Hill, near the beacon light there. It is a record size bird and the first one Knott has killed. He said he has been hunting several seasons, but this is the first turkey he has shot.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, said 15 pounds is considered a big bird in this area, and the one killed by Knott may be a record for the season. The bird has a 10-inch beard and was described by Minke as "a really nice big gobbler."

Kenneth Windemuth, Mt. Savage, also came home with a big gobbler. His bird weighs 17 pounds and was killed in the Green Ridge area.

Other hunters reporting turkey kills included Washington County Commissoner Joseph Hoffman of Williamsport, a 10-pound gobbler; Washington County Engineer Lester Swain, Williamsport, a 10-pound gobbler in the Green Ridge section; Charles Reeves, Hyattsville, a 12 pound gobbler; Philip Lank, Hancock, a 14-pound gobbler; and Paul Miller, Barton, a 14-pound hen.

Minke said he ran into a number of hunters with rabbit and grouse. He saw four hunters with a bag of 13 rabbits between them and a number of hunters with a pair or so.

Three foxes were shot by hunters, one near the city and two in the Green Ridge area. A county bounty of $3 and a state bounty of $2 is paid for each fox kill, Minke said. Otherwise the animals, considered highly destructive to other game, are more or less valuless if shot, since the shot damages the pelt.

Minke said there were numerous out of state hunters in the county including some from Pennsylvania, Ohio, and many from West Virginia.

The kill the first day was heavy, Minke declared, and a good season is indicated.

Ridgeley American Legion, defending champions, Cumberland Legion, Mapleside Merchants, B. & O. Backshops, Lapp's Plumbers, B.P.O. Elks, Amvets and Marine Reserves will be definite starters.

The league will play a split season schedule. Ridgeley won both halves last season.

Bill Alexander Given Touchdown Club Award

ATLANTA, Nov. 15 (AP)—William A. Alexander, Georgia Tech athletic director, winner of the National Touchdown Club award this year, was the first coach to put teams in the four major post-season bowl games.

The award, announced today, is given to the person voted as having done more for football over a long period of time.

In 1942 Alexander was named "Coach of the Year" in a poll conducted by the New York World Telegram.

Alexander's football teams won 133 games, lost 95 and tied eight. He put teams in the Rose Bowl in 1929, the Orange Bowl in 1940, the Cotton Bowl of 1943 and the Sugar Bowl of 1944.

Irish Coach Says

Murakowski Signed Death Warrant For Wildcats When He Stole Pass

Theft Inspired Team Crimmins Declares

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Nov. 15 (AP)—It seems Fullback Art Murakowski signed Northwestern's death warrant when he ran that stolen Notre Dame pass 91 yards for a touchdown at South Bend, Ind., last Saturday.

Assistant Coach Bernie Crimmins of Notre Dame told the Herald-American quarterback meeting today that the Irish became inspired instead of deflated when Murakowski put Northwestern ahead, 7-6, with Frank Tripucka's filched toss in the third period.

"Other players threw their arms comfortingly around Tripucka after that play and promised him they would get that touchdown back any time he wanted to march," said Crimmins.

"On the sidelines, Coach Frank Leahy laughed off the play, 'Frank,' he told Tripucka, 'you've thrown a lot of Notre Dame touchdown passes, forget about that Northwestern score you just threw. Let's get rolling again.'

"I could see right then," continued Crimmins, "that Tripucka regained his confidence completely and that 63-yard last quarter drive for our 12-7 win was no surprise."

But Murakowski, Crimmins admitted in later narrating movies of the game, was "a big thorn in our side all afternoon."

Crimmins, without disclosing dates, revealed that Notre Dame's 1949 football schedule will include Indiana, Purdue, Iowa, Navy, Michigan State, Southern California, Washington, Tulane and one team still under negotiation, presumably Southern Methodist.

Tulane and the still undetermined opponent will replace Pittsburgh and Northwestern, the only teams not carrying over from the 1948 slate.

Meet Brother F. Patrick
He Galloped With Gaels

Oldtimers Hear McGuire
Boxng Attendance "Up"

By C. V. BURNS

A soft-spoken man who has spent 35 years in the teaching profession in Christian Brother high schools and colleges of Maryland, Pennsylvania and California is now assistant director of athletics at La-Salle High School.

We had the pleasure of talking with Brother Felix Patrick the other day and the conversation lasted so long we believe he missed his supper. Next time we hope to catch him after supper so we can talk him to sleep.

Brother Patrick's life story is similar to that of the "Man Who Came To Dinner" because in 1928 he volunteered to go to California for a three years' stay and remained there for 15 years, teaching in Catholic high schools at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento and last but not least at St. Mary's College in the Moraga Valley whose Galloping Gaels of football fame have been in the national spotlight for many years. The name Gael means one of the Celtic inhabitants of Ireland, Scotland and the Isle of Man or any member of the Gaelic-speaking branch of the Celts.

For nine years Brother Patrick served on St. Mary's College faculty—1930 to 1939—and two of the three years he was a member of the board of athletic control he was chairman of that body. It was during this period that Edward "Slip" Madigan, one-time Notre Dame star, was turning out powerful football teams.

Brother Patrick pointed out that Santa Clara which stopped Nevada's winning streak recently is a Jesuit school and became a big power in football when "Buck" Shaw was coach there. Shaw is now coach of the San Francisco Forty-Niners, one of the top pro teams in the All-America Conference.

Santa Clara spilled the powerful Nevada team 14-0 but the Broncs had a hard time edging the Gaels on Sunday 10-7.

San Francisco University is also a Jesuit school and Portland University is in charge of the same order of priests that run Notre Dame University at South Bend.

Portland was formerly known as Columbia College but Brother Patrick says the students don't like the letters—P. U.

Brother Patrick is no stranger to Cumberland as he taught at LaSalle when the local school was located on Fayette Street in 1918-19. And he still gets quite a kick out of the story which appeared in local papers at that time to the effect that a burglar had broken into the Christian Brothers' Home.

"I'll wager that fellow received the biggest surprise of his life," the LaSalle instructor chuckled.

A native of Philadelphia, Brother Patrick began teaching at Calvert Hall, Baltimore, 35 years ago. From there he went to LaSalle College, Philadelphia, thence to St. Thomas College, Schanton, Pa. He was a member of the first faculty when Central Catholic High School was opened in 1927 at Pittsburgh and from there he returned to LaSalle in Philly.

During his stay on the coast he taught at Sacred Heart High School, San Francisco, the alma mater of three nationally famous athletes—Joe Cronin and Dolph Camilli, major league ballplayers, and Jim Corbett, one-time world's heavyweight boxing champion.

After coming back east in 1944 to LaSalle College, Philadelphia, he served as director of athletics for three years.

Brother Patrick is mathematics teacher at the North Centre Street school and the boys at LaSalle think he's a great fellow. He should be of invaluable assistance to Brother Gregory who is in there pitching again as director of athletics.

James F. "Jimmie" McGuire, who holds the distinction of kicking and breaking up more water buckets than any manager in the history of minor league baseball, was among the guests at the third annual banquet of the Johnstown (Pa.) Oldtimers' Baseball Association last week.

The little Irishman who helped keep baseball alive in Cumberland from 1922 through 1928, and was one of the organizers of the Middle Atlantic League in 1925, related several humorous experiences encountered in getting the league on sound footing.

McGuire first headed the Cumberland Colts in 1922 when they played independent ball at South End Park (now Taylor Field) and teamed up with Irving "Babe" Millenson and the late James K. Ford as officials of the Mid City Athletic Association which built Mid City Park (now Community Park or what is left of it) in 1923. He served as president of the Colts in the M.A. in 1925, 1927 and 1928 and in 1926 he headed the Uniontown (Pa.) Club in the same circuit.

Johnny Byrnes, the Eckhart grocer, who was McGuire's regular first sacker from 1922 through 1929 and manager of the club in 1928 and 1929, was also among the 546 persons at the Johnstown affair.

Others present included Cy Young, major league pitching star of yesteryear; Frankie Gustine, Pittsburgh Pirates' third baseman; Jim Murray, chief scout of the Brooklyn Dodgers; Stan Keck, former All-America football player, Dr. George W. McLaren, recreation director of the Glenn L. Martin Company, and Elmer Daily, Middle Atlantic League president.

The illness of Herman Taylor, Philadelphia's veteran fight promoter, brings back memories of the days when Taylor and Bob Gunnis staged shows featuring as many as four champions in one night at the Phillies' ball park. There were no decision fights in Pennsylvania in those days and four round bouts were all the rage. Fans could see a flock of topnotchers perform on the same card at a most reasonable admission price.

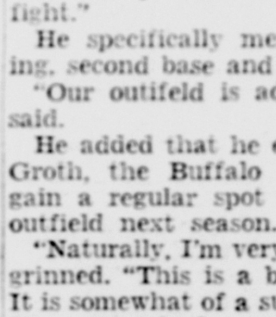
Attendance at local amateur fistic shows is up over last year. A total of 3,034 have paid to see the first five shows of the current season here compared to 2,327 for the same number of shows at the start of last season. This is an average of 606 to 465 per show

Rolfe, Detroit's New Pilot, Hopes To Add Strength

Former Yankee Named O'Neill's Successor

DETROIT, Nov. 15, (AP)—Robert A. (Red) Rolfe, former New York Yankee third base star, came back to the major leagues today as the new manager of the Detroit Tigers.



Robert A. Rolfe

He never before has managed a professional baseball team.

In a surprise move, he was promoted from the Detroit farm system in an effort to boost the faltering Tigers back into baseball's limelight. He has headed the farm system for the past year.

Rolfe has been out of the big time for six years, except for a tour of duty in 1946 as Yankee coach.

He succeeds Steve O'Neill, who was fired Nov. 6 after his 1948 Tigers floundered all season in the second division and ended up in fifth place.

Faces Sizeable Task

Rolfe, whose salary was not disclosed, faces a sizeable task in bringing the Tigers back into contention in the American League.

"This club has its weaknesses," he admitted to newsmen, "but it is not a bad ball club. If we can strengthen two or three spots, we will be up there in the pennant fight."

He specifically mentioned catching, second base and pitching.

"Our outifeld is adequate," Rolfe said.

He added that he expects Johnny Groth, the Buffalo Bison star, to gain a regular spot in the Detroit outfield next season.

"Naturally, I'm very happy," Rolfe grinned. "This is a big opportunity. It is somewhat of a surprise, because I've never had any experience as a manager. But I'm thrilled that Genreal Manager Billy Evans, owner Walter O. Briggs, and his son, Spike Briggs, have this faith in me."

Tigers Land Catcher

Detroit recently acquired the 32-year-old Aaron Robinson as a catcher from the Chicago White Sox. He may strengthen the Tigers behind the plate at least until a younger prospect develops.

At second base, where the hard-working but aging Eddie Mayo has been filling in, there appeared no immediate prospect of improvement except through a trade of some sort.

The Tiger pitching staff was one of the great disappointments of 1948. Only Hal Newhouser, who won 21 games while losing 12, lived up to advance billing.

Freddie Hutchinson and Virgil Trucks pitched slightly better than .500 ball. Paul (Dizzy) Trout, losing 14 and winning 10, was a disappointment. So was young Art Houteman, who won two while losing 16.

There have been reports, not confirmed, that all but Newhouser might be placed on the trading block if the Tigers find themselves in a position to better the team.

Gets One Year Contract

Rolfe is the 13th manager of the Tigers in the modern baseball era. He joins a roster that at various times included such brilliant baseball figures as Hughie Jennings, Ty Cobb, Stanley (Bucky) Harris and Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane.

The Tigers never disclose the salary of their manager. By custom he receives a one-year contract which comes up for renewal at the close of the season.

Mauriello Scores KO

HOLYOKE, Mass., Nov. 15, (AP)—New York's Tami Mauriello used an overhand right to end an action packed heavyweight fight tonight, knocking out Leo Stoll of Baltimore in 50 seconds of the fourth round of a scheduled 10 at Valley Arena.

BEALL HIGH PLAYS FRANKLIN BOOTERS TODAY FOR TITLE

Beall High School of Frostburg and Franklin High School of Reisterstown, Baltimore County, will battle it out for the Class "B" school soccer championship of Maryland today at 2 p. m., on the Boonsboro High School field in Washington County.

Finances Stymie Those Promoting Baseball League

Spokesmen Of Four Cities At Meeting

WINCHESTER, Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—Efforts to organize a professional Class C or D baseball league in this area made slow progress tonight at the second meeting held within the past several weeks.

Out of a dozen or more cities and towns in a three-state area invited to send representatives to tonight's meeting, only four responded. They were Cumberland, Md., Harrisonburg, Woodstock and Winchester. The third state of the area, West Virginia, was not represented.

A spokesman for the four communities represented said they were interested but were unwilling to commit themselves to pledging financial assistance.

The meeting was in charge of Ray Ryan, of Hamilton, Ohio, who operates the Lakeland, Fla., club in the Florida International League. Ryan said he thought at least six cities in this area would express a readiness to set up the initial organization.

A spokesman said another meeting to consider a league organization may be held within two or three weeks.

TWENTY WIN HAMS, TURKEYS IN SHOOT AT RIDGELEY TRAPS

Twenty persons won turkeys and hams at the trapshoot held Sunday by the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club.

Charles "Lefty" Jordan and Paul Nycum headed the winners with a turkey and ham each.

Those winning turkeys were Kenneth Carter, Isadore Kamens, Walter Bittner, Mrs. Weakley, Hayworth Custer, Delbert Tomman, James King, Kate Hager, Charles Barb, Tony Francis, Edgar H. McDonald, Everett Marean, E. Deremer and Walter Whitfield.

Harry Barton, John Winterstine, Albert Decker and Kelly Kelso won hams.

Forty shooters participated in the club's first turkey and ham shoot of the season.

Wally Moses Released By Boston Red Sox

BOSTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox today released Wally Moses, 37-year-old outfielder.

Manager Joe McCarthy said he wanted to make room for three young outfielders — Tom Wright, who was with the Sox at the tail end of last season, and Tom O'Brien and George Wilson coming up from Birmingham.

Moses, who had a lifetime batting average of close to .300, broke into the major leagues with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1935.

Manager McCarthy said he was giving Moses his outright release so the veteran outfielder could shop around for another place.

BRAVES GET HIM — Don Thompson, outfielder for the Columbus (Ohio) Redbirds, has been drafted by the Boston Braves. Thompson, a former pitcher, hit .285 in 1948.

130 Top Place Ballots Given To Wolverines

208 Writers Vote, Notre Dame Trails

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Michigan's mighty Wolverines continued to lead the nation's football teams in the weekly Associated Press Poll of sports writers today, bettering their first place margin of last week considerably.

Whereas they trailed Notre Dame by three first place ballots in the previous poll, the Big Nine champions gobbled up 130 of the 208 top spots. The other 78 No. 1 picks were divided among nine teams with Notre Dame on 27 first place ballots.

In point scoring, the determining factor, Michigan received 1,952 to 1,721 for the Fighting Irish. No doubt, last Saturday's results influenced a lot of voters. The Wolverines trampled Indiana under a 54-0 score while Notre Dame barely squeezed out a 12-7 triumph over Northwestern.

Notre Dame previously had beaten Indiana 42-6 and Michigan had swept past Northwestern 28-0.

Although they received only three first place votes to 16 for California, Army's Cadets took third place over the Golden Bears, 1,426 points to 1,288. That was the way the two teams stood a week ago.

Tar Heels Move Up

North Carolina, by virtue of its 49-20 romp over Maryland, moved up a peg into fifth place with 1,034 points as 11 voters tabbed the Tar Heels as their No. 1 team. Despite its 47-0 massacre of Temple, Penn State dropped down a notch to sixth place with 883 points and three first place ballots.

Northwestern, on its great showing against Notre Dame, moved up a notch into seventh place by a comfortable margin over Oklahoma's Sooners who also advanced a peg from ninth to eighth place. The Sooners pulled five first place votes.

Clemson, one of the five major unbeaten elevens, climbed into ninth place on the strength of its 21-14 victory over Wake Forest.

South Carolina attracted nine top berths, and missed beating out Oklahoma for eighth by a mere five points. Southern Methodist, a last second, 14-12 winner over Arkansas last Saturday, dropped three places but managed to finish in the top ten.

Only two other teams received first place mention. They were Georgia and Michigan State who finished 11th and 12th respectively. Each gained two No. 1 votes.

Tulane Makes Big Gain

The biggest gains were made by Tulane, which moved up from 22nd to 14th, and Mississippi, which advanced from 23rd to 17th. The biggest drops were experienced by Georgia Tech, which skidded from 11th to 20th, and Tennessee which slipped from 18th to 20th.

The point standings on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes in parentheses):

1. Michigan (130)	1,952
2. Notre Dame (27)	1,721
3. Army (3)	1,426
4. California (16)	1,288
5. North Carolina (11)	1,034
6. Penn State (3)	883
7. Northwestern	652
8. Oklahoma (5)	471
9. Clemson (9)	466
10. Southern Methodist	440

11. Georgia (2) 292; 12. Michigan State (2) 189; 13. Oregon 187; 14. Tulane 172; Tulane 172; 15. Minnesota 69; 16. Pennsylvania 60; 17. Mississippi 50; 18. Ohio State 25; 19. Cornell 20; 20. Georgia Tech 16.

Others receiving points were: Duke and William and Mary 11 each; Vanderbilt 9; Kansas, Missouri and Appalachian State 7 each; Nevada 6; Wake Forest and Tennessee 3 each; North Carolina State, Canisius and Utah 2 each; and Texas, Princeton, Santa Clara, Oregon State and South Carolina 1 each.

Buffalo Bills Lose Services Of Steuber

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—Bob Steuber, regular right halfback and extra point specialist for the Buffalo Bills of the All-America Football Conference, was lost to the club today for the rest of the season.

The ex-Missouri star suffered a back injury in the opening minutes of yesterday's game against the Los Angeles Dons when he was nailed after a 43-yard run. The Dons won, 27-20 ,and dropped the Bills into a three-way tie for the eastern division lead.

Sunday School League Will Make Final Plans

Final plans for the Central YMCA Sunday School Basketball League will be formulated at a meeting to be held tonight at the "Y". The time for the meeting has been changed from 7:30 to 8 o'clock, Clifton Van Roby, secretary, announced last evening.

The season may get under way on Saturday, November 20 instead of the first week in December as in past years, Roby said.

Minor Loop Would Curtail Television

YORK, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP) — The Class B Interstate League directors today proposed a curtailment of television baseball broadcasts in minor league cities.

The club officials assembled here for their November meeting, instructed President Gerry Nugent to confer with the National Baseball Association's radio and television committee at the association's December meeting in Minneapolis in an attempt to iron out the problem.

Athletics Purchase Wright From Chisox

CHICAGO, Nov. 15 (AP)—Outfielder Taft Wright, 35, today was sold by the Chicago White Sox to the Philadelphia Athletics. The Sox described the sale as the opener in other deals with the Athletics.

Wright, who joined the White Sox in 1940, batted .279 last season after a major league hitting mark of .320 for seven previous seasons, including two with the Washington Senators in 1938-39.

Fight Rescheduled

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Promoter Andy Niederreiter of the Tournament of Champions said today he had removed the last obstacles to the Ray Robinson-Steve Belloise battle, now rescheduled for Jersey City, Dec. 9.

Niederreiter announced he had received a wire from Jack Singer, Buffalo promoter, releasing Robinson from a Nov. 30 Buffalo bout with Henry Brimm. He said this fight has been rescheduled for Jan. 11.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

Pola Negri

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15. (INS)—Those two blue-ribbon boys, Bing Crosby and Frank Capra, who have enough Oscars between them to start a store, will work together for the first time when Frank starts his first movie on his new Paramount contract.

Frank has selected "Broadway Bill," a short story by the late Mark Hellinger. What a combination of talents this is—the one and only Bing, top director Capra and Hellinger who know his Broadway and human nature as have few other men.

Of course, there will be songs—with Johnny Burke and Jimmy Van Heusen already at work on the score. Bing once told me he would never get so stuck on his own acting that he would make a movie without songs—smart boy.

I doubt if the Crosby-Capra movie will start before March because "Broadway Bill," in its original form, is just a story idea and has to be expanded.

• — • — •

Judy Canova a girl who can fight when the occasion requires it.

She has just lodged a protest with the Italian government to gain possession of a 40-room villa in Pasgano, Italy, which she inherited in 1945 from the late Antonio Canova, the Italian sculptor, to whom she was related. She turned the Villa over to the government at that time, with the provision that it be used as a school or hospital.

Now she has learned that racketeers got possession of the Villa and are operating it as a gambling resort. She will ask the government to hand it back to her.

• — • — •

Pola Negri heads for Hollywood within four weeks, bringing her autobiography, "As Much As I Dare." Scribners, who will publish the book in which Pola says she tells a little more than she dares, says it won't be out until next September.

Pola returned from France a few days ago, bringing her mother, Madame Eleanor Chalupec, and some pieces of signed furniture from her Villa in the south of France.

• — • — •

Gene Tierney goes to her home studio, 20th Century-Fox, February 1 for "Methinks The Lady." This will precede the commitment 20th made for her with Paramount in exchange for Ray Milland.

Harry Ginsberg is just as well satisfied that Gene comes to Paramount later, since, at this writing, he has nothing ready for her.

But she will definitely make the picture at Paramount some time in the early part of next year.

• — • — •

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Pretty Mary Hatcher's new heart is Bill O'Brien, a war correspondent. He is a brother of Edmund O'Brien, the actor.

Sam Goldwyn is dickering with Sally Benson to write the screenplay on "Billion-Dollar Baby."

The Oscar Homolka-Joan Tetzel romance is hotter than a California day in Novmeber Don't be surprised if it ends in marriage.

Reports have it that Robert Montgomery turned down $275,000 to direct and star in a movie with one of our top stars. Says he couldn't afford it, on account of the taxes.

John Ford will probably be called a genius all over again. He shot some rain scenes for "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" and the odd effects obtained in color are very dramatic. The reason John shot so many rain sequences was because it rained on location all the time. John's money was in the movie and he didn't want to lose any time.

One thing about Jane Nigh, you are never in doubt who the boy friend is. Now it's Kurt Kreuger, who has been giving her devoted attention since his return.

Shirley Temple and Clifton Webb, who are in Reno—not for the usual reason, but making a picture—took time out to appear at a charity entertainment.

Flora Robson cables that she left the cast of "Christopher Columbus" because she wanted to play comedy for a change, and not because of Florence Eldridge.

That's all today.

In British show business a singer or musician who performs well is known as a "nice noise."

More than $28,000,000 will be spent by the Economic Coordination Administration, the Greek War Relief Association and the Greek government to construct much-needed modern health facilities.

ACP Community Committeemen To Be Elected

Mineral Co. Groups To Vote Monday

KEYSER, W. Va.—Elections for Agriculture Conservation Program community committeemen in Mineral County for 1949 will be held Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, in the seven agricultural communities in the county, according to Thomas R. Bosley, chairman of the local county ACP committee.

Elected farmer committeemen are the real strength of the ACP, J. War Wood, state chairman, said, adding that "through the leadership of these committeemen, the program is carried on in every agricultural county in the entire country. Every farmer who is eligible to vote in the coming farmer-committee elections is urged to participate by Chairman Wood. RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Eleanor and Anna

Mother and daughter discussion programs, a fairly recent innovation in radio, achieved impressive respectability last week with the inauguration of a new one by what the American Broadcasting Company describes as "the most eminent mother and her daughter in the world," Eleanor and Anna Roosevelt. (Mrs. Boettiger has dropped her married name apparently for professional reasons at least for this program).

Eleanor Roosevelt

Since Mrs. Roosevelt is in Paris attending the United Nation Assembly meeting and Mrs. Boettiger in Hollywood, this is easily the most far-flung mother and daughter arrangement in broadcasting. In general, Mrs. Roosevelt is expected to handle the serious topics, Mrs. Boettiger the more trivial ones. So far Mrs. Roosevelt has commented only once with any degree of earnestness, in her first program, when with uncompromising vigor unusual in this ordinarily mild woman, she urged that the Dixicrats be thrown out of the Democratic party and that the party make a clean break with Southern conservatives.

Since then Mrs. Roosevelt has devoted her time chiefly to interviewing her guests, an awe-inspiring list. The first was Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the United Nations, who discovered some reason for optimism in the work of the United Nations and then spoke with mounting cheerfulness of the building of the United Nations Headquarters in New York. The second guest was Secretary of State Marshall who declared brusquely: "Some nations are using the United Nations almost exclusively as a sounding board to get their propaganda before the world."

He closed, as is customary in any discussion of the accomplishments of the U. N., on a note of hope, the faintest note of hope I've ever heard. The U. N., he said, had made some progress in ironing out procedures.

Early returns indicate that the guests on this program will be of an importance not matched anywhere else but Mrs. Boettiger in the first program promised they will present some unknowns "chosen just because they are Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen."

As a radio personality Mrs. Roosevelt will never match her husband. She has a Helen Hokinson voice, a woman's club squeal, strikingly at variance with the firm opinions and keen mind of its transmitter. Having brushed briefly against the undisputed charm of the former First Lady, I can assure all those who haven't that most of the charm is siphoned off by the microphone. It would help if Mrs. Roosevelt could rid herself of a nervous giggle that disfigures even her most serious comments.

At the other, more feminine end of this mother-daughter program, Mrs. Boettiger, who receives the lion's share of the fifteen minutes, has ranged from the elections which she regarded with unqualified satisfaction to a West Coast trend back to short skirts which she viewed with unmitigated horror. She reads her lines rather colorlessly without vocal mannerisms, in a voice that will neither annoy nor grip the average listener, but she has a lively mind.

Her material is considerably more intimate than that of Mrs. Roosevelt. Concerning the rebuilding of the White House, she revealed that her father had always been afraid of the fire hazard because he couldn't get around as rapidly as others, adding candidly "because he had polio." She told how her mother taught the kids how to relax (made 'em lie flat on the floor) and how her cat Arizona was born in a bureau drawer. She has a gift for

If any further clues to Mrs. Boettiger's stand on affairs is needed, she has roundly endorsed Federal aid to schools, National Be Kind to Animals Week, and a new course in White Plains, N. Y., schools designed to help women understand athletic contests without pestering their husbands. I'm four-square on all these issues too.

The Anna and Eleanor Roosevelt program (A.B.C. 10:45 a. m. E.S.T. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) is still a little stiff and formal but, like Mrs. Roosevelt's column, time and experience will probably change that. Though Mrs. Boettiger has promised occasionally to disagree with her mother.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Eleanor and Anna

Mother and daughter discussion programs, a fairly recent innovation in radio, achieved impressive respectability last week with the inauguration of a new one by what the American Broadcasting Company describes as "the most eminent mother and her daughter in the world," Eleanor and Anna Roosevelt. (Mrs. Boettiger has dropped her married name apparently for professional reasons at least for this program).

Eleanor Roosevelt

Since Mrs. Roosevelt is in Paris attending the United Nation Assembly meeting and Mrs. Boettiger in Hollywood, this is easily the most farflung mother and daughter arrangement in broadcasting. In general, Mrs. Roosevelt is expected to handle the serious topics, Mrs. Boettiger the more trivial ones. So far Mrs. Roosevelt has commented only once with any degree of earnestness, in her first program, when with uncompromising vigor unusual in this ordinarily mild woman, she urged that the Dixicrats be thrown out of the Democratic party and that the party make a clean break with Southern conservatives.

Since then Mrs. Roosevelt has devoted her time chiefly to interviewing her guests, an awe-inspiring list. The first was Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the United Nations, who discovered some reason for optimism in the work of the United Nations and then spoke with mounting cheerfulness of the building of the United Nations Headquarters in New York. The second guest was Secretary of State Marshall who declared brusquely: "Some nations are using the United Nations almost exclusively as a sounding board to get their propaganda before the world."

He closed, as is customary in any discussion of the accomplishments of the U. N., on a note of hope, the faintest note of hope I've ever heard. The U. N., he said, had made some progress in ironing out procedures.

Declaration Of Dividends Gives Market Best Day Since Nov. 4

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Good news from the business front pushed the stock market up today in its best session since November 4.

Gains ran generally from fractions to more than a point with some of the leaders advancing better than two points.

Prices started off the day with a great deal of hesitancy, but they strengthened materially as several increased dividends were declared and favorable earnings reported.

DuPont declared a year end dividend of $3.75 making total 1948 payments $9.75 against $8 in 1947. Baltimore & Ohio declared a one dollar dividend of preferred, the first since a payment of one dollar in 1932 based on a declaration at the end of 1931. Standard Oil Co. of Kentucky (on the curb) declared a 65 cent extra, making dividends of $2.65 this year against two dollars in 1947.

Baltimore & Ohio preferred was up 2⅞ at 21⅝, U. S. Gypsum up 3¾ at 102¾, American Woolen up 2⅛ at 42¾, and DuPont up 2¼ at 172. Others up a point or more included U. S. Steel, Great Northern preferred, Union Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Mission Corp., Richfield, Atlantic Refining, Kennecott, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Johns Manville, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, J. I. Case (which declared an additional 10 per cent stock dividend after the market closed), Caterpillar, Boeing, and Schenley.

Going down were Allied Chemical, American Can, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Nickel Plate, American Cyanamid, Transcontinental & Western Air, and Firestone.

Motors were among the laggards most of the day, and the oils had some difficulty in getting to the plus side as a group until late in the session.

Toward the close there was some small profit taking which cut down the widest gains but not enough to change the character of the market. Rails suffered a sinking spell from their top after the Association of American Railroads placed freight embargoes on two more east coast cities because of the longshoremen's strike.

The bond market had one of its best days since the election.

Rails paced the broad advance—some posting gains of three points or better in lively trading. Losers were far in the minority.

Injured Soldier Still Unconscious

James White, 17, Batavia, N. Y., soldier who was injured in an auto accident near Fort Ashby Saturday morning, was described by one of his physicians as "improving" at Allegany Hospital, where he remained unconscious last night.

The physician reported the youth sustained a probable fractured skull, a concussion, cerebral lacerations with hemorrhage into the brain covering, and multiple contused lacerations of the scalp and forehead.

Cpl. R. R. Karickhoff of the West Virginia State Police said White was riding in the front seat of a car driven by James Lynn McGarvie, Ansonville, Pa., when McGarvie's car swerved from the road about two miles south of Fort Ashby, throwing White to the highway.

Three occupants of the back seat were not injured. They were identified by Cpl. Karickhoff as Bud Milton Kirk, 855 Mt. Royal Avenue, this city; Richard K. Floke, Hopewell, Pa., and David Horninke, Glassport, Pa.

All were en route home from Fort Eustis, Va., where they are stationed with the Army.

Council Grants Pawn Shop Permit

After a two-week controversy, the Mayor and Council granted a permit yesterday to Melvin Sack to open a pawn shop at 100 North Mechanic Street. The basis for the decision was the opinion that the Council could not legally deny a permit.

The permit was granted by a 4-1 vote, Mayor Thomas S. Post dissenting. Mayor Post said he refused to vote for the permit because the council "should take the police chief's recommendation. I am sorry to see him overridden because he is entrusted to protect the health and welfare of our citizens."

Character Not Questioned

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn earlier had said in a letter to the council that after investigation he did not deem it advisable to grant the permission. At no time was Sack's character under question, the discussion revealed.

Chief Flynn in another letter today asked the Mayor and Council to "call a halt to the number of pawnbrokers in this city."

"I can cite you numerous cases," the chief's letter said, "where men who are addicted to drink will not only spend their entire pay, but will also peddle their clothes, household furniture, sweepers and even washer to get money to buy booze. Ready access to a pawnshop x x x x causes many persons to steal because they can turn various articles into instant cash.

Should Limit Number

"I believe the Mayor and Council should limit the number of pawnshops or tighten the ordinance requiring fingerprints to be taken of any person wishing to dispose of any article in a pawnshop when that person is unknown by the pawnbroker. As it is now, any name they give will do; this x x x x works a hardship on the Police Department in trying to locate persons who give fictitious names when pawning stolen goods."

Commissioner Edgar Reynolds, in making a motion to grant the permit, said that in a recent conference with City Attorney Thomas B. Finan, he was told the city could not legally deny the permit. Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, in seconding, said "there is not sufficient evidence that we should deny the license."

The city payroll for the first two weeks of November was approved.

Mayor Post asked if water lines could be extended in the Winifred Road section after firemen were seriously handicapped in fighting a fire there Sunday because of lack of water.

"There are a good many properties there," the Mayor said, "and they need better protection."

First Hunting Season Casualty Reported

Dewarren O'Neal, 30, 132 Reynolds Street, had the dubious honor of being the first reported hunting season casualty yesterday.

The season opened at sunrise and O'Neal was taken to Allegany Hospital at 10:30 a. m. for treatment after an unidentified hunter shot him in the legs with buckshot.

The accident, O'Neal stated, occurred in the North Branch section.

Declaration Of Dividends Gives Market Best Day Since Nov. 4

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Good news from the business front pushed the stock market up today in its best session since November 4.

Gains ran generally from fractions to more than a point with some of the leaders advancing better than two points.

Prices started off the day with a great deal of hesitancy, but they strengthened materially as several increased dividends were declared and favorable earnings reported.

DuPont declared a year end dividend of $3.75 making total 1948 payments $9.75 against $8 in 1947. Baltimore & Ohio declared a one dollar dividend of preferred, the first since a payment of one dollar in 1932 based on a declaration at the end of 1931. Standard Oil Co. of Kentucky (on the curb) declared a 65 cent extra, making dividends of $2.65 this year against two dollars in 1947.

Baltimore & Ohio preferred was up 2⅞ at 21⅝, U. S. Gypsum up 3¾ at 102¾, American Woolen up 2⅛ at 42¾, and DuPont up 2¼ at 172. Others up a point or more included U. S. Steel, Great Northern preferred, Union Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Mission Corp., Richfield, Atlantic Refining, Kennecott, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Johns Manville, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, J. I. Case (which declared an additional 10 per cent stock dividend after the market closed), Caterpillar, Boeing, and Schenley.

Going down were Allied Chemical, American Can, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Nickel Plate, American Cyanamid, Transcontinental & Western Air, and Firestone.

Motors were among the laggards most of the day, and the oils had some difficulty in getting to the plus side as a group until late in the session.

Toward the close there was some small profit taking which cut down the widest gains but not enough to change the character of the market. Rails suffered a sinking spell from their top after the Association of American Railroads placed freight embargoes on two more east coast cities because of the longshoremen's strike.

The bond market had one of its best days since the election.

Rails paced the broad advance—some posting gains of three points or better in lively trading. Losers were far in the minority.

Injured Soldier Still Unconscious

James White, 17, Batavia, N. Y., soldier who was injured in an auto accident near Fort Ashby Saturday morning, was described by one of his physicians as "improving" at Allegany Hospital, where he remained unconscious last night.

The physician reported the youth sustained a probable fractured skull, a concussion, cerebral lacerations with hemorrhage into the brain covering, and multiple contused lacerations of the scalp and forehead.

Cpl. R. R. Karickhoff of the West Virginia State Police said White was riding in the front seat of a car driven by James Lynn McGarvie, Ansonville, Pa., when McGarvie's car swerved from the road about two miles south of Fort Ashby, throwing White to the highway.

McGarvie was released from the hospital Sunday after being treated for a lacerated scalp.

Three occupants of the back seat were not injured. They were identified by Cpl. Karickhoff as Bud Milton Kirk, 855 Mt. Royal Avenue, this city; Richard K. Floke, Hopewell, Pa., and David Horninke, Glassport, Pa.

All were en route home from Fort Eustis, Va., where they are stationed with the Army.

Council Grants Pawn Shop Permit

After a two-week controversy, the Mayor and Council granted a permit yesterday to Melvin Sack to open a pawn shop at 100 North Mechanic Street. The basis for the decision was the opinion that the Council could not legally deny a permit.

The permit was granted by a 4-1 vote, Mayor Thomas S. Post dissenting. Mayor Post said he refused to vote for the permit because the council "should take the police chief's recommendation. I am sorry to see him overridden because he is entrusted to protect the health and welfare of our citizens."

Character Not Questioned

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn earlier had said in a letter to the council that after investigation he did not deem it advisable to grant the permission. At no time was Sack's character under question, the discussion revealed.

Chief Flynn in another letter today asked the Mayor and Council to "call a halt to the number of pawnbrokers in this city."

"I can cite you numerous cases," the chief's letter said, "where men who are addicted to drink will not only spend their entire pay, but will also peddle their clothes, household furniture, sweepers and even washer to get money to buy booze. Ready access to a pawnshop x x x x causes many persons to steal because they can turn various articles into instant cash.

Should Limit Number

"I believe the Mayor and Council should limit the number of pawnshops or tighten the ordinance requiring fingerprints to be taken of any person wishing to dispose of any article in a pawnshop when that person is unknown by the pawnbroker. As it is now, any name they give will do; this x x x x works a hardship on the Police Department in trying to locate persons who give fictitious names when pawning stolen goods."

Commissioner Edgar Reynolds, in making a motion to grant the permit, said that in a recent conference with City Attorney Thomas B. Finan, he was told the city could not legally deny the permit. Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, in seconding, said "there is not sufficient evidence that we should deny the license."

The city payroll for the first two weeks of November was approved.

Mayor Post asked if water lines could be extended in the Winifred Road section after firemen were seriously handicapped in fighting a fire there Sunday because of lack of water.

"There are a good many properties there," the Mayor said, "and they need better protection."

First Hunting Season Casualty Reported

Dewarren O'Neal, 30, 132 Reynolds Street, had the dubious honor of being the first reported hunting season casualty yesterday.

The season opened at sunrise and O'Neal was taken to Allegany Hospital at 10:30 a. m. for treatment after an unidentified hunter shot him in the legs with buckshot.

The accident, O'Neal stated, occurred in the North Branch section.

Three Names Approved For Smoke Appeal Unit

Mayor, Council Are In Accord On Membership

A three-man Advisory and Appeal Board that will have a big hand in Cumberland's Smoke Control program last night lacked only the official approval of the Mayor and City Council, but the appointment of a deputy engineer remained far from settled.

The municipal body at a private caucus indicated its unanimous approval of an AA board, but the membership must still receive the official vote at Council meeting. The tentative members are:

Charles Z. Heskett, former city attorney; John C. Shoupe, Smallwood Street, retired businessman, and John Connlly, assistant chief engineer for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company. Each has indicated he will serve.

Want Qualified Man

The much-needed deputy smoke abatement engineer, however, remained to be named and the Mayor and Council were not even in accord as to the basis for appointment. All did agree a qualified man is necessary.

Three of the councilmen and Mayor Post said the AA board personnel was agreeable, and one indicated the remaining councilman, William V. Keegan, would likely approve.

George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, who also attended the meeting, reported that he understood the municipal body would leave the selection of a deputy engineer to the AA board which would act on one of three men who qualified in a recent examination. Council members contacted last night denied this.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said he had contacted two of the approved AA board members and was informed they would serve. He added that if the third approves he will present the names to the Council Monday for final approval. Hitchcock said earlier all three had indicated to him their willingness to serve.

Even with an advisory and appeal board the smoke abatement program would be hindered by the lack of a deputy engineer since the board's chief duty is to rule on judiciary matters.

Got Some Approval

While Mayor Post did not confirm Hitchcock's statement that the AA board would be allowed to select a deputy engineer, he said the plan was discussed at the meeting. It met with some approval, the Mayor declared.

Earlier in the day at the regular meeting of the Mayor and City Council the four councilmen had failed to act on a motion by Mayor Post to name Francis D. Mullan to the post at a salary of $235 a month. As a result the appointment was deferred.

The two remaining applicants for the deputy engineer post are Frederick Borden and J. Walter McKee. Borden received the highest rating in a test conducted by Hitchcock, but the Civil Service Commission failed to recognize the examination as valid.

With discussion of permitting the AA Board to select the deputy, it appeared that the municipal body was at least ready to by-pass the Civil Service Commission, and one of the councilmen said he would favor filling the position with a one-year contract on the basis of Hitchcock's examination.

However, Commissioner Buchholtz said that after reading the ordinance he believes the deputy engineer will have to come under the Civil Service regulations. He referred to a section that reads:

"All appointments made under the provisions of this section shall be subject to all the laws, rules and regulations governing the classified city service."

Eagles Planning Yule Party For 3,000 Children

A mammoth Christmas Party for upwards of 3,000 children is being planned for December 23 at 2 p. m. by Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, at the Eagles' Home, North Mechanic Street.

The board of trustees, Francis H. Schultz, chairman, John H Hager and Raymond Johnston, will have charge of the affair, assisted by a committee including Blaine Wilkins, Hunter N. Long, Aaron J. Ruppert, William Schupfer, and Merle Lookabaugh.

The lodge has a membership of 3,500 and it is estimated that families of the local membership include at least 3,000 children. Everyone of these youngsters will be welcome at the party and a Christmas treat has been arranged for each.

Admission to the party will be upon presentation by the children of an official dues receipt of their father, Schultz said.

In addition an invitation has been extended the Allegany County League for Crippled Children to bring all of their wards to the party.

The treat will consist of a large Christmas stocking containing candy, popcorn, nuts and oranges for each child.

A large Christmas tree is being erected and the tree will be lighted by Santa Claus when he appears to distribute the treat.

The lodge committee has arranged to have a squad of city police and firemen on hand to help look after the 3,000 children expected, and a member of the police department will add a serious note to the party, with a short talk to the kiddies on the importance of safety in traffic, at school and home.

Music, group singing and other entertainment will be included on the program and local Eagles believe the party should be the largest and most successful event they have undertaken here.

B. & O. To Get 7 More Diesel Engines Here

Company Will Pay Stock Dividend

More diesels of the type that President Roy B. White credits with enabling the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to declare its first $1 preferred stock dividend since 1931 are scheduled to appear on the Cumberland Division shortly.

In announcing that the B. and O. will pay a $1 dividend White declared that some of the increased efficiency comes from conversion to diesel locomotives. He said the next diesels will serve between Buffalo, N. Y., and Pittsburgh.

Also on order are seven low-geared diesels which will be put into mountain helper service over the Alleghanies between Grafton, W. Va., and Cumberland, Md., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

President White reported to the annual stockholder's meeting that the system's net income for the first 10 months of this year was $19,043,131. This was $12,836,113 better than in the same period of 1947.

The board of directors declared the dividend just before the annual meeting. The last preferred dividend, $1, was declared in December of 1931. The last common dividend, also $1 was paid that month.

The twelve-man board of directors was re-elected without opposition by votes representing 2,076,164 shares of stock, about 65 per cent of the outstanding.

White said he and the directors expect business activity to sustain its present high level in at least the early part of 1949, but whether the earnings remain good depends on pending rate and wage matters

Traffic is heavy and gross income has been increased by higher freight and passenger rates, White reported, but the railroads are now paying 75 per cent higher wages and equipment and supplies cost twice as much as they did in 1939.

So the better earnings came about through operating efficiency, he said. New records were set for gross ton miles moved for each hour of crew time, net ton miles per hour of crew time, and net tons per loaded car.

Some of the increased efficiency, he indicated, comes from the B & O's conversion to diesel locomotives. All together, diesels are saving the B & O $6,000,000 a year.

Much of the saving comes in jobs and wages, his report showed. The B & O is moving 50 per cent more traffic than it did in 1948 with 9,900 fewer full-time jobs.

The stockholders' meeting also approved the company's taking over full ownership and control of the Baltimore and Ohio and Chicago Railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad.

Stockholders also ratified purchase of the four-mile Centralia and Webster Railroad in Braxton and Webster Counties, West Virginia, from the Davis Lumber Company for $35,000.

Mother, 19, Gets Suspended Term

A 19-year-old mother who told police she bought medicine with a $10 bill she stole from the home of George Froelick, 118 Decatur Street, last Friday, yesterday was given a suspended sentence in Trial Magistrates Court.

Police said the youthful mother, Mrs. Phyllis Fazzalore, Corriganville, signed a confession admitting that she took the money from a coffee table at the Froelick home while she was there selling a metal name plate for the front door.

Mrs. Fazzalore, whose husband is serving in the Army, was apprehended yesterday when authorities received a report that she was canvassing in homes on Washington Street. She was arrested as she left one of the homes.

Detective Thomas J. See said Mrs. Fazzalore went to the Froelick home Friday and after interesting Mrs. Froelick in one of the metal name plates, took the money as the woman consulted her husband. She remained and took an order for the plate after pocketing the money, according to police.

The young mother entered a plea of guilty to a petty larceny charge before Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti and was given a suspended sentence on condition that she refund the money and be of good behaviour.

Hitchcock Says Enforcement To Get Underway

Fast action in clearing away Cumberland's dense smoke was promised by George M. Hitchcock, city smoke abatement engineer, last night when he declared that "the time for enforcement has arrived."

The man who was brought here some 10-months ago to curb industrial smoke stacks and purify the air, said he was greatly heartened by the approval of an Advisory and Appeal Board. He promised action that will even be welcomed by the city's traffic division.

Trains that block the city's main arteries for long periods will be out under the smoke ordinances, Hitchcock declared, adding that the practice can't be continued and the output of smoke kept within the ordinance requirements.

Plans To Rectify Pollution

Just as determined, but warning that the action will not be nearly so quick, the smoke engineer said air pollution will be rectified. That includes flyash and many other foreign matters that pollute the air, he declared, and then explained that correcting such conditions requires much longer work before they are brought under control.

The period of educating the public and others to smoke regulations is over, Hitchcock said, and now it is time to enforce the ordinances which the city has drawn up. He said he is still awaiting the appointment of a deputy engineer and asserted he is only interested in getting a "good one." The Mayor and Council remained at odds over the appointment.

Hitchcock explained the smoke ordinance's prohibition of railroad engines blocking crossings further by saying that under the requirements, engines could not possibly leave the roundhouse with the proper fire and then "dilly-dally" through the city without violating the regulations.

Wants Co-operation

"I plan to seek the co-operation of all concerned by the ordinance," he declared, "but if it becomes necessary to take legal action to bring about conformity, then that is what I'll do."

It is the shifter engines that create the most smoke and are the biggest offenders, Hitchcock said, and it will be these engines that will be watched closest. In great part they, too, are the engines that block the crossings, so in enforcing the smoke ordinance the traffic situation will be aided also, he added.

Report Shows 85 Per Cent Of Levy Collected

The quarterly report of the condition of the levy in Cumberland, released by the City Auditor's office yesterday, shows that over 85 per cent of the levy has been collected to date.

A similar report for appropriations shows that less than 46 per cent of the total appropriation has been spent.

The total levy was $1,262,930. Of this figure $1,076,443.86 has been collected so far. Excess collections were noted in general licenses, state gasoline and auto taxes, and state income taxes. The total of collections in excess of the amounts levied was $32,282.66. The amount still uncollected is $218,768.80.

The only fund overdrawn so far is the contingent fund, which is $4,023.79 in the red. City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson explained that money from the contingent fund was used in flood control work which had to be paid for before the flood bonds were issued. The fund will be reimbursed, he said, from the flood control fund.

Total apropriations were $1,013,066.55, and the total expended was $465,484.08.

Weather

The cold snap threat seems to have vanished for the time being. Even though the air snapped at Cumberlander's heels a trifle, the sun smiled to show it didn't mean it and the thermometer went up to 57 degrees. That's higher than it has been in several days. Although the 37 degree temperature late last night was the same as the overnight low, the weatherman assures us a fair and warmer day today. A few clouds should mar the skies tonight, but it should be warmer than it was last night.

Establishment Of Campaign Review Board Favored

Local Organizations Would Name Members

Establishment of a fund appeals review committee was unanimously approved last night at a meeting of a committee appointed in early June by the Chamber of Commerce to study the advisability of creating such a committee.

Harold W. Smith, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce and acting chairman of the committee, reported that letters were sent out to 22 fraternal, civic, service and other organizations asking their opinions on the advisability of establishing such a committee.

Of the 16 letters which have been received, Smith said, 15 favored the plan. The study committee last night recommended to the Chamber of Commerce that the organizations to which letters were sent be asked to appoint one representative each to a committee which would organize as a review committee.

Smith said the purpose of the fund appeals review committee would be to determine the worthiness and necessity of any given community-wide fund-raising project.

The committee would consider the amount sought in a given appeal, the character and efficiency of the group sponsoring the appeal, and the dates of the proposed campaign.

The organization, he said would not act as a police body, but would "offer a helping hand to worthy projects."

Smith said the group would serve to eliminate unworthy projects and would review quotas for campaigns and compare them with state and national figures. The group would also arrange dates for campaigns in order to avoid unnecessary overlapping of campaigns, he said.

Other members of the study committee are Mayor Thomas S. Post, C. William H. Baer, Edmund S. Burke, Thomas F. Conlon, Max W. Bastian, Charles S. Catherman, Jr., and Jeremiah T. Defibaugh.

Company C Will Have Social After Drill

A social program has been arranged for members of Company C, 115th Infantry, Maryland National Guard, for tomorrow night following the regular drill period, according to Capt. Robert Mattlick.

Drill will begin at 7 p. m. instead of 7:30 p. m., Capt. Mattlick said, so more time will be available for the social program. All members are urged to be at the State Armory, ready for drill, at 7 o'clock, he stated.

The Company now has a roster of 70 men and officers, with vacancies for six recruits. Men 17 years of age or over, with or without previous military training, may apply for enlistment, Capt. Mattlick said.

Husband, Wife Held On Bond

Earl Snyder and his wife, Winona, were ordered held on $300 bond for action of the grand jury yesterday, after Paul Edward Snyder, told Magistrate Frank A. Perdew that he feared the couple would do him bodily harm.

An assault charge against the husband was dismissed when the prosecuting witness, Frank Carlile, failed to appear.

Heart Clinic Group Will Meet Tonight

The Allegany County Rheumatic Fever Association will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the office of Dr. Samuel Jacobson, Pershing Street, according to Mrs. Arthur C. Bright, secretary.

Plans for the establishment of a heart clinic for this area, which the association is sponsoring, will be considered. Representatives of American Legion Posts, also interested in the project, will attend the meeting, it was indicated.

8,226 Hunting Permits Issued As Season Opens

Wardens Report Many Sportsmen In Field

A total of 8,226 hunting licenses have been issued in this county for the upland game season, according to records at the office of Joseph Boden, clerk of court. The upland game season opened yesterday and game wardens and foresters said "hundreds of hunters took to the woods."

Yesterday, a record number of licenses was sold at the Court House. A total of 165 was issued including six state-wide and 159 county permits. Of the season total, 5,636 are county permits and 2,590 are state-wide.

Game wardens and foresters yesterday said the Green Ridge area was among the most popular for hunters. William A. Parr, district forester, estimated there were 800 hunters in that area yesterday morning. He said all day Sunday scores of cars went through the area, with hunters "just looking over the possibilities" with many of them camping over night to get an early start for game at sun-up.

Last night a number of hunters reported getting bag limits of small game. Some came back with nothing but tired feet and a weary look.

Only one hunting mishap was reported, that of DeWarren O'Neal, 132 Reynolds Street, who was treated in Allegany Hospital for gunshot wounds in his legs. O'Neal said he was shot by an unidentified hunter in the North Branch section.

Sporting goods stores report a renewed demand for ammunition and sports clothing. Demand for guns has not been heavy, it was indicated.

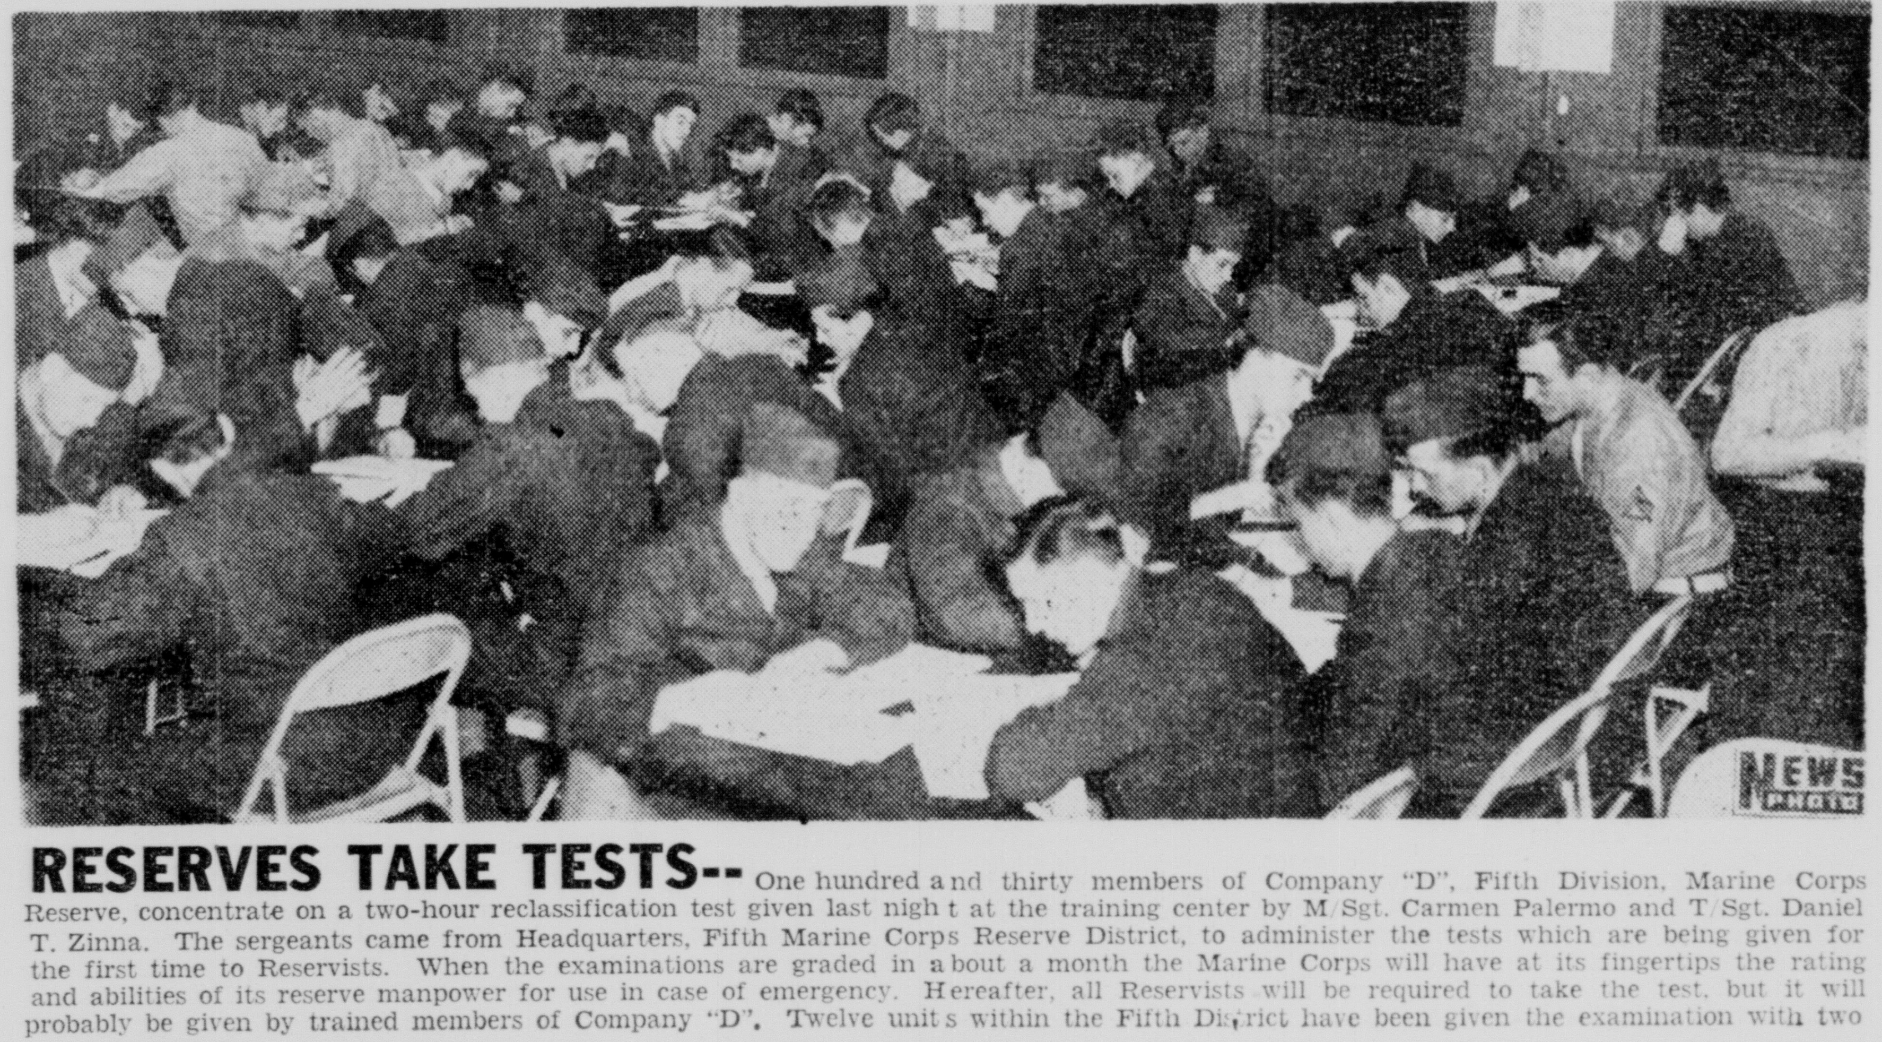
Parr said yesterday the woods are dry and urges hunters to use every reasonable precaution to avoid starting forest fires. The county has been practically fire-free this fall, he explained, but hunting season usually brings on a dirth of blazes, some of which sometimes destroy large amounts of woodlands and game.

Game wardens urge hunters to observe all safety precautions and to help avoid accidents.

Police Investigate More Clothes Thefts

A clothes thief who has been active on various occasions in Cumberland, struck again yesterday, and took a coat and dress valued at $25 from the clothes line of Mrs. Mary McIntosh, 225 Bond Street.

A woman who police listed only as "Mrs. Davis," 410 Louisiana Avenue, also reported that several undergarments valued at $10 were taken from her line over Saturday night.



RESERVES TAKE TESTS-- One hundred and thirty members of Company "D", Fifth Division, Marine Corps Reserve, concentrate on a two-hour reclassification test given last night at the training center by M/Sgt. Carmen Palermo and T/Sgt. Daniel T. Zinna. The sergeants came from Headquarters, Fifth Marine Corps Reserve District, to administer the tests which are being given for the first time to Reservists. When the examinations are graded in about a month the Marine Corps will have at its fingertips the rating and abilities of its reserve manpower for use in case of emergency. Hereafter, all Reservists will be required to take the test, but it will probably be given by trained members of Company "D". Twelve units within the Fifth District have been given the examination with two left to be tested.

Local Officials Plan Conference On Traffic Plan

Meeting Scheduled Today In Baltimore

Three city officials are planning to attend a conference in Baltimore this afternoon with an official of the State Roads Commission with regard to a proposed traffic survey in Cumberland, according to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

At the request of Mayor Post, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer arranged for the conference with George N. Lewis, Jr., director of the traffic division of the State Roads Commission.

Besides Rizer, Commissioners William H. Buchholtz and William V. Keegan are expected to confer with Lewis regarding details of the survey.

Mayor Post said he does not plan to attend because he has conferred previously with Lewis and because he is already "sold" on the traffic survey proposal. Commissioners Edgar Reynolds and William J. Edwards will be unable to attend.

At a conference of the Mayor and Council last week, city officials expressed verbal approval of the survey proposal, but formal action was not taken.

The survey would make the city eligible for federal and state aid on certain street projects and would give an overall picture of the city's traffic problems.

Cost is expected to be about $17,000, with the city paying approximately $4,000 and the remainder to be paid by the federal government and state. Length of the survey is estimated at three weeks.

A child hygiene conference will be held today at 10 a. m. at the Baptist Chapel, LaVale. Dr. William F. McFarland, assistant county health officer, will be in charge.

The Virginia Avenue School Parent-Teacher Association will meet at the school today at 7:30 p. m. Teachers will be in their rooms at 7 o'clock to confer with parents.

Romney Police Arrest Man Wanted For Burglary In Arlington, Va.

Recover Clothes, Cash, Car And Bonds

A man identified as James Thomas Nolan, 24, Arlington, Va., was apprehended in Romney, W. Va., yesterday by Sgt. H. R. Shields, West Virginia State Police, and Chief of Romney Police R. W. Daugherty. A quantity of clothing, money, bonds and an automobile were recovered.

Police said he is wanted in Virginia on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the burglarizing of a dry cleaning establishment there last Wednesday night of $500 cash and a large quantity of clothing.

Sgt. Shields said the man came to Romney driving a large new model convertible coupe, and made several purchases at garages and automobile accessory stores. The man was flashing a roll of money and spending more freely than usual, Sgt. Shields said, and aroused suspicions of several Romney business people.

Chief of Police Daugherty learned of the case and notified Sgt. Shields. An investigation was made and the two officers questioned the man.

Nolan, under questioning, told the officers he had robbed the Progressive Dry Cleaning establishment in Arlington, where he had been employed.

Sgt. Shields said he had a report on the Arlington robbery and was informed $500 in cash and a quantity of clothing was taken from the place.

Nolan told Sgt. Shields he hid in the place until after it was locked up for the day, then took the money and clothing.

Sgt. Shields said Nolan carried about $1,900 in United States Savings Bonds, in the name of the Arlington man who owned the convertible coupe. The registration card, title and operator's license for the auto were in Nolan's possession, the officers said. Police did not disclose the name of the man who apparently owned the bonds and car, but said he is vacationing in Florida. Nolan would not say how he obtained them.

When Nolan was arrested and searched, and the car was examined, $148.33 and a quantity of clothing were recovered. Sgt. Shields said the total value of the clothing and miscellaneous articles recovered together with the money would exceed $500 plus the bonds and car.

Nolan waived extradition and officers from Arlington County, Virginia came for him last night.

Nolan told Sgt. Shields and Chief Daugherty, the State Trooper said, that he was on parole from the Pennsylvania State Penitentiary where he had been sentenced some months ago on a charge of breaking and entering. He told the police his regular occupation is a heavy truck driver.

Municipal Share In Fines Is Proposed

A proposal of interest to Cumberland and other Maryland cities was made at an executive board meeting of the Maryland League of Municipalities in College Park Saturday, according to Mayor Thomas S. Post, a vice president of the League.

The mayor reported yesterday that Mayor Floyd B. Mathias of Westminster suggested that a bill be introduced at the 1949 session of the General Assembly to provide for municipalities to share in fines assessed in state cases.

Mathias pointed out that in some state cases municipal law enforcement officer make arrests and testify in court.

Mayor Post said he understands other states will be surveyed to see whether such a sharing arrangement is in effect.

Chest X-Ray Units Will Conclude Operations In City, County Today

Today will mark the end of the mass chest X-ray survey which has been conducted in Cumberland and other Allegany County communities, according to Dr. Leonard Cooper, general chairman on arrangements.

The portable X-ray unit in the State Armory, South Centre Street, will operate today from 10 a. m. until noon and from 3 until 6 p. m.

The mobile X-ray unit will visit Cresaptown today from 2 until 7 p. m. for the benefit of residents of that area who wish to take advantage of the free chest X-ray service.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, estimated that nearly 6,000 persons will have been X-rayed when the survey closes today.

Between 300 and 350 persons have been X-rayed daily at the State Armory since the portable unit began operations there November 4.

The mobile unit has already visited Mt. Savage, Frostburg, Lonaconing and Westernport, where a daily average of over 500 X-rays were taken.

Cresaptown residents who have volunteered to register those wishing X-rays during the unit's visit there today are Mrs. Julia Lewis, Mrs. Dean Evans and Mrs. Lester McGill.

Several local women's groups furnished volunteer registrants at the State Armory, through arrangements made by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce, one of the co-sponsors of the project.

Other sponsors are the Maryland and Allegany County Tuberculosis Associations and the Allegany County Health Department.

Area, Local Officials Back Sanitary Plan

Hall To Confer With Commissioners

Frostburg and Westernport officials have indicated they support a proposal to create an Allegany County Metropolitan Sanitary Commission, George L. Hall, chief engineer of the State Department of Health, said last night.

The Cumberland Mayor and Council yesterday decided to submit a resolution in support of the proposal to the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly.

Hall, who was accompanied here from Baltimore by W. H. Bingley, assistant sanitary engineer, plans to discuss the proposal with the Board of County Commissions this morning.

Not Compulsory

Pointing out that there is nothing compulsory in the bill, Hall said the metropolitan commission would be authorized, at the request of residents in the area involved, to set up sanitary districts in communities of the county.

Methods of financing the construction, operation and maintenance of water and sewerage systems are outlined in the proposed measure, which is substantially the same as the bill which went to a third reading at the last session of the General Assembly.

Due to questions of referenda and other details involving amendments to the original measure, the bill was "lost" in the press of legislation in the closing days of the session.

Since Cumberland, Frostburg and Westernport authorities have indicated their support of the plan, Hall explained, water sources of those municipalities could be made available to the sanitary districts, while funds for building the necessary pipelines and structures would be raised within the separate districts.

At last night's conference in City Hall, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Delegation, suggested that the Department of Legislative Reference be asked to draft a bill and that copies be sent to interested groups in the county.

A final meeting on the proposal could then be held with the county delegation prior to the opening of the 1949 General Assembly in January, Whitworth said.

Hall explained that four sanitary districts are now operating in the state, three of which weathered the depression years successfully. They are the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, and those in Anne Arundel County, Baltimore County and Howard County. The latter was formed recently.

Sprigg Tower, who was one of the organizers of the LaVale Civic Improvement Association, outlined the group's efforts to obtain a sanitary district for that area. A referendum on the question last January was declared improperly held, and the matter is now pending in the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Conference Suggested

Tower suggested that Hall and Bingley confer with Harry and David Kauffman, local attorneys who reside in LaVale and who have been interested in the sanitary district question.

Hall explained that under the sanitary district plan, cost to the property inaccessible to water and sewer mains is slight; the undeveloped accessible lot is not unreasonably burdened but is provided with incentive for development, and that an average residence obtains all the advantages of complete water and sewer service for a moderate cost.

Cost would be pro-rated, based on property frontage, tappage, amount of water used and the like, Hall said.

He informed the Mayor and Council yesterday that a survey here showed that of 12 to 15 water supplies, only three are acceptable in quality and quantity. There are no sewerage treatment plants, he said, and the residue is discharged into streams, creating health hazards.

Mayor Thomas S. Post also attended last night's conference.

VFW Post To Have Shrimp Feed Tonight

Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock, according to James J. Kloran, commander.

The post entertained the Hagerstown VFW and auxiliary bowling teams Sunday afternoon following competition between Hagerstown and local teams. The local post defeated the Hagerstown bowlers by 327 pins, while the local auxiliary team lost to the Hagerstown women by 97 pins.

Following tonight's regular business session, a shrimp feed will be served to the membership.

In Good Condition

Andrew A. Jackson, 19, 509 Necessity Street, who was critically injured when struck by a car early Sunday morning on Henderson Avenue, was reported in "good" condition last night by attaches of Allegany Hospital.

Three Names Approved For Smoke Appeal Unit

Mayor, Council Are In Accord On Membership

A three-man Advisory and Appeal Board that will have a big hand in Cumberland's Smoke Control program last night lacked only the official approval of the Mayor and City Council, but the appointment of a deputy engineer remained far from settled.

The municipal body at a private caucus indicated its unanimous approval of an AA board, but the membership must still receive the official vote at Council meeting. The tentative members are:

Charles Z. Heskett, former city attorney; John C. Shoupe, Smallwood Street, retired businessman, and John Connlly, assistant chief engineer for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company. Each has indicated he will serve.

Want Qualified Man

The much-needed deputy smoke abatement engineer, however, remained to be named and the Mayor and Council were not even in accord as to the basis for appointment. All did agree a qualified man is necessary.

Three of the councilmen and Mayor Post said the AA board personnel was agreeable, and one indicated the remaining councilman, William V. Keegan, would likely approve.

George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, who also attended the meeting, reported that he understood the municipal body would leave the selection of a deputy engineer to the AA board which would act on one of three men who qualified in a recent examination. Council members contacted last night denied this.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said he had contacted two of the approved AA board members and was informed they would serve. He added that if the third approves he will present the names to the Council Monday for final approval. Hitchcock said earlier all three had indicated to him their willingness to serve.

Even with an advisory and appeal board the smoke abatement program would be hindered by the lack of a deputy engineer since the board's chief duty is to rule on judiciary matters.

Got Some Approval

While Mayor Post did not confirm Hitchcock's statement that the AA board would be allowed to select a deputy engineer, he said the plan was discussed at the meeting. It met with some approval, the Mayor declared.

Earlier in the day at the regular meeting of the Mayor and City Council the four councilmen had failed to act on a motion by Mayor Post to name Francis D. Mullan to the post at a salary of $235 a month. As a result the appointment was deferred.

The two remaining applicants for the deputy engineer post are Frederick Borden and J. Walter McKee. Borden received the highest rating in a test conducted by Hitchcock, but the Civil Service Commission failed to recognize the examination as valid.

With discussion of permitting the AA Board to select the deputy, it appeared that the municipal body was at least ready to by-pass the Civil Service Commission, and one of the councilmen said he would favor filling the position with a one-year contract on the basis of Hitchcock's examination.

However, Commissioner Buchholtz said that after reading the ordinance he believes the deputy engineer will have to come under the Civil Service regulations. He referred to a section that reads:

"All appointments made under the provisions of this section shall be subject to all the laws, rules and regulations governing the classified city service."

Eagles Planning Yule Party For 3,000 Children

A mammoth Christmas Party for upwards of 3,000 children is being planned for December 23 at 2 p. m. by Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, at the Eagles' Home, North Mechanic Street.

The board of trustees, Francis H. Schultz, chairman, John H Hager and Raymond Johnston, will have charge of the affair, assisted by a committee including Blaine Wilkins, Hunter N. Long, Aaron J. Ruppert, William Schupfer, and Merle Lookabaugh.

The lodge has a membership of 3,500 and it is estimated that families of the local membership include at least 3,000 children. Everyone of these youngsters will be welcome at the party and a Christmas treat has been arranged for each.

Admission to the party will be upon presentation by the children of an official dues receipt of their father, Schultz said.

In addition an invitation has been extended the Allegany County League for Crippled Children to bring all of their wards to the party.

The treat will consist of a large Christmas stocking containing candy, popcorn, nuts and oranges for each child.

A large Christmas tree is being erected and the tree will be lighted by Santa Claus when he appears to distribute the treat.

The lodge committee has arranged to have a squad of city police and firemen on hand to help look after the 3,000 children expected, and a member of the police department will add a serious note to the party, with a short talk to the kiddies on the importance of safety in traffic, at school and home.

Music, group singing and other entertainment will be included on the program and local Eagles believe the party should be the largest and most successful event they have undertaken here.

B. & O. To Get 7 More Diesel Engines Here

Company Will Pay Stock Dividend

More diesels of the type that President Roy B. White credits with enabling the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to declare its first $1 preferred stock dividend since 1931 are scheduled to appear on the Cumberland Division shortly.

In announcing that the B. and O. will pay a $1 dividend White declared that some of the increased efficiency comes from conversion to diesel locomotives. He said the next diesels will serve between Buffalo, N. Y., and Pittsburgh.

Also on order are seven low-geared diesels which will be put into mountain helper service over the Alleghanies between Grafton, W. Va., and Cumberland, Md., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

President White reported to the annual stockholder's meeting that the system's net income for the first 10 months of this year was $19,043,131. This was $12,836,113 better than in the same period of 1947.

The board of directors declared the dividend just before the annual meeting. The last preferred dividend, $1, was declared in December of 1931. The last common dividend, also $1 was paid that month.

The twelve-man board of directors was re-elected without opposition by votes representing 2,076,164 shares of stock, about 65 per cent of the outstanding.

White said he and the directors expect business activity to sustain its present high level in at least the early part of 1949, but whether the earnings remain good depends on pending rate and wage matters.

Traffic is heavy and gross income has been increased by higher freight and passenger rates, White reported, but the railroads are now paying 75 per cent higher wages and equipment and supplies cost twice as much as they did in 1939.

So the better earnings came about through operating efficiency, he said. New records were set for gross ton miles moved for each hour of crew time, net ton miles per hour of crew time, and net tons per loaded car.

Some of the increased efficiency, he indicated, comes from the B & O's conversion to diesel locomotives. All together, diesels are saving the B & O $6,000,000 a year.

Much of the saving comes in jobs and wages, his report showed. The B & O is moving 50 per cent more traffic than it did in 1948 with 9,900 fewer full-time jobs.

The stockholders' meeting also approved the company's taking over full ownership and control of the Baltimore and Ohio and Chicago Railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad.

Stockholders also ratified purchase of the four-mile Centralia and Webster Railroad in Braxton and Webster Counties, West Virginia, from the Davis Lumber Company for $35,000.

Mother, 19, Gets Suspended Term

A 19-year-old mother who told police she bought medicine with a $10 bill she stole from the home of George Froelick, 118 Decatur Street, last Friday, yesterday was given a suspended sentence in Trial Magistrates Court.

Police said the youthful mother, Mrs. Phyllis Fazzalore, Corriganville, signed a confession admitting that she took the money from a coffee table at the Froelick home while she was there selling a metal name plate for the front door.

Mrs. Fazzalore, whose husband is serving in the Army, was apprehended yesterday when authorities received a report that she was canvassing in homes on Washington Street. She was arrested as she left one of the homes.

Detective Thomas J. See said Mrs. Fazzalore went to the Froelick home Friday and after interesting Mrs. Froelick in one of the metal name plates, took the money as the woman consulted her husband. She remained and took an order for the plate after pocketing the money, according to police.

The young mother entered a plea of guilty to a petty larceny charge before Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti and was given a suspended sentence on condition that she refund the money and be of good behaviour.

Hitchcock Says Enforcement To Get Underway

Fast action in clearing away Cumberland's dense smoke was promised by George M. Hitchcock, city smoke abatement engineer, last night when he declared that "the time for enforcement has arrived."

The man who was brought here some 10-months ago to curb industrial smoke stacks and purify the air, said he was greatly heartened by the approval of an Advisory and Appeal Board. He promised action that will even be welcomed by the city's traffic division.

Trains that block the city's main arteries for long periods will be out under the smoke ordinances, Hitchcock declared, adding that the practice can't be continued and the output of smoke kept within the ordinance requirements.

Plans To Rectify Pollution

Just as determined, but warning that the action will not be nearly so quick, the smoke engineer said air pollution will be rectified. That includes flyash and many other foreign matters that pollute the air, he declared, and then explained that correcting such conditions requires much longer work before they are brought under control.

The period of educating the public and others to smoke regulations is over, Hitchcock said, and now it is time to enforce the ordinances which the city has drawn up. He said he is still awaiting the appointment of a deputy engineer and asserted he is only interested in getting a "good one." The Mayor and Council remained at odds over the appointment.

Hitchcock explained the smoke ordinance's prohibition of railroad engines blocking crossings further by saying that under the requirements, engines could not possibly leave the roundhouse with the proper fire and then "dilly-dally" through the city without violating the regulations.

Wants Co-operation

"I plan to seek the co-operation of all concerned by the ordinance," he declared, "but if it becomes necessary to take legal action to bring about conformity, then that is what I'll do."

It is the shifter engines that create the most smoke and are the biggest offenders, Hitchcock said, and it will be these engines that will be watched closest. In great part they, too, are the engines that block the crossings, so in enforcing the smoke ordinance the traffic situation will be aided also, he added.

Report Shows 85 Per Cent Of Levy Collected

The quarterly report of the condition of the levy in Cumberland, released by the City Auditor's office yesterday, shows that over 85 per cent of the levy has been collected to date.

A similar report for appropriations shows that less than 46 per cent of the total appropriation has been spent.

The total levy was $1,262,930. Of this figure $1,076,443.86 has been collected so far. Excess collections were noted in general licenses, state gasoline and auto taxes, and state income taxes. The total of collections in excess of the amounts levied was $32,282.66. The amount still uncollected is $218,768.80.

The only fund overdrawn so far is the contingent fund, which is $4,023.79 in the red. City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson explained that money from the contingent fund was used in flood control work which had to be paid for before the flood bonds were issued. The fund will be reimbursed, he said, from the flood control fund.

Total apropriations were $1,013,066.55, and the total expended was $465,484.08.

Weather

The cold snap threat seems to have vanished for the time being. Even though the air snapped at Cumberlander's heels a trifle, the sun smiled to show it didn't mean it and the thermometer went up to 57 degrees. That's higher than it has been in several days. Although the 37 degree temperature late last night was the same as the overnight low, the weatherman assures us a fair and warmer day today. A few clouds should mar the skies tonight, but it should be warmer than it was last night.

Bingley, assistant sanitary engineer of the State Department of Health; Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, who spoke in support of the measure at yesterday's meeting of the Mayor and Council; Horace P. Establishment Of Campaign Review Board Favored

Local Organizations Would Name Members

Establishment of a fund appeals review committee was unanimously approved last night at a meeting of a committee appointed in early June by the Chamber of Commerce to study the advisability of creating such a committee.

Harold W. Smith, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce and acting chairman of the committee, reported that letters were sent out to 22 fraternal, civic, service and other organizations asking their opinions on the advisability of establishing such a committee.

Of the 16 letters which have been received, Smith said, 15 favored the plan. The study committee last night recommended to the Chamber of Commerce that the organizations to which letters were sent be asked to appoint one representative each to a committee which would organize as a review committee.

Smith said the purpose of the fund appeals review committee would be to determine the worthiness and necessity of any given community-wide fund-raising project.

The committee would consider the amount sought in a given appeal, the character and efficiency of the group sponsoring the appeal, and the dates of the proposed campaign.

The organization, he said would not act as a police body, but would "offer a helping hand to worthy projects."

Smith said the group would serve to eliminate unworthy projects and would review quotas for campaigns and compare them with state and national figures. The group would also arrange dates for campaigns in order to avoid unnecessary overlapping of campaigns, he said.

Other members of the study committee are Mayor Thomas S. Post, C. William H. Baer, Edmund S. Burke, Thomas F. Conlon, Max W. Bastian, Charles S. Catherman, Jr., and Jeremiah T. Defibaugh.

Company C Will Have Social After Drill

A social program has been arranged for members of Company C, 115th Infantry, Maryland National Guard, for tomorrow night following the regular drill period, according to Capt. Robert Mattlick.

Drill will begin at 7 p. m. instead of 7:30 p. m., Capt. Mattlick said, so more time will be available for the social program. All members are urged to be at the State Armory, ready for drill, at 7 o'clock, he stated.

The Company now has a roster of 70 men and officers, with vacancies for six recruits. Men 17 years of age or over, with or without previous military training, may apply for enlistment, Capt. Mattlick said.

Husband, Wife Held On Bond

Earl Snyder and his wife, Winona, were ordered held on $300 bond for action of the grand jury yesterday, after Paul Edward Snyder, told Magistrate Frank A. Perdew that he feared the couple would do him bodily harm.

An assault charge against the husband was dismissed when the prosecuting witness, Frank Carlile, failed to appear.

Heart Clinic Group Will Meet Tonight

The Allegany County Rheumatic Fever Association will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the office of Dr. Samuel Jacobson, Pershing Street, according to Mrs. Arthur C. Bright, secretary.

Plans for the establishment of a heart clinic for this area, which the association is sponsoring, will be considered. Representatives of American Legion Posts, also interested in the project, will attend the meeting, it was indicated.

8,226 Hunting Permits Issued As Season Opens

Wardens Report Many Sportsmen In Field

A total of 8,226 hunting licenses have been issued in this county for the upland game season, according to records at the office of Joseph Boden, clerk of court. The upland game season opened yesterday and game wardens and foresters said "hundreds of hunters took to the woods."

Yesterday, a record number of licenses was sold at the Court House. A total of 165 was issued including six state-wide and 159 county permits. Of the season total, 5,636 are county permits and 2,590 are state-wide.

Game wardens and foresters yesterday said the Green Ridge area was among the most popular for hunters. William A. Parr, district forester, estimated there were 800 hunters in that area yesterday morning. He said all day Sunday scores of cars went through the area, with hunters "just looking over the possibilities" with many of them camping over night to get an early start for game at sun-up.

Last night a number of hunters reported getting bag limits of small game. Some came back with nothing but tired feet and a weary look.

Only one hunting mishap was reported, that of DeWarren O'Neal, 132 Reynolds Street, who was treated in Allegany Hospital for gunshot wounds in his legs. O'Neal said he was shot by an unidentified hunter in the North Branch section.

Sporting goods stores report a renewed demand for ammunition and sports clothing. Demand for guns has not been heavy, it was indicated.

Parr said yesterday the woods are dry and urges hunters to use every reasonable precaution to avoid starting forest fires. The county has been practically fire-free this fall, he explained, but hunting season usually brings on a dirth of blazes, some of which sometimes destroy large amounts of woodlands and game.

Game wardens urge hunters to observe all safety precautions and to help avoid accidents.

Police Investigate More Clothes Thefts

A clothes thief who has been active on various occasions in Cumberland, struck again yesterday, and took a coat and dress valued at $25 from the clothes line of Mrs. Mary McIntosh, 225 Bond Street.

A woman who police listed only as "Mrs. Davis," 410 Louisiana Avenue, also reported that several undergarments valued at $10 were taken from her line over Saturday night.

Local Officials Plan Conference On Traffic Plan

Meeting Scheduled Today In Baltimore

Three city officials are planning to attend a conference in Baltimore this afternoon with an official of the State Roads Commission with regard to a proposed traffic survey in Cumberland, according to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

At the request of Mayor Post, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer arranged for the conference with George N. Lewis, Jr., director of the traffic division of the State Roads Commission.

Besides Rizer, Commissioners William H. Buchholtz and William V. Keegan are expected to confer with Lewis regarding details of the survey.

Mayor Post said he does not plan to attend because he has conferred previously with Lewis and because he is already "sold" on the traffic survey proposal. Commissioners Edgar Reynolds and William J. Edwards will be unable to attend.

At a conference of the Mayor and Council last week, city officials expressed verbal approval of the survey proposal, but formal action was not taken.

The survey would make the city eligible for federal and state aid on certain street projects and would give an overall picture of the city's traffic problems.

Cost is expected to be about $17,000, with the city paying approximately $4,000 and the remainder to be paid by the federal government and state. Length of the survey is estimated at three weeks.

Romney Police Arrest Man Wanted For Burglary In Arlington, Va.

Recover Clothes, Cash, Car And Bonds

A man identified as James Thomas Nolan, 24, Arlington, Va., was apprehended in Romney, W. Va., yesterday by Sgt. H. R. Shields, West Virginia State Police, and Chief of Romney Police R. W. Daugherty. A quantity of clothing, money, bonds and an automobile were recovered.

Police said he is wanted in Virginia on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the burglarizing of a dry cleaning establishment there last Wednesday night of $500 cash and a large quantity of clothing.

Sgt. Shields said the man came to Romney driving a large new model convertible coupe, and made several purchases at garages and automobile accessory stores. The man was flashing a roll of money and spending more freely than usual, Sgt. Shields said, and aroused suspicions of several Romney business people.

Chief of Police Daugherty learned of the case and notified Sgt. Shields. An investigation was made and the two officers questioned the man.

Nolan, under questioning, told the officers he had robbed the Progressive Dry Cleaning establishment in Arlington, where he had been employed.

Sgt. Shields said he had a report on the Arlington robbery and was informed $500 in cash and a quantity of clothing was taken from the place.

Nolan told Sgt. Shields he hid in the place until after it was locked up for the day, then took the money and clothing.

Sgt. Shields said Nolan carried about $1,900 in United States Savings Bonds, in the name of the Arlington man who owned the convertible coupe. The registration card, title and operator's license for the auto were in Nolan's possession, the officers said. Police did not disclose the name of the man who apparently owned the bonds and car, but said he is vacationing in Florida. Nolan would not say how he obtained them.

When Nolan was arrested and searched, and the car was examined, $148.33 and a quantity of clothing were recovered. Sgt. Shields said the total value of the clothing and miscellaneous articles recovered together with the money would exceed $500 plus the bonds and car.

Nolan waived extradition and officers from Arlington County, Virginia came for him last night.

Nolan told Sgt. Shields and Chief Daugherty, the State Trooper said, that he was on parole from the Pennsylvania State Penitentiary where he had been sentenced some months ago on a charge of breaking and entering. He told the police his regular occupation is a heavy truck driver.

Municipal Share In Fines Is Proposed

A proposal of interest to Cumberland and other Maryland cities was made at an executive board meeting of the Maryland League of Municipalities in College Park Saturday, according to Mayor Thomas S. Post, a vice president of the League.

The mayor reported yesterday that Mayor Floyd B. Mathias of Westminster suggested that a bill be introduced at the 1949 session of the General Assembly to provide for municipalities to share in fines assessed in state cases.

Mathias pointed out that in some state cases municipal law enforcement officer make arrests and testify in court.

Mayor Post said he understands other states will be surveyed to see whether such a sharing arrangement is in effect.

Area, Local Officials Back Sanitary Plan

Hall To Confer With Commissioners

Frostburg and Westernport officials have indicated they support a proposal to create an Allegany County Metropolitan Sanitary Commission, George L. Hall, chief engineer of the State Department of Health, said last night.

The Cumberland Mayor and Council yesterday decided to submit a resolution in support of the proposal to the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly.

Hall, who was accompanied here from Baltimore by W. H. Bingley, assistant sanitary engineer, plans to discuss the proposal with the Board of County Commissions this morning.

Not Compulsory

Pointing out that there is nothing compulsory in the bill, Hall said the metropolitan commission would be authorized, at the request of residents in the area involved, to set up sanitary districts in communities of the county.

Methods of financing the construction, operation and maintenance of water and sewerage systems are outlined in the proposed measure, which is substantially the same as the bill which went to a third reading at the last session of the General Assembly.

Due to questions of referenda and other details involving amendments to the original measure, the bill was "lost" in the press of legislation in the closing days of the session.

Since Cumberland, Frostburg and Westernport authorities have indicated their support of the plan, Hall explained, water sources of those municipalities could be made available to the sanitary districts, while funds for building the necessary pipelines and structures would be raised within the separate districts.

At last night's conference in City Hall, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Delegation, suggested that the Department of Legislative Reference be asked to draft a bill and that copies be sent to interested groups in the county.

A final meeting on the proposal could then be held with the county delegation prior to the opening of the 1949 General Assembly in January, Whitworth said.

Hall explained that four sanitary districts are now operating in the state, three of which weathered the depression years successfully. They are the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, and those in Anne Arundel County, Baltimore County and Howard County. The latter was formed recently.

Sprigg Tower, who was one of the organizers of the LaVale Civic Improvement Association, outlined the group's efforts to obtain a sanitary district for that area. A referendum on the question last January was declared improperly held, and the matter is now pending in the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Conference Suggested

Tower suggested that Hall and Bingley confer with Harry and David Kauffman, local attorneys who reside in LaVale and who have been interested in the sanitary district question.

Hall explained that under the sanitary district plan, cost to the property inaccessible to water and sewer mains is slight; the undeveloped accessible lot is not unreasonably burdened but is provided with incentive for development, and that an average residence obtains all the advantages of complete water and sewer service for a moderate cost.

Cost would be pro-rated, based on property frontage, tappage, amount of water used and the like, Hall said.

He informed the Mayor and Council yesterday that a survey here showed that of 12 to 15 water supplies, only three are acceptable in quality and quantity. There are no sewerage treatment plants, he said, and the residue is discharged into streams, creating health hazards.

Mayor Thomas S. Post also attended last night's conference.

VFW Post To Have Shrimp Feed Tonight

Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock, according to James J. Kloran, commander.

The post entertained the Hagerstown VFW and auxiliary bowling teams Sunday afternoon following competition between Hagerstown and local teams. The local post defeated the Hagerstown bowlers by 327 pins, while the local auxiliary team lost to the Hagerstown women by 97 pins.

Following tonight's regular business session, a shrimp feed will be served to the membership.

Chest X-Ray Units Will Conclude Operations In City, County Today

Today will mark the end of the mass chest X-ray survey which has been conducted in Cumberland and other Allegany County communities, according to Dr. Leonard Cooper, general chairman on arrangements.

The portable X-ray unit in the State Armory, South Centre Street, will operate today from 10 a. m. until noon and from 3 until 6 p. m.

The mobile X-ray unit will visit Cresaptown today from 2 until 7 p. m. for the benefit of residents of that area who wish to take advantage of the free chest X-ray service.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, estimated that nearly 6,000 persons will have been X-rayed when the survey closes today.

Between 300 and 350 persons have been X-rayed daily at the State Armory since the portable unit began operations there November 4.

The mobile unit has already visited Mt. Savage, Frostburg, Lonaconing and Westernport, where a daily average of over 500 X-rays were taken.

Cresaptown residents who have volunteered to register those wishing X-rays during the unit's visit there today are Mrs. Julia Lewis, Mrs. Dean Evans and Mrs. Lester McGill.

Several local women's groups furnished volunteer registrants at the State Armory, through arrangements made by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce, one of the co-sponsors of the project.

Other sponsors are the Maryland and Allegany County Tuberculosis Associations and the Allegany County Health Department.

RESERVES TAKE TESTS-- One hundred and thirty members of Company "D", Fifth Division, Marine Corps Reserve, concentrate on a two-hour reclassification test given last night at the training center by M/Sgt. Carmen Palermo and T/Sgt. Daniel T. Zinna. The sergeants came from Headquarters, Fifth Marine Corps Reserve District, to administer the tests which are being given for the first time to Reservists. When the examinations are graded in about a month the Marine Corps will have at its fingertips the rating and abilities of its reserve manpower for use in case of emergency. Hereafter, all Reservists will be required to take the test, but it will probably be given by trained members of Company "D". Twelve units within the Fifth District have been given the examination with two left to be tested.
